UNITED NATIONS CRISIS OVER IRAN ENDS

18 Unions Involved Say Arbitrators' Figure Is "Inadequate"

AWARDS ARE BINDING ON CLASS 1 ROADS

Fact-Finding Panel Is Hearing Case of Trainmen, Engineers

CHICAGO, April 3 (AP)—Two arbitration boards today awarded the equivalent of sixteen cents hourly wage boosts to 1,220,000 railroad workers but spokesmen for the eighteen unions involved assailed the amount as "wholly inadequate."

Bert M. Jewell, chairman of the fifteen unions representing 1,100,000 non-operating employes, said additional wage increases would be asked "promptly" from the nation's carriers.

Spokesmen for the three operating brotherhoods involved said they hadn't decided yet whether to join in a new demand.

The awards, binding on the nation's Class 1 railroads and unions involved, were a shade above half of union demands. The fifteen non-operating brotherhoods had asked thirty cents an hour increases and the three operating brotherhoods, $2.50 a day. On a daily basis, the operating unions were granted hikes of $1.28.

Jewell said the award was final and not subject to further review or to approval by the Federal Wage Stabilization Board because the National Railroad Labor act provides the boards' award "shall be the final authority of the government."

He said final papers would be signed by the railroads and the brotherhoods "probably tomorrow" and the wage boosts would be put into effect immediately or as soon as mechanically possible.

One Possible Delay

Only possible delay, he said, might come from an improbable court action. A possible appeal by the railroads for rate increases would not delay effectiveness of the award, he said.

Both boards, in their formal reports, contended the wage award was "consistent with the standards now in effect x x x for the purpose of controlling inflationary tendencies and is approvable in its entirety for purposes of price increases."

In each case, the wage boosts were made retroactive to last January 1.

The awards will apply to the fifteen non-operating unions and the three operating unions representing the firemen and enginemen, the conductors and the switchmen.

Two other operating brotherhoods representing the trainmen and locomotive engineers refused to submit their demands to binding arbitration and their case is being heard by an emergency fact-finding panel.

Roloson Is Candidate For State Comptroller On Ticket with Tawes

BALTIMORE, April 3. — (AP) — Charles H. Roloson, Jr., president of a Baltimore fire insurance company, today announced himself a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state comptroller, on the ticket with J. Millard Tawes, incumbent comptroller who is seeking the gubernatorial nomination.

Roloson is the second candidate to announce. State Sen. John B. Funk, Frederick, is running for comptroller on the gubernatorial ticket of Rep. H. Streett Baldwin.

A former president of the Baltimore Association of Commerce, Roloson also has served as president of the Baltimore Safety Council and the community fund.

Truman Reports Record-Breaking Civilian Output

President Warns Prolonged Coal Strike May Snarl Reconversion

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—President Truman said today that production for American civilians has already zoomed to record-shattering heights, but warned that prolongation of the coal strike would wipe out that progress.

The output of goods and services "is still going up" after attaining a level higher "than ever before in the nation's history," Mr. Truman reported. Employment is "building up steadily" and wage payments have climbed back to near the V-J day level despite strikes.

The president issued his statement in releasing, at a news conference, a rose-tinted quarterly report prepared by Reconversion Director John F. Snyder.

Snyder said civilian production had hit a $150,000,000,000 annual rate in the quarter just closed—"unprecedented in our peacetime history"—and would go "several billion dollars" higher by mid-year. He went on:

3,000,000 Are Jobless

The jobless now number around 3,000,000, will not average more than 3,500,000 in the next three months. This compares with official fears of 8,000,000 out of work by summer.

The federal budget will show a deficit "several billion dollars less" than the $26,000,000,000 gap foreseen by Mr. Truman in his January budget message.

Mr. Truman termed the Snyder report "grounds for optimism and a redoubling of our energy." It should be required reading for every thinking American, he declared.

"We still have large, critical problems ahead of us, but we are over the hump of reconversion."

Some shortages—like shirts—linger because distribution is faulty, Mr. Truman said, and because stocks were badly depleted by war. It takes 32,000 cars, he reminded a questioner, just to give all dealers their show models.

Steel Strike Was Costly

And if the three-day-old strike of soft coal miners is prolonged, it would knock the whole thing out, he said in answering another query.

The recent steel strike cost us 7,000,000 tons of steel products, or about one-ninth of a full year's production, Mr. Truman said.

The country, he also asserted, cannot afford to "relax for one minute (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

April 6 Is Army Day

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 3. (AP)—Gov. Russia Provides Arms for Kurds, Chieftain Says

Tribesmen Are Reported Being Trained by Soviet Technicians

TEHRAN, April 1 (Delayed) (AP)—A Kurdish chieftain said today Russian arms and equipment had been supplied to forces of the recently-proclaimed "independent Kurdish republic" at Saujbulagh (Mehabad) in Northwestern Iran, and that Russian technicians had arrived there to train tribesmen for "a general drive for a free Kurdistan."

The chieftain would not permit use of his name, saying his life would be in danger if his presence in Tehran were disclosed. The interview with the Associated Press was arranged through an American friend of the chieftain who has lived in Kurdistan for twenty years.

Kurdish State Proclaimed

At the same time a former Kurdish member of Iran's Parliament asserted in Hamadan that "Kurds of Iran, Turkey, Iraq and Syria, meeting at Saujbulagh, have proclaimed a new and greater Kurdish state," with Mullah Mustafa, outlawed Iraq Kurdish leader, at its head. This informant, who also could not be identified by name, said Ghazi Mohammed, who declared the independence of the Kurdish republic last November, was Mullah's deputy.

The chieftain, who claimed to be leader of 4,000 mounted riflemen, said he had come here directly from councils with Ghazi and Mullah. He said Ghazi's forces at Saujbulagh had "obtained twenty tanks, four trucks and a number of mortars from a Russian unit in Myianduab," and that Russian Kurds and former Iranian army officers were helping train a "regular army" of 1,000 men at Saujbulagh.

Reds Leave Myianduab

(A Tehran dispatch filed earlier and received in New York yesterday quoted a Kurdish chieftain as saying Russian units were withdrawing from Myianduab and returning to Tabriz, seventy-five miles to the north.)

The chieftain said Iranian, Iraqi and Turkish Kurds were among tribesmen conducting the present "preliminary actions" against Iranian army garrisons at Sardasht, Baneh and Saqqiz in Western Iran.

He supported Iranian army claims that the garrisons there still were intact, but added the attacks by "irregulars of the Ghazi Mohammed army" now were concentrated against Sardasht near the Iraq frontier, westernmost of the three outposts. He added that Mullah Mustafa left Saujbulagh "a few days ago" to "organize a new drive" against the key garrison at Saqqiz.

Soldiers will still peel spuds and wash dishes. But those who do will be permanently assigned to the task and will be called "mess attendants." The announcement adds that they "will be afforded an opportunity to make an army career of food service."

The old system of assigning all men on the roster to KP in turn is being abolished.

Chief Executive Hits Republicans' Choice of Reece

GOP Chairman Replies That Truman's Party Is "Party of Reaction"

WASHINGTON, April 3. (AP)—President Truman today criticized by implication the selection of B. Carroll Reece as Republican chairman, and Reece replied that Mr. Truman's party is "the party of reaction."

Mr. Truman, at a news conference endorsed an article in the Baltimore Sun which said that Rep. Reece's election aids the GOP "standpatters" and rebuffs the Willkie-Stassen elements.

The president referred to the article when asked for comment on Reece's election. He said he had read the article and considered it very good.

In a radio interview tonight, Reece said:

"I am much interested that Mr. Truman finds himself in agreement with the opinions expressed by a great newspaper which, though normally Democratic, felt impelled in the interests of the nation to advocate his defeat in 1944.

"As to the article itself, the author complains that I am not what he pleases to call a 'liberal.' That word 'liberal' has so often been used so loosely that it may be well to give my own interpretation of it. Historically, a 'liberal' was one who sought to put a limit upon the powers of kings, or upon the powers of parliaments. Today in the United States the true 'liberal' is the man who fights encroachments by the federal government upon the freedom of the citizen."

Points to Voting Record

Reece said the Republican party is "the one group in the United States which has fought constantly to curb the bureaucratic powers of big government."

"And, as to my personal position," Reece said, "my voting record in Congress for twenty-five years will prove that I have been thoroughly in harmony with the Republican party's position during all that period."

Referring to the decision of the Progressive party in Wisconsin last month to dissolve and return to the GOP, Reece said:

"Apparently they agree with me that the Republican party as the liberal party is determined that the people shall run their government. The Democratic party as the party of reaction has demonstrated for the past fourteen years that it believes the government should run the people. That is the issue upon which we will elect a Republican congress next November."

Mr. Truman also disclosed that a conference at the White House yesterday had just about everything to do with New York politics. He gave that description when he was asked if it concerned the possibility of Sen. James M. Mead running as a Democratic gubernatorial candidate in New York next fall.

Truman Just Listened

Mr. Truman said his own part in the discussion was just listening with a lot of interest. It occurred when Edward V. Loughlin, leader of Tammany Hall, visited the White House. Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national committeeman for New York, and Paul Fitzpatrick, state party chairman, had discussed Mead's prospects with the chief executive last Thursday, telling him the senator could win against Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who is generally expected to seek another term.

The article on the Republicans which the President commended said that Reece "served twenty-five years in the House without fame" and recalled that he "voted against (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Hopes Ebb for 82 Persons Missing After Tidal Wave

Hawaiian Island Death Toll Reaches 82; Rehabilitation Begins

By DON WHITEHEAD

HONOLULU, April 3. (AP)—Hopes dwindled today for the safety of eighty-two persons—including fifty children—missing in the wake of Monday's tidal wave disaster from which possibly 176 persons were dead or missing in the Pacific ocean areas.

The recovery of the body of a 4-year-old boy on Maui island and finding of two more bodies previously listed as missing on Kauai brought the known dead toll in the islands to eighty-two. Territorial Gov. Ingram M. Stainback estimated the final total might reach 100 or 150. Twelve other persons were drowned elsewhere in the Pacific.

Meanwhile, the threat of pestilence eased on the stricken island of Hawaii, and the steady flow of foods and clothes mitigated conditions in the city of Hilo.

(An Associated Press dispatch from Tahiti said Monday's triple tidal wave caused damage on the north coast of that island 2,738 miles south of Honolulu. High waves still whipped parts of the coast of Chile.)

No Servicemen Lost

For a time it was feared that ten navy men might have perished on tiny French Frigate shoals, 450 miles northwest of here, but pilots of search planes found them digging from debris left when waves swept entirely over their low-lying spot of land.

The army's mid-Pacific command said a check showed no loss of life among its ground troops, and the same report was made by the navy of its personnel.

Every effort was being made to rush relief supplies into Hilo. Two LSTs (landing ships, tanks) left Pearl Harbor today carrying medical supplies, blankets, food, clothing, and water purifying chemicals.

William W. Monahan, chairman of the Hawaii chapter of the Red Cross, said there were enough supplies of food, clothing and medicine in the islands to meet immediate demands.

The fear of new violence from the sea ebbed as the uneasy ocean floor off the Eastern Aleutians 2,000 miles to the north, settled back with only an occasional after-shock from the tremendous seismic unheaval which generated the tidal waves.

AFL Opposes Extension Of Selective Service

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor opposed extension of the draft today as "un-American" while heads of the army and navy reiterated it is necessary for another year.

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal told the Senate Military committee that "we cannot be unmindful of the fact that the world is not at peace." Urging continuation of Selective Service for a year beyond its present expiration date of May 15, Secretary of War Patterson told the same committee the present "world emergency" will last through 1947.

Lewis G. Hines, AFL legislative representative, contended before the House Military committee that an additional three months would be sufficient for the services to arrange adequate enlistment programs.

Can Opener Helps Two Slayers Escape from Capital's Death House; One Remains at Large

Card Game between Condemned Duo and Two Policemen Leads to Sensational Prison Break

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — A sociable card game between two condemned killers and two policemen in the capital's death house led early today to the slayers' sensational escape — with the aid of a can opener.

Joseph D. Medley, convicted of the murder of one red-haired woman and implicated by police in the deaths of two others, was retaken eight hours later in a sewer pipe where he was hiding.

Earl McFarland, ex-marine convicted of strangling a young girl government worker with her own snood, remained at large.

A congressional investigation of the prison system here was immediately launched as legislators complained sarcastically that Washington felons have a motto: "Everybody home by Christmas."

An official statement issued by District of Columbia jail officials said Medley, 44, and McFarland, 24, were playing cards with two policemen-guards, Hubert C. Davis and Oscar C. Sanderlin.

Sanderlin "complained of illness" and went into Medley's cell to lie on the bunk, the statement related.

"One of the inmates closed the cell door on Officer Sanderlin and then both inmates overpowered Officer Davis. After this they locked Officer Davis in McFarland's cell. The inmates took the clothing and all keys of the officers."

Donning the uniforms, the slayers reached the roof by prying a ventilator open with a can opener. They then let themselves down sixty feet to the ground with a rope made of bedsheets.

The escape took place at 5 a. m. after a morning of intensive search, in which the FBI took part. Police seized Medley in a sewer near the Anacostia river. He was still wearing remnants of the policeman's uniform, bedraggled and grimy.

Police quoted him as saying:

"You can't blame a guy for trying and I'm going to try again. I'm glad nobody was hurt."

The two guards were suspended.

Operators Accuse UMW Of Blocking Negotiation Of New Coal Contract

Senate, by 66 to 9 Vote, Confirms Vardaman

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—Com. James K. Vardaman, Jr., won official permission of the Senate today to begin a fourteen-year term on the Federal Reserve Board of Governors at $15,000 per annum.

By a 66 to 9 rollcall, with only Republicans opposing, the former St. Louis, Mo., banker-attorney was confirmed for the appointment that his friend, President Truman, sent to the Senate ten weeks ago on January 23.

A last minute attempt by Sen. Morse (R-Ore) to delay this vote until next Tuesday, April 9, was rejected 58 to 17 despite Morse's plea that he and other senators must oppose Vardaman unless given six days to study the voluminous record.

Lewis Absents Himself from Meeting; Little Progress Is Made

By HAROLD W. WARD

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—John L. Lewis absented himself from the bituminous coal conference today and the operators asserted the United Mine Workers union was blocking the negotiation of a new contract.

Union officials declined to comment on the operators' assertion.

Little progress was reported by any of the principals on the third day of a nationwide soft coal strike by 400,000 miners.

Special Conciliator Paul W. Fuller said there had been a full discussion of the unionization of supervisory workers—the issue which caused a strike last October. Lewis has listed "adjustment" of this controversy as one of nine demands.

Fuller expressed the view that the operators and miners could "work something out" on the foremen issue.

A proposal by the operators in this dispute was voted down by the mine workers, the operators said. Their offer, similar to one made in contract negotiations last spring, called for "screening out" employes whose duties meet certain requirements for supervisory jobs. They would be excluded from the union but others who were not supervisory workers in the defined sense would be eligible for membership.

Hold Private Meetings

Both operators and miners held private meetings after a scheduled negotiating session was concluded at 1 p. m.

The operators said the UMW representatives had renewed Lewis's motion to report the negotiating committee's disagreement to the main wage conference—a move which he said would give the public a chance to decide for itself the "tenability of the operators' position." The operators objected that would force a termination of the contract negotiations. They voted the proposition down, as they had yesterday. Under the rules, both sides must concur in any such move.

Although Lewis stayed away from today's sessions, he made no particular issue of it. Fuller said a death had taken place in the family of Lewis's brother, A. D. Lewis.

The operators' statement declared that "there has been no evidence of real intent to collectively bargain by the miners through this entire conference."

"Bargaining in the miners' approach seems to be a blind acceptance by the operators of all the (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Truman Housing Plan Is Approved By Senate Group

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

WASHINGTON, April 3. (AP)—The administration's emergency housing legislation emerged from the Senate banking committee today carrying two key provisions—$600,000,000 for building material subsidies and price ceilings on existing houses.

Both were rejected by the House although President Truman called the subsidies the "very heart" of a program intended to bring about construction of 2,700,000 homes in 1946 and 1947.

The Senate committee voted unanimously to send the measure to the Senate, but only after a Republican effort to halve the subsidy fund was beaten down 12 to 6.

Capehart Seeks To Cut Fund

Sen. Capehart (R-Ind), who sought to cut the fund, said he would renew his effort when the bill comes up on the Senate floor, probably early next week.

Democratic Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, told reporters he intended to call the measure up just as soon as the pending minimum wage bill is out of the way. He said he hoped that would be Monday.

Close behind it will follow legislation for a long-range housing program embracing continued federal aid for low-rent housing and help for cities to redevelop "blighted" and slum areas. This is the so-called Wagner-Ellender-Taft bill on which the Banking committee scheduled action tomorrow.

Capehart lost on two other attempts to change the emergency housing bill.

An 11 to 7 vote defeated a motion to strike out a section permitting Housing Expediter Wilson Wyatt to guarantee a market for new types of building materials and prefabricated houses.

First Sale Is Ceiling

A similar vote beat an attempt to set June 30, 1947, instead of December 31, 1947, as the date when ceiling prices on existing homes will expire.

The ceiling price would be fixed by the first sale after passage of the act. The property then could not be resold for a higher price until ceilings were withdrawn.

Although Capehart's proposed changes remain to be fought out on the Senate floor, all signs point to Senate passage of the bill with provision in some form for subsidies and ceilings. The question then would be whether the House would accept the Senate change or seek a compromise.

Iran Is Prepared To Accept Soviet Assurance; Issue May Be Shelved

Gromyko States Russian Troops Will Be Out of Iran by May 6

COMPLETE SETTLEMENT TODAY IS PREDICTED

Officials Feel Council Survived Crisis with Added Prestige

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP) — The United Nations crisis over Iran collapsed tonight when it was learned that Iranian Ambassador Hussein Ala had informed officials he was prepared to accept a Soviet statement to the Security council as an unconditional guarantee of the withdrawal of Russian troops from Iran.

The key statement was contained in a letter from Soviet Ambassador Andrei Gromyko to the council. Gromyko stated flatly that Russian troops would be out of Iran within six weeks. Ala was reported by persons fully informed of his actions to have told United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie that he considered that this assurance met Iran's requirements.

His decision was said to have been based on Gromyko's omission of the possibility that "unforeseen circumstances" might halt the evacuation as well as on his positive statement that the evacuation was not conditional on current negotiation between Iran and Russia over oil concessions and other matters.

The settlemet is expected to provide that the case should be kept on the council's agenda at least until all Russian forces are out of Iran.

Council's Prestige Soars

Whether Secretary of State James F. Byrnes will take the lead in proposing that the issue now be in effect shelved, though kept on the agenda, could not be definitely learned. However, it is known that American officials feel that the Iranian crisis substantially ended today and that the Security council had survived it with heightened prestige.

Ala, after vigorously stating his country's complaints against Russia, said that if Iran could have unconditional assurances of the withdrawal of Russian forces—by May 6—it would readily agree to having the council halt proceedings on the case, though he would like to see it kept on the agenda. By that device he seeks to keep the council's influence behind Iran.

Speculations among top council delegates is that a settlement will clear the way for the prompt return of Gromyko to the council's meetings, which he has boycotted for a week under instructions from Moscow not to take part in discussions on Iran.

After today's mid-day public meeting, members of the Security council met privately and informally in a conference room of the United Nations in Rockefeller Center.

Russian Troops Are Pulling Out of Iran

TEHRAN, April 3 (AP)—Prince Mozaffar Firouz, Iranian propaganda minister, told a news conference today that the Iranian government has been "advised that two or three shiploads of Russian troops have left Iran through the port of Pahlevi."

He also said that the Russian ambassador had presented a memo "in the name of the Soviet government" which said that "within a period of five or six weeks from March 24 Soviet forces would have left the whole of Persia (Iran.)"

Baldwin Answers Critic; Campaign Organizations Occupy Candidates

[By The Associated Press]

Three of the five major figures in the forthcoming Democratic primaries in Maryland busied themselves yesterday with the campaign organization while another made his promised answer to criticism of his congressional record.

Comptroller J. Millard Tawes opened Baltimore campaign headquarters a day after he had won the indorsement of Maryland's senior senator, Millard E. Tydings, in his gubernatorial aspirations.

The city headquarters for Sen. George L. Radcliffe, seeking renomination, also were opened with former Judge Samuel K. Dennis in charge.

Gov. O'Conor, Radcliffe's opponent for the senatorial nomination, followed up his announcement of a county advisory committee by disclosing the organization of a business and professional committee of 1,000 to promote his campaign. The governor opened his formal campaign speech-making yesterday in Cumberland.

Rep. H. Streett Baldwin, another Democratic contender for the governorship, made a lengthy reply in Washington to charges by Mrs. Marie Bauernschmidt that he was frequently absent from Congress during important roll-calls.

Mrs. Bauernschmidt—the "Mrs. B." of Baltimore politics—is executive secretary of the Public School Association of Baltimore and makes news frequently by her acid comments on political leaders and politics.

Baldwin termed the charges "untrue, misleading and absurd" and said the Congressional Record would disprove Mrs. B's absentee accusa- (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

House Group Votes To Give Truman Authority on Ending Price Controls

WASHINGTON, April 3. (AP)—A requirement that price controls be lifted on various items as supply balances demand was written into the bill to continue the OPA today by a 20 to 3 vote of the House Banking committee.

Moreover, the committee voted to declare "the policy of the Congress that the general control of prices and wages, and the use of subsidy power x x x shall be terminated, without further extension, not later than June 30, 1947, and that on that date the Office of Price Administration shall be abolished."

The action vested in President Truman authority as to when various price controls shall be removed.

Before approving this amendment, by Rep. Brown (D-Ga), the committee rejected 15 to 9 a proposal by Rep. Wolcott, of Michigan, senior Banking committee Republican, which would have given industry advisory committees and agricultural organizations a large voice in determining when price decontrol should take place.

Brown, a tall, graying Georgian who has considerable influence among southern Democrats on economic legislation, told newsmen:

"I think this amendment will satisfy everybody. In my opinion it satisfies the administration position and assures the nervous producer that controls definitely will be lifted on a sound basis."

Rep. Monroney (D-Okla), who had voiced fear the OPA act would be "amended to death," said of Brown's amendment: "It's a compromise that should be acceptable to the administration and the opposition groups." (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Railroad Unions Awarded 16-Cent Hourly Pay Hike, Plan New Demand

President Warns Prolonged Coal Strike May Snarl Reconversion

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—President Truman said today that production for American civilians has already zoomed to record-shattering heights, but warned that prolongation of the coal strike would wipe out that progress.

The output of goods and services "is still going up" after attaining a level higher "than ever before in the nation's history," Mr. Truman reported. Employment is "building up steadily" and wage payments have climbed back to near the V-J day level despite strikes.

The president issued his statement in releasing, at a news conference, a rose-tinted quarterly report prepared by Reconversion Director John F. Snyder.

Snyder said civilian production had hit a $150,000,000,000 annual rate in the quarter just closed—"unprecedented in our peacetime history"—and would go "several billion dollars" higher by mid-year. He went on:

3,000,000 Are Jobless

The jobless now number around 3,000,000, will not average more than 3,500,000 in the next three months. This compares with official fears of 8,000,000 out of work by summer.

The federal budget will show a deficit "several billion dollars less" than the $26,000,000,000 gap foreseen by Mr. Truman in his January budget message.

Mr. Truman termed the Snyder report "grounds for optimism and a redoubling of our energy." It should be required reading for every thinking American, he declared.

"We still have large, critical problems ahead of us, but we are over the hump of reconversion."

Some shortages—like shirts—linger because distribution is faulty, Mr. Truman said, and because stocks were badly depleted by war. It takes 32,000 cars, he reminded a questioner, just to give all dealers their show models.

Steel Strike Was Costly

And if the three-day-old strike of soft coal miners is prolonged, it would knock the whole thing out, he said in answering another query.

The recent steel strike cost us 7,000,000 tons of steel products, or about one-ninth of a full year's production, Mr. Truman said.

The country, he also asserted, cannot afford to "relax for one minute

April 6 Is Army Day

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 3. (AP)—Gov. O'Conor today proclaimed April 6 "Army day" in Maryland, and urged state citizens to "reconsecreate themselves to the principles of justice and liberty for which our army has fought, and work together to preserve the peace that has been won by their sacrifice and courage x x x".

Russia Provides Arms for Kurds, Chieftain Says

Tribesmen Are Reported Being Trained by Soviet Technicians

TEHRAN, April 1 (Delayed) (AP)—A Kurdish chieftain said today Russian arms and equipment had been supplied to forces of the recently-proclaimed "independent Kurdish republic" at Saujbulagh (Mehabad) in Northwestern Iran, and that Russian technicians had arrived there to train tribesmen for "a general drive for a free Kurdistan."

The chieftain would not permit use of his name, saying his life would be in danger if his presence in Tehran were disclosed. The interview with the Associated Press was arranged through an American friend of the chieftain who has lived in Kurdistan for twenty years.

Kurdish State Proclaimed

At the same time a former Kurdish member of Iran's Parliament asserted in Hamadan that "Kurds of Iran, Turkey, Iraq and Syria, meeting at Saujbulagh, have proclaimed a new and greater Kurdish state," with Mullah Mustafa, outlawed Iraq Kurdish leader, at its head. This informant, who also could not be identified by name, said Ghazi Mohammed, who declared the independence of the Kurdish republic last November, was Mullah's deputy.

The chieftain, who claimed to be leader of 4,000 mounted riflemen, said he had come here directly from councils with Ghazi and Mullah. He said Ghazi's forces at Saujbulagh had "obtained twenty tanks, four trucks and a number of mortars from a Russian unit in Myianduab," and that Russian Kurds and former Iranian army officers were helping train a "regular army" of 1,000 men at Saujbulagh.

Reds Leave Myianduab

(A Tehran dispatch filed earlier and received in New York yesterday quoted a Kurdish chieftain as saying Russian units were withdrawing from Myianduab and returning to Tabriz, seventy-five miles to the north.)

The chieftain said Iranian, Iraqi and Turkish Kurds were among tribesmen conducting the present "preliminary actions" against Iranian army garrisons at Sardasht, Baneh and Saqqiz in Western Iran.

He supported Iranian army claims that the garrisons there still were intact, but added the attacks by "irregulars of the Ghazi Mohammed army" now were concentrated against Sardasht near the Iraq frontier, westernmost of the three outposts. He added that Mullah Mustafa left Saujbulagh "a few days ago" to "organize a new drive" against the key garrison at Saqqiz.

New Program Abolishes KP in Army Air Forces

WASHINGTON, April 3. (AP)—There will be no more KP (kitchen police) duty in the army air forces under a new program announced today.

Soldiers will still peel spuds and wash dishes. But those who do will be permanently assigned to the task and will be called "mess attendants." The announcement adds that they "will be afforded an opportunity to make an army career of food service."

The old system of assigning all men on the roster to KP in turn is being abolished.

Chief Executive Hits Republicans' Choice of Reece

GOP Chairman Replies That Truman's Party Is "Party of Reaction"

WASHINGTON, April 3. (AP)—President Truman today criticized by implication the selection of B. Carroll Reece as Republican chairman, and Reece replied that Mr. Truman's party is "the party of reaction."

Mr. Truman, at a news conference endorsed an article in the Baltimore Sun which said that Rep. Reece's election aids the GOP "standpatters" and rebuffs the Willkie-Stassen elements.

The president referred to the article when asked for comment on Reece's election. He said he had read the article and considered it very good.

In a radio interview tonight, Reece said:

"I am much interested that Mr. Truman finds himself in agreement with the opinions expressed by a great newspaper which, though normally Democratic, felt impelled in the interests of the nation to advocate his defeat in 1944.

"As to the article itself, the author complains that I am not what he pleases to call a 'liberal.' That word 'liberal' has so often been used so loosely that it may be well to give my own interpretation of it. Historically, a 'liberal' was one who sought to put a limit upon the powers of kings, or upon the powers of parliaments. Today in the United States the true 'liberal' is the man who fights encroachments by the federal government upon the freedom of the citizen."

Points to Voting Record

Reece said the Republican party is "the one group in the United States which has fought constantly to curb the bureaucratic powers of big government."

"And, as to my personal position," Reece said, "my voting record in Congress for twenty-five years will prove that I have been thoroughly in harmony with the Republican party's position during all that period."

Referring to the decision of the Progressive party in Wisconsin last month to dissolve and return to the GOP, Reece said:

"Apparently they agree with me that the Republican party as the liberal party is determined that the people shall run their government. The Democratic party as the party of reaction has demonstrated for the past fourteen years that it believes the government should run the people. That is the issue upon which we will elect a Republican congress next November."

Mr. Truman also disclosed that a conference at the White House yesterday had just about everything to do with New York politics. He gave that description when he was asked if it concerned the possibility of Sen. James M. Mead running as a Democratic gubernatorial candidate in New York next fall.

Truman Just Listened

Mr. Truman said his own part in the discussion was just listening with a lot of interest. It occurred when Edward V. Loughlin, leader of Tammany Hall, visited the White House. Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national committeeman for New York, and Paul Fitzpatrick, state party chairman, had discussed Mead's prospects with the chief executive last Thursday, telling him the senator could win against Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who is generally expected to seek another term.

The article on the Republicans which the President commended said that Reece "served twenty-five years in the House without fame" and recalled that he "voted against

Hopes Ebb for 82 Persons Missing After Tidal Wave

By DON WHITEHEAD

HONOLULU, April 3. (AP)—Hopes dwindled today for the safety of eighty-two persons—ineluding fifty children—missing in the wake of Monday's tidal wave disaster from which possibly 176 persons were dead or missing in the Pacific ocean areas.

The recovery of the body of a 4-year-old boy on Maui island and finding of two more bodies previously listed as missing on Kauai brought the known dead toll in the islands to eighty-two. Territorial Gov. Ingram M. Stainback estimated the final total might reach 100 or 150. Twelve other persons were drowned elsewhere in the Pacific.

Meanwhile, the threat of pestilence eased on the stricken island of Hawaii, and the steady flow of foods and clothes mitigated conditions in the city of Hilo.

(An Associated Press dispatch from Tahiti said Monday's triple tidal wave caused damage on the north coast of that island 2,738 miles south of Honolulu. High waves still whipped parts of the coast of Chile.)

No Servicemen Lost

For a time it was feared that ten navy men might have perished on tiny French Frigate shoals, 450 miles northwest of here, but pilots of search planes found them digging from debris left when waves swept entirely over their low-lying spot of land.

The army's mid-Pacific command said a check showed no loss of life among its ground troops, and the same report was made by the navy of its personnel.

Every effort was being made to rush relief supplies into Hilo. Two LSTs (landing ships, tanks) left Pearl Harbor today carrying medical supplies, blankets, food, clothing, and water purifying chemicals.

William W. Monahan, chairman of the Hawaii chapter of the Red Cross, said there were enough supplies of food, clothing and medicine in the islands to meet immediate demands.

The fear of new violence from the sea ebbed as the uneasy ocean floor off the Eastern Aleutians 2,000 miles to the north, settled back with only an occasional after-shock from the tremendous seismic unheaval which generated the tidal waves.

4,000 Are Left Homeless

AFL Opposes Extension Of Selective Service

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor opposed extension of the draft today as "un-American" while heads of the army and navy reiterated it is necessary for another year.

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal told the Senate Military committee that "we cannot be unmindful of the fact that the world is not at peace." Urging continuation of Selective Service for a year beyond its present expiration date of May 15, Secretary of War Patterson told the same committee the present "world emergency" will last through 1947.

Lewis G. Hines, AFL legislative representative, contended before the House Military committee that an additional three months would be sufficient for the services to arrange adequate enlistment programs.

Can Opener Helps

Two Slayers Escape from Capital's Death House; One Remains at Large

Card Game between Condemned Duo and Two Policemen Leads to Sensational Prison Break

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — A sociable card game between two condemned killers and two policemen in the capital's death house led early today to the slayers' sensational escape — with the aid of a can opener.

Joseph D. Medley, convicted of the murder of one red-haired woman and implicated by police in the deaths of two others, was retaken eight hours later in a sewer pipe where he was hiding.

Earl McFarland, ex-marine convicted of strangling a young girl government worker with her own snood, remained at large.

A congressional investigation of the prison system here was immediately launched as legislators complained sarcastically that Washington felons have a motto: "Everybody home by Christmas."

An official statement issued by District of Columbia jail officials said Medley, 44, and McFarland, 24, were playing cards with two policemen-guards, Hubert C. Davis and Oscar C. Sanderlin.

Sanderlin "complained of illness" and went into Medley's cell to lie on the bunk, the statement related.

"One of the inmates closed the cell door on Officer Sanderlin and then both inmates overpowered Officer Davis. After this they locked Officer Davis in McFarland's cell. The inmates took the clothing and all keys of the officers."

Donning the uniforms, the slayers reached the roof by prying a ventilator open with a can opener. They then let themselves down sixty feet to the ground with a rope made of bedsheets.

The escape took place at 5 a. m. after a morning of intensive search, in which the FBI took part. Police seized Medley in a sewer near the Anacostia river. He was still wearing remnants of the policeman's uniform, bedraggled and grimy.

Police quoted him as saying:

"You can't blame a guy for trying and I'm going to try again. I'm glad nobody was hurt."

The two guards were suspended.

Medley was a fugitive from the Michigan penitentiary when, according to a jury's findings, he shot and killed Mrs. Nancy Boyer, at-

Operators Accuse UMW Of Blocking Negotiation Of New Coal Contract

Senate, by 66 to 9 Vote, Confirms Vardaman

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—Com. James K. Vardaman, Jr., won official permission of the Senate today to begin a fourteen-year term on the Federal Reserve Board of Governors at $15,000 per annum.

By a 66 to 9 rollcall, with only Republicans opposing, the former St. Louis, Mo., banker-attorney was confirmed for the appointment that his friend, President Truman, sent to the Senate ten weeks ago on January 23.

A last minute attempt by Sen. Morse (R-Ore) to delay this vote until next Tuesday, April 9, was rejected 58 to 17 despite Morse's plea that he and other senators must oppose Vardaman unless given six days to study the voluminous record.

Truman Housing Plan Is Approved By Senate Group

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

WASHINGTON, April 3. (AP)—The administration's emergency housing legislation emerged from the Senate banking committee today carrying two key provisions—$600,000,000 for building material subsidies and price ceilings on existing houses.

Both were rejected by the House although President Truman called the subsidies the "very heart" of a program intended to bring about construction of 2,700,000 homes in 1946 and 1947.

The Senate committee voted unanimously to send the measure to the Senate, but only after a Republican effort to halve the subsidy fund was beaten down 12 to 6.

Capehart Seeks To Cut Fund

Sen. Capehart (R-Ind), who sought to cut the fund, said he would renew his effort when the bill comes up on the Senate floor, probably early next week.

Democratic Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, told reporters he intended to call the measure up just as soon as the pending minimum wage bill is out of the way. He said he hoped that would be Monday.

Close behind it will follow legislation for a long-range housing program embracing continued federal aid for low-rent housing and help for cities to redevelop "blighted" and slum areas. This is the so-called Wagner-Ellender-Taft bill on which the Banking committee scheduled action tomorrow.

Capehart lost on two other attempts to change the emergency housing bill.

An 11 to 7 vote defeated a motion to strike out a section permitting Housing Expediter Wilson Wyatt to guarantee a market for new types of building materials and prefabricated houses.

First Sale Is Ceiling

A similar vote beat an attempt to set June 30, 1947, instead of December 31, 1947, as the date when ceiling prices on existing homes will expire.

The ceiling price would be fixed by the first sale after passage of the act. The property then could not be resold for a higher price until ceilings were withdrawn.

Although Capehart's proposed changes remain to be fought out on the Senate floor, all signs point to Senate passage of the bill with provision in some form for subsidies and ceilings. The question then would be whether the House would accept the Senate change or seek a compromise.

Lewis Absents Himself from Meeting; Little Progress Is Made

By HAROLD W. WARD

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—John L. Lewis absented himself from the bituminous coal conference today and the operators asserted the United Mine Workers union was blocking the negotiation of a new contract.

Union officials declined to comment on the operators' assertion.

Little progress was reported by any of the principals on the third day of a nationwide soft coal strike by 400,000 miners.

Special Conciliator Paul W. Fuller said there had been a full discussion of the unionization of supervisory workers—the issue which caused a strike last October. Lewis has listed "adjustment" of this controversy as one of nine demands.

Fuller expressed the view that the operators and miners could "work something out" on the foremen issue.

A proposal by the operators in this dispute was voted down by the mine workers, the operators said. Their offer, similar to one made in contract negotiations last spring, called for "screening out" employes whose duties meet certain requirements for supervisory jobs. They would be excluded from the union but others who were not supervisory workers in the defined sense would be eligible for membership.

Hold Private Meetings

Both operators and miners held private meetings after a scheduled negotiating session was concluded at 1 p. m.

The operators said the UMW representatives had renewed Lewis's motion to report the negotiating committee's disagreement to the main wage conference — a move which he said would give the public a chance to decide for itself the "tenability of the operators' position." The operators objected that would force a termination of the contract negotiations. They voted the proposition down, as they had yesterday. Under the rules, both sides must concur in any such move.

Although Lewis stayed away from today's sessions, he made no particular issue of it. Fuller said a death had taken place in the family of Lewis's brother, A. D. Lewis.

The operators' statement declared that "there has been no evidence of real intent to collectively bargain by the miners through this entire conference."

"Bargaining in the miners' approach seems to be a blind acceptance by the operators of all the

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP) — The United Nations crisis over Iran collapsed tonight when it was learned that Iranian Ambassador Hussein Ala had informed officials he was prepared to accept a Soviet statement to the Security council as an unconditional guarantee of the withdrawal of Russian troops from Iran.

The key statement was contained in a letter from Soviet Ambassador Andrei Gromyko to the council. Gromyko stated flatly that Russian troops would be out of Iran within six weeks. Ala was reported by persons fully informed of his actions to have told United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie that he considered that this assurance met Iran's requirements.

His decision was said to have been based on Gromyko's omission of the possibility that "unforeseen circumstances" might halt the evacuation as well as on his positive statement that the evacuation was not conditional on current negotiation between Iran and Russia over oil concessions and other matters.

The settlemet is expected to provide that the case should be kept on the council's agenda at least until all Russian forces are out of Iran.

Council's Prestige Soars

Whether Secretary of State James F. Byrnes will take the lead in proposing that the issue now be in effect shelved, though kept on the agenda, could not be definitely learned. However, it is known that American officials feel that the Iranian crisis substantially ended today and that the Security council had survived it with heightened prestige.

Ala, after vigorously stating his country's complaints against Russia, said that if Iran could have unconditional assurances of the withdrawal of Russian forces—by May 6—it would readily agree to having the council halt proceedings on the case, though he would like to see it kept on the agenda. By that device he seeks to keep the council's influence behind Iran.

Speculations among top council delegates is that a settlement will clear the way for the prompt return of Gromyko to the council's meetings, which he has boycotted for a week under instructions from Moscow not to take part in discussions on Iran.

After today's mid-day public meeting, members of the Security council met privately and informally in a conference room of the United Nations in Rockefeller Center.

An official announcement given

Russian Troops Are Pulling Out of Iran

TEHRAN, April 3 (AP)—Prince Mozaffar Firouz, Iranian propaganda minister, told a news conference today that the Iranian government has been "advised that two or three shiploads of Russian troops have left Iran through the port of Pahlevi."

He also said that the Russian ambassador had presented a memo "in the name of the Soviet government" which said that "within a period of five or six weeks from March 24 Soviet forces would have left the whole of Persia (Iran.)"

Baldwin Answers Critic; Campaign Organizations Occupy Candidates

[By The Associated Press]

Three of the five major figures in the forthcoming Democratic primaries in Maryland busied themselves yesterday with the campaign organization while another made his promised answer to criticism of his congressional record.

Comptroller J. Millard Tawes opened Baltimore campaign headquarters a day after he had won the indorsement of Maryland's senior senator, Millard E. Tydings, in his gubernatorial aspirations.

The city headquarters for Sen. George L. Radcliffe, seeking renomination, also were opened with former Judge Samuel K. Dennis in charge.

Gov. O'Conor, Radcliffe's opponent for the senatorial nomination, followed up his announcement of a county advisory committee by disclosing the organization of a business and professional committee of 1,000 to promote his campaign. The governor opened his formal campaign speech-making yesterday in Cumberland.

Rep. H. Streett Baldwin, another Democratic contender for the governorship, made a lengthy reply in Washington to charges by Mrs. Marie Bauernschmidt that he was frequently absent from Congress during important roll-calls.

Mrs. Bauernschmidt—the "Mrs. B." of Baltimore politics—is executive secretary of the Public School Association of Baltimore and makes news frequently by her acid comments on political leaders and politics.

Baldwin termed the charges "untrue, misleading and absurd" and said the Congressional Record would disprove Mrs. B's absentee accusa-

House Group Votes To Give Truman Authority on Ending Price Controls

WASHINGTON, April 3. (AP)—A requirement that price controls be lifted on various items as supply balances demand was written into the bill to continue the OPA today by a 20 to 3 vote of the House Banking committee.

Moreover, the committee voted to declare "the policy of the Congress that the general control of prices and wages, and the use of subsidy power x x x shall be terminated, without further extension, not later than June 30, 1947, and that on that date the Office of Price Administration shall be abolished."

The action vested in President Truman authority as to when various price controls shall be removed.

Before approving this amendment, by Rep. Brown (D-Ga), the committee rejected 15 to 9 a proposal by Rep. Wolcott, of Michigan, senior Banking committee Republican, which would have given industry advisory committees and agricultural organizations a large voice in determining when price decontrol should take place.

Brown, a tall, graying Georgian who has considerable influence among southern Democrats on economic legislation, told newsmen:

"I think this amendment will satisfy everybody. In my opinion it satisfies the administration position and assures the nervous producer that controls definitely will be lifted on a sound basis."

Rep. Monroney (D-Okla), who had voiced fear the OPA act would be "amended to death," said of Brown's amendment: "It's a compromise that should be acceptable to the administration and the opposition groups."

Housing Conference

FREDERICK, Md., April 3—(AP)—A prepresentative of the Federal Public Housing Authority was expected to meet today with Mayor Hugh V. Gittinger and City Engineer W. Raymond Walter to inspect proposed sites for temporary veterans' housing accommodations. The mayor said a contract with the FPHA for the housing units, approved by the board of aldermen, would be executed at a meeting tonight.

Wolcott commented: "It makes a very fine declaration of policy, but I don't think the amendment is strong enough for those who want decontrols. It's a step in the right direction."

The Brown amendment requires: "The price administrator (and the secretary of agriculture) shall proceed immediately to formulate a comprehensive plan for the progressive removal of price controls and subsidies in order that the return to a free market and to free collective bargaining may be accomplished on or before June 30, 1947, without disturbance of the national economy."

Orally, he amplified this with the warning: The reconversion apple cart would be upset if labor costs are included in a new farm parity formula, as proposed in a Senate move hitching a parity amendment to the minimum wage bill. Mr. Truman has stated he will veto the bill if the amendment hiking parity prices stays in.

Iran Is Prepared

out tonight stated that the Iranian case had been discussed.

The American view of the Russo-Iranian situation is reliably reported to be that the Security council must concern itself with trying to bring both sides together. The debate which has been under way for more than a week is not regarded as a "trial" but rather as an effort to clarify conflicting views and restore proper balance between the large powers and a small state.

Replies Beat Deadline

Just before the deadline fixed for their replies from their home governments, Gromyko assured the council by letter earlier in the day that Red army troops would be out of Iran early in May. Iran's spokesmen said that if unconditional evacuation was guaranteed by May 6 she would agree to suspend her complaints before the council.

Gromyko's letter was a rather stiff restatement of the Russian contention that evacuation of the Red army from Iran had begun March 24 and would be completed within six weeks, in accordance with an "understanding" with Iran.

But it contained the new assurance, for which the council had asked, that the withdrawal was not connected with other Russian-Iranian negotiations and United Nations officials further noted that it omitted the previous Russian condition that the evacuaion was to be completed unless "unforeseen circumstances" intervened.

Ala's formal letter denied again that there was an "understanding" concerning the Russian evacuation, indicating that Moscow merely had notified Tehran of its intentions in that regard, and added that this notification had coincided with presentaton of Russian memoranda proposing terms for an oil agreement and the status of Azerbaijan, the Iranian province that has declared autonomy with Russian encouragement.

Russia replied on time to the council's request for further information, to the obvious relief of everyone in the council chamber when the council met at 11:13 a. m., E.S.T. Iran also answered the request, both replies being delivered less than two hours before the council met.

He already was under indictment in the slaying of another red-haired woman in New Orleans and Chicago police sought him for questioning in the death of a third. The women's nude bodies were found in hotel bathrooms in both the New Orleans and Chicago cases.

McFarland, veteran of Guadalcanal, was convicted in the rape-killing of 18-year-old Dorothy Berrum. The garroted body of the tiny girl who came to Washington from her home in Chippewa Falls, Wis., was found in a Potomac river park October 5, 1944.

Medley is under sentence to be electrocuted April 30, and McFarland was first condemned to die last August 31. Both have appealed.

Attorney General Clark said the Justice department would make a "sweeping inquiry" at the request of District Commissioner John Russell Young.

Clark said in a statement that the inquiry would include previous breaks from the jail. Howard B. Gill was suspended as penal superintendent for the district after a series of earlier escapes.

Gill said in an interview that the district welfare board has failed in its responsibility to make the jail structurally safe and to provide an adequate guard force. Recalling that police were assigned to the jail after the escape of five prisoners last November 24, he asserted that the use of police inexperienced in guard work was a "direct result of the niggardly policy of using untrained and insufficient personnel at the jail."

millions of dollars worth of property.

The last body was brought out of the ruins of Hilo, hardest hit city in the islands, thereby removing the greatest peril of contagion.

Hilo and the rest of the island of Hawaii was swept almost bare of food when the seas washed away warehouses or ruined their stores with salt water. Hilo itself was so badly battered as to be unable to care for itself, and hundreds were being fed and sheltered at the United States naval air station.

Business was at a standstill. Citizens poked through the wreckage of what once were their homes and stores, looking for salvage.

The once-busy port was a scene of utter devastation. The harbor was choked with wreckage, and the million-dollar breakwater rent by the crushing force of the waves. Small craft lay beached.

He said, "Mrs. B's statement reads to me very much like an echo" of a speech made by Rep. Thomas D'Alesandro (D-Md) and a supporter of Tawes. Baldwin said he didn't feel D'Alesandro's speech was "worthy of an answer because I knew that Tommy was only doing what his political sponsor, Mr. (Attorney General William) Curran told him to do x x x."

He replied to Mrs. Bauernschmidt, he said, "because of her standing in the community."

Tawes said Prentiss W. Evans, of Somerset county, would be acting treasurer of his campaign headquarters with Mrs. Helen McCurdy in charge until permanent personnel was named.

Commenting on rumors that he would withdraw his gubernatorial candidacy, Tawes said the opening of headquarters "doesn't look as though we were backing out, does it?"

The Pro-O'Conor business and Professional Committee, a state-wide organization, is headed by Hilary W. Gans, Baltimore attorney. Mrs. M. Railroad Unions

ed a strike for March 11 but postponed it when President Truman appointed a fact-finding board to hear their case.

No Strike Vote Was Taken

The eighteen brotherhoods involved in today's award did not take a strike vote, consenting to binding arbitration instead.

Jewell said the non-operating employes would file notice on the carriers "promptly" for an additional increase.

Under the Railway Labor act, he said, the workers could reopen the "existing agreement" on thirty days notice, with the new demands subject to the same machinery which governed the original demands.

Labor members of the six-man arbitration board which heard the case of the non-operating unions said this provision of the act which Jewell referred to influenced them to agree on the amount of the awards.

The labor members, Felix H. Knight and E. E. Milliman, pointed out that "under the arbitration agreement the employes are free at any time to move in accordance with the Railway Labor act for a further increase and thus again press their claims of inequities which have received no consideration in this proceeding."

basic principles of royalty, safety and supervisory employes — then they will tell us what the meaning and cost of that might be," the statement continued. "At that time and in their discretion they may tell us what their other demands are.

"They cannot expect sane men to accept these proposals on such an ethereal basis, so the only conclusion logic directs, is that they do not want to make a contract with us.

"Highest" Wages Offered

"In this conference we have offered the highest wages ever paid coal miners. We have volunteered the highest offer made by any large industry since the end of the war. We have made direct and fair offers on every pertinent point raised by the UMW. They have all been dismissed with derision and contempt by the miners. They have demanded as a condition precedent to any negotiations on all other demands the acceptance by the operators of firm principles laid down by the miners.

"The acceptance of these principles precludes any negotiations—in the end having arrived before we start. No intimation of the meaning or cost has been given us by the miners."

UMW Secretary-treasurer Thomas Kennedy told reporters later that today's discussion of the foremen issue was a "thorough" one.

"Of course, they may say we again are domineering because we are standing on the decision of the National Labor Relations Board in the Jones and Laughlin case," Kennedy said. "We want the operators to accept the principle of that decision."

The NLRB ruled that certain supervisory workers are eligible for membership in and representation by Lewis's United Clerical, Technical and Supervisory Workers.

The Brown amendment requires: "The price administrator (and the secretary of agriculture) shall proceed immediately to formulate a comprehensive plan for the progressive removal of price controls and subsidies in order that the return to a free market and to free collective bargaining may be accomplished on or before June 30, 1947, without disturbance of the national economy."

The article, by John W. Owens, declared that "obviously the regulars of the Republican party are depending for victory solely upon reaction against the Truman administration." It added that "quite possibly" they could win in next fall's congressional elections and in the 1948 presidential campaign on such a basis.

Iran Is Prepared

out tonight stated that the Iranian case had been discussed.

The American view of the Russo-Iranian situation is reliably reported to be that the Security council must concern itself with trying to bring both sides together. The debate which has been under way for more than a week is not regarded as a "trial" but rather as an effort to clarify conflicting views and restore proper balance between the large powers and a small state.

Replies Beat Deadline

Just before the deadline fixed for their replies from their home governments, Gromyko assured the council by letter earlier in the day that Red army troops would be out of Iran early in May. Iran's spokesmen said that if unconditional evacuation was guaranteed by May 6 she would agree to suspend her complaints before the council.

Gromyko's letter was a rather stiff restatement of the Russian contention that evacuation of the Red army from Iran had begun March 24 and would be completed within six weeks, in accordance with an "understanding" with Iran.

But it contained the new assurance, for which the council had asked, that the withdrawal was not connected with other Russian-Iranian negotiations and United Nations officials further noted that it omitted the previous Russian condition that the evacuaion was to be completed unless "unforeseen circumstances" intervened.

Ala's formal letter denied again that there was an "understanding" concerning the Russian evacuation, indicating that Moscow merely had notified Tehran of its intentions in that regard, and added that this notification had coincided with presentaton of Russian memoranda proposing terms for an oil agreement and the status of Azerbaijan, the Iranian province that has declared autonomy with Russian encouragement.

Russia replied on time to the council's request for further information, to the obvious relief of everyone in the council chamber when the council met at 11:13 a. m., E.S.T. Iran also answered the request, both replies being delivered less than two hours before the council met.

tractive redhead, after a poker game in her luxurious apartment here March 6, 1945. He already was under indictment in the slaying of another red-haired woman in New Orleans and Chicago police sought him for questioning in the death of a third. The women's nude bodies were found in hotel bathrooms in both the New Orleans and Chicago cases.

McFarland, veteran of Guadalcanal, was convicted in the rape-killing of 18-year-old Dorothy Berrum. The garroted body of the tiny girl who came to Washington from her home in Chippewa Falls, Wis., was found in a Potomac river park October 5, 1944.

Medley is under sentence to be electrocuted April 30, and McFarland was first condemned to die last August 31. Both have appealed.

Attorney General Clark said the Justice department would make a "sweeping inquiry" at the request of District Commissioner John Russell Young.

Clark said in a statement that the inquiry would include previous breaks from the jail. Howard B. Gill was suspended as penal superintendent for the district after a series of earlier escapes.

Gill said in an interview that the district welfare board has failed in its responsibility to make the jail structurally safe and to provide an adequate guard force. Recalling that police were assigned to the jail after the escape of five prisoners last November 24, he asserted that the use of police inexperienced in guard work was a "direct result of the niggardly policy of using untrained and insufficient personnel at the jail."

millions of dollars worth of property.

The last body was brought out of the ruins of Hilo, hardest hit city in the islands, thereby removing the greatest peril of contagion.

Hilo and the rest of the island of Hawaii was swept almost bare of food when the seas washed away warehouses or ruined their stores with salt water. Hilo itself was so badly battered as to be unable to care for itself, and hundreds were being fed and sheltered at the United States naval air station.

Business was at a standstill. Citizens poked through the wreckage of what once were their homes and stores, looking for salvage.

The once-busy port was a scene of utter devastation. The harbor was choked with wreckage, and the million-dollar breakwater rent by the crushing force of the waves. Small craft lay beached.

Miss Payne Will Aid With "Y" Craft Work

Miss Pauline Payne, ninth-grade social studies teacher at Fort Hill high school, will aid with handicraft work for Junior A and B girls at Central YMCA each Thursday afternoon from 4 to 5, beginning today, according to Robert L. Sisson, general YMCA secretary.

A handicraft program for Rec club members will be instituted tomorrow evening from 8 to 9 o'clock, preceding the weekly Rec club dance, Sisson said. The program will be held each Friday at that time.

Motorcycle-Car Race Results in Arrests

Two local men who police reported were arrested while the vehicles they were operating were seen speeding on Maryland avenue early last evening, each posted $10 bonds for hearings in police court this morning on charges of careless driving.

They were booked as Powell E. Robinson, 203 Race street, and Arthur L. Lewis, 520 Maryland avenue. Police said the motorcycle Robinson was operating was in the lead of Lewis's car when they were arrested by Officer J. Carl Stouffer.

Baldwin Answers

tions and a charge that Baldwin's anti-CIO-Political Action Committee issue was "phoney."

He said, "Mrs. B's statement reads to me very much like an echo" of a speech made by Rep. Thomas D'Alesandro (D-Md) and a supporter of Tawes. Baldwin said he didn't feel D'Alesandro's speech was "worthy of an answer because I knew that Tommy was only doing what his political sponsor, Mr. (Attorney General William) Curran told him to do x x x."

He replied to Mrs. Bauernschmidt, he said, "because of her standing in the community."

Tawes said Prentiss W. Evans, of Somerset county, would be acting treasurer of his campaign headquarters with Mrs. Helen McCurdy in charge until permanent personnel was named.

Commenting on rumors that he would withdraw his gubernatorial candidacy, Tawes said the opening of headquarters "doesn't look as though we were backing out, does it?"

The Pro-O'Conor business and Professional Committee, a state-wide organization, is headed by Hilary W. Gans, Baltimore attorney. Mrs. M. Alice Carnoles, Democratic national committeewoman from Maryland, and Mrs. August Klecka, president of the United Democratic Women's Clubs, head the women's division.

Carlin, a real estate and insurance businessman, filed his certificate of candidacy with the secretary of state.

Railroad Unions

No Strike Vote Was Taken

The eighteen brotherhoods involved in today's award did not take a strike vote, consenting to binding arbitration instead.

Jewell said the non-operating employes would file notice on the carriers "promptly" for an additional increase.

Under the Railway Labor act, he said, the workers could reopen the "existing agreement" on thirty days notice, with the new demands subject to the same machinery which governed the original demands.

Labor members of the six-man arbitration board which heard the case of the non-operating unions said this provision of the act which Jewell referred to influenced them to agree on the amount of the awards.

The labor members, Felix H. Knight and E. E. Milliman, pointed out that "under the arbitration agreement the employes are free at any time to move in accordance with the Railway Labor act for a further increase and thus again press their claims of inequities which have received no consideration in this proceeding."

Operators Accuse

basic principles of royalty, safety and supervisory employes — then they will tell us what the meaning and cost of that might be," the statement continued. "At that time and in their discretion they may tell us what their other demands are.

"They cannot expect sane men to accept these proposals on such an ethereal basis, so the only conclusion logic directs, is that they do not want to make a contract with us.

"Highest" Wages Offered

"In this conference we have offered the highest wages ever paid coal miners. We have volunteered the highest offer made by any large industry since the end of the war. We have made direct and fair offers on every pertinent point raised by the UMW. They have all been dismissed with derision and contempt by the miners. They have demanded as a condition precedent to any negotiations on all other demands the acceptance by the operators of firm principles laid down by the miners.

"The acceptance of these principles precludes any negotiations—in the end having arrived before we start. No intimation of the meaning or cost has been given us by the miners."

UMW Secretary-treasurer Thomas Kennedy told reporters later that today's discussion of the foremen issue was a "thorough" one.

"Of course, they may say we again are domineering because we are standing on the decision of the National Labor Relations Board in the Jones and Laughlin case," Kennedy said. "We want the operators to accept the principle of that decision."

The NLRB ruled that certain supervisory workers are eligible for membership in and representation by Lewis's United Clerical, Technical and Supervisory Workers.

Suit for $2,500 Damages Filed In Circuit Court

A suit for $2,500 damages has been filed in circuit court by the mother of a youth who was badly injured in a traffic accident.

The action, filed for James Herpick, an infant, by his mother and next friend, Mrs. Gladys Herpick, this city, charges Charles F. Martin, also of Cumberland, with negligence. Martin was the driver of the automobile involved in the accident.

Some Facts To Consider In the Coal Situation

THERE ARE SOME who believe that John L. Lewis is going too far with demands for his coal miners, particularly with that for a royalty on coal production with which to defray costs of a health and welfare fund and safer working conditions. But in all fairness to him and his contentions, it would be well for objectors to keep some things in mind.

One is that there should not be prejudgment respecting the stand for wages and hours since these have not as yet been specified by Lewis in the negotiations now under way, having been held in abeyance awaiting agreement on other items.

Another is that, as pointed out by Mark Sullivan in his dispatch appearing elsewhere on this page, Lewis is neither defying the federal government nor the laws respecting labor contracts but is proceding in accordance with the provisions and privileges of the Wagner Labor Relations act, and the policies of the government under its present administration. If blame is to be attached, it must go to the Wagner law, its constructions and its administration.

Still another is the record of wage gains achieved by Lewis for his workers. While some may believe that he is now going too far in the face of existing unstable industrial conditions from which the nation is suffering, and which have deplorably halted the vital reconversion program—and they may have a case—it must be candidly admitted that Lewis had a long way to go.

The present coal strike is the eighth that has occurred in the bituminous mining indusery in the last twenty-seven years. This listing does not include sporadic wildcat strikes or walkouts in small producing areas, nor in the anthracite fields. These have been relatively few, however, in the soft coal industry. It is true that no group of workers has had greater advances in wage rates over the last dozen years than the coal miners. But when those wage raises began to be achieved, the coal miners were perhaps the most poorly paid of all industrial workers, particularly in consideration of the exceptional hazards of their occupation. And the industry was and had been for many years previously in a deplorably unstable and unsatisfactory condition, kicked around from pillar to post like an unwanted stepchild.

Not so long ago as 1933 the average weekly wage in bituminous coal mining was only $14.47—fifty cents an hour for an average week of twenty-nine and a half hours. How a coal miner could exist with such wages seems now incredible even considering relative living costs. At the time, the anthracite miners fared much better—receiving eighty-two cents an hour with an average work week of thirty-one and a half hours.

By 1936, the bituminous miners' average weekly pay had advanced from the pitiful $14.47 of 1933 to $22.71, still a niggardly return for the work done and the hazards involved. By 1939 the average had risen to $23.88; in 1942 it was $35.02 and by December of last year it had reached $58.20. In the same period, the average hourly wage advanced from fifty cents to $1.28. In 1942 the miners averaged thirty-three hours a week; last December the average was more than forty-five hours.

One of the bitter drawbacks in the earlier days was that the miners did not have opportunity for a longer working week, which thus cut their income, and the working opportunity had much to do in the question of wage advances. The main contention in all the disputes between miners and operators since the former attained organizational strength enough to press their demands has been the necessity of meeting cost-of-living increases.

It may be that now the chief questions involved in the present mine stoppage are those of the health, welfare and safety proposal and the controversial question of the organization of supervisory workers rather than wages. However that may be, the facts here set forth are entitled to weight in the formulation of public opinion; and it is likely that they can all be threshed out some way or other through the processes of collective bargaining, provided the miners and operators are permitted to maintain that and an officious government does not hinder it. At any rate, considering the key importance of the soft coal industry, it can only be so hoped.

Five-Star Rewards Are Justly Earned

WHATEVER FUNCTIONS President Truman may have in mind for his new advisory board on national defense, it is plain that one of his prime motives for nominating its members to hold their wartime rank permanently was to reward them for their services to the nation.

Mr. Truman pointed out that the effect of his action would be to confirm the ten generals and admirals on the list in their wartime grades as long as they live. Thus they will receive full pay and emoluments, he said, and it will not be necessary for them to go to work for an advertising agency or an airplane company. He added with evident satisfaction that for once a republic has been fair to the people who brought it through one of the world's greatest emergencies.

As for their duties, the president contented himself with explaining that the services of these wartime military leaders will be available in peacetime on a consultative basis. He did not indicate how often they will be called in or what specific problems will be placed before them. In the circumstances, it seems farfetched to say that the board represents an extension of the Joint Chiefs of Staff arrangement that directed American arms during the war.

But if the board should turn out to be nothing more than a device for treating its members with special consideration, no one will say that such consideration is anything but deserved. Every one of these generals and admirals more than earned the right to wear his wartime stars for life. It is not the American custom to vote its military great cash gifts and of course there are no titles to bestow.

And the Consumer Is Hit as Usual

THINGS have come to a pretty pass when food retailers feel obliged to refuse selling meats as a protest against OPA meat regulations.

That is what has happened in St. Paul, where members of the St. Paul Retailers' Association have voted to sell no meat in that city during the period of April 15-21 as a method of protest. According to Earl Altnow, association secretary, "ninety per cent of the meat now being sold in St. Paul is black market meat," and "the food dealers do not want to handle that sort of meat."

They cannot be blamed for that. But the Minneapolis Meat Dealers' Association doesn't think it is the right way of seeking relief from an intolerable situation. "I can't see that such a program will do any good," says J. H. Elliott, its president, "and it will only result in 'taking it out' on the consumers. This does not mean that we are not opposed to OPA regulations and practices also, but we can't see that spite work will do any good in a bad situation."

Elliott has somewhat of a case there, but it may be that spite work, if it may be so called, represents a last desperate resort for those who would correct inequitable regulations. Anyway, it is hoped responsible authority will be moved to do something remedial in a situation that probably is more or less typical.

W. Milnor Roberts A Splendid Citizen

CUMBERLAND has lost an exceptionally splendid citizen in the passing of William Milnor Roberts, a substantial figure in the life of this community over a long period.

Although he retired as a leading local utility executive a number of years ago and only gave attention to his extensive property interests here and in British Columbia, to the latter of which he made frequent journeys, he continued an alert interest in all community affairs, in which he always exhibited a progressive spirit.

Third in a distinguished generation of civil engineers, with an internationally famed engineer as the first of the line, which is perpetuating the same honored name into the fifth, Mr. Roberts carried on the family tradition in the profession in accord with its highest ethical ideals.

Mr. Roberts was a most companionable man and his cheery good nature, his forward outlook and the interesting reminiscences that came in his late life from his broad experiences endeared him to a multitude of people here and elsewhere. He held a place of eminence and respect in the community which his passing terminates to the profound regret of all his friends and acquaintances. It was good to have had him here so long and so interestingly.

Some 4,000 animals, mostly rats, will be on the atomic bomb ships for experimental purposes. Only a few pigs are included. Since the Henry Wallace episode, the government is somewhat careful about pigs.

"It's no fun being in Congress these days," Representative Dewey Short, of Missouri, declared in facing a deluge of mail from home. A lot of other congressmen have found that out, too.

OPA, planning to investigate the beef situation, may find—in the language of bureaucracy—that unslaughtered cattle butter no parsnips.

WHERE THEY PLOW AND PLANT

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

I have always felt that the truest Congress of a free people remains stationed among those who plow and plant—the producers of food, the free thinkers, with all Nature advising and instructing them. It's out there where the destiny and happiness of a nation are conceived.

The city thinker is too much personally concerned. Those who shape our laws should be most concerned about what those who plow and plant back home are thinking. The late William Allen White, living in a small Western town of the United States, became a veritable "listening post" for those who plowed and planted—and the entire nation listened and gave heed to his words of wisdom, interpretation and counsel.

Out where they plow and plant, they read the Bible, as well as the newspaper. They are quite accurate appraisers of the essential values. They are not nose-led by some selfish and unscrupulous politician. They have an inward adviser, and an outward one, in the form of Nature, and an upward one, whom they look upon as God.

Millet, the great French artist, immortalized these tillers of the soil whose feet were always planted solidly to the earth, and whose minds centered upon the simple and enduring things of life. An etching by this great artist hangs upon the walls of my office, and it inspires me daily as I look upon it. It is called "The Workers." I have another that is entitled "The Diggers." You cannot stray very far from happiness when you work and dig! At least you gain personal satisfaction by creative acts.

The years that I spent, as a boy, among those who plow and plant are among my choicest in memory. They have enriched all the years that have followed. What an inspiring fame is that of Cromwell, who left his plow to rule for a time over a great nation! There ought to be more of the smell of dirt scattered in the halls of our lawmakers and national leaders. We would be less distrustful of ther efforts and have greater confidence in their decisions.

May we never, as a people, turn our eyes away from those great servants of hope and enduring democracy, they who plow and plant!

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Hannegan Forms "Task Force" of Brain Trusters To Help Push Truman Projects

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, April 3.—About six weeks ago Postmaster General Hannegan organized a group of young brain trusters known as "Hannegan's Task Force" to help push legislation and various other Truman projects.

But too much publicity apparently worried someone in high places, and the project was dropped. Last week, however, Hannegan quietly invited the same "Task Force" to lunch in his office, and gave them the go signal for an all-out drive to push President Truman's legislative program through Congress.

"I want you to know," Hannegan said at the start, "that President Truman has personally approved the participation of each and every one of you fellows in this undertaking. We mean business and we're going ahead. We've got to get this legislative program through."

Hannegan then referred to the fact that at least one cabinet member, Secretary of the Treasury Vinson, had frowned on the idea of any treasury aides working on Hannegan's committee.

"Don't you worry about what anyone tells you," said the postmaster general, "I'll take care of anyone who gets in trouble. I'm not worried about making anybody in Washington angry with me except the president. And I've got his full backing."

Complaint Is Lodged

Some of those present complained about the lack of effective liaison between the White House and Congress. Assistant Secretary of Labor John W. Gibson was especially vigorous on this point.

"I talk to a senator," explained Gibson, "and tell him what I believe is the administration's view on the minimum wage bill. I get my instructions from Secretary Schwellenbach, whom the president has placed in charge of labor matters. Then Sen. Ellender calls upon John Snyder and Snyder tells him something entirely different. Then Claude Pepper calls up John Steelman at the White House and Steelman says something entirely different again. The poor senators don't know where they are."

Hannegan explained that he was working on the problem of White House liaison with Congress, but agreed that there were still too many cross-currents.

He also urged the importance of concentrating on passage of the minimum wage bill.

Creekmore Fath, of John Snyder's office, then called attention to the hundreds of lobbyists who were torpedoing the Truman legislative program, and the fact that they had unlimited money to spend on congressmen.

"I know all about that money," replied Hannegan. "During the war they came to Washington on legitimate business and were able to deduct what they spent from their taxes as a legitimate expense. The lobbying they do now is entirely different."

It was then revealed that Internal Revenue Commissioner Joe Nunan would investigate the lush expense of lobbyists.

Note—Others present at the task force meeting included: Leon Henderson, Assistant Postmaster Gael Sullivan, OPA's Herbert Fields, Justice Department's Graham Morrison, Commerce Department's Joel Fischer, Charles Kramer, of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, with Joe Dubois and Randolph Feltus, of the treasury.

Prohibition Again?

It hasn't got much publicity but prohibition is reported gaining in leaps and bounds in local option elections throughout the country.

Four new counties, including two in Arkansas and one in Florida, have changed from the wet to the dry column in the last two months, while prohibition crusaders have launched big drives in Indiana and other states to make them bone dry.

"Yes, we're going to dry Indiana up again," boasted L. E. York, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon League, in a radio broadcast.

In some areas, prohibition leaders are placing signs on children near polling places to urge voters to cast a dry ballot.

Meanwhile few people realize that of the 3,070 counties in the United States, 952—or more than one-fourth—are now dry.

However, despite the strides that have been made by dry forces, Congress probably will not be pressured into adopting another prohibition amendment to the Constitution for at least two reasons:

(1) The opposition of GI war veterans, and (2) lost of federal tax revenues. In 1945, the federal government collected $2,400,000,000 and state governments $600,000,000 in taxes on alcoholic beverages.

Going In Right Direction

It was just twenty-five years ago that the United States was host to another great diplomatic gathering—the Washington arms conference, attended by the world's leading statesmen—Charles Evan Hughes, Lord Balfour, of England; Aristide Briand, of France; Premier Kato, of Japan. They were men big enough to speak for their governments without having each semicolan in their speeches cabled from home. They were also able to speak eloquently, so eloquently that they could change votes and mould public opinion.

That was a day when there was great hope for peace. The United States had conceived the idea that if we took the lead in scrapping our battleships, our idealism would be contageous and other nations would follow suit.

There followed other conferences, the Geneva naval conference of 1927, th London naval conference of 1930, plus various League of Nations disarmament conferences, too numerous to mention. With each one, a little more of the world's hope, a little more of the brave new idealism which the United States gave the Washington arms conference in 1921 ebbed away. The conferees, especially the Americans, became more cynical, more discouraged, more disillusioned.

Even Aristide Briand, veteran crusader for a warless world, no longer was stirred to empassioned bursts of eloquence. He sat at the delegates' table and dozed, a discouraged old man. He had spent a lifetime battling for disarmament and he had failed.

Litvinoff Active

One of those who consistently strove for disarmament at Geneva was the Russian foreign minister, Maxim Litvinoff. He was always present, always the center of newspaper attention, always made headlines with his demand that nations disband their armies and navies entirely. Perhaps it was because Russia didn't have a big army in those days, or perhaps because it was smart policy to needle the capitalistic countries. Anyway Litvinoff consistently pooh-poohed the American-British formulas for 5-5-3 rations on battleships, or for limiting the number of 10,000-ton cruisers, he wanted to abolish all armament.

A lot of things have changed since then—both in Moscow and New York. Russia today has the greatest army in the world. She has kept on calling new men to the colors to replace discharged veterans until her army today is just as strong as during the war. And the United States which had been looking forward to its old peacetime volunteer army, now awaits President Truman's speech at Chicago when he expects to call for a conscript army of one and a half million men—the first time in history that we have ever dreamed of such a force in days of peace.

In New York, meanwhile the colorful, daring Litvinoff has been replaced by a messenger-boy ambassador who sits at one end of a telegraph key and is afraid to get out of his limousine without cabled instructions from Moscow.

Gone is the oratory, the statesmanship, the drama of the old conferences. The only delegate at New York big enough to speak for his country is Jimmy Byrnes. The others must get play-by-play instructions from home.

It's like a chess game, with each cautious player consulting a book of rules before he moves.

But despite these pessimistic overtones, certain encouraging factors are in the background of the UNO meeting in New York. In the first place American public opinion, in fact most of world opinion, is more alert and intelligent than ever before. Perhaps susceptible to this, the Soviet government, powerful as it is, springs from flouting world opinion—too flagrantly.

It wants its own way and may take its own sweet time about answering notes. But it won't go to war over Iran or anything else short of an invasion of its own territory. And when you remember that not so many years ago the czar fought a bloody war in the Crimea over the question of Turkey, then perhaps despite all the discouragement, we are slowly stumbling along in the right direction.

Bilbo vs. Mauldin

An unusual meeting took place the other night between Mississippi's Senator Theodore Bilbo and famous GI Cartoonist Bill Mauldin. They bumped into each other at a buffet supper, which Democratic Chairman Bob Hannegan threw to harmonize further dissident Democrats.

By and large, Hannegan's affair was a big success. Not so, when it came to making Mauldin and Bilbo think alike. Here's what happened:

"Oh, you're the cartoonist, aren't you?" Bilbo asked, when introduced to Mauldin. "I have appeared in your cartoons."

"Yeah," Mauldin replied, "with an egg on your head."

Bilbo sizzled.

"Where you living now?" asked the gentleman from Mississippi.

"Right now I haven't got a home," declared the youthful artist. "I'm what your friend, John Rankin, would call a fellow traveler. I keep moving around."

"I've just changed twenty tenant families down in Mississippi," Bilbo replied. "Come on down. I'll give you one of those farms."

Mauldin said he would have to think that one over, but meanwhile he would like to come up to Bilbo's office for a visit.

"Yeah? Come on up," Bilbo said. "You know, my son acts as a bouncer up there. He's six feet tall, weighs 200 pounds, and used to be a prize fighter. We'll all be glad to have you come up."

"Well, I'll do that," replied Mauldin, who weighs less than 140 pounds. "One of us will leave educated."

Lewis Does Not Defy Government, Mark Sullivan Says

By MARK SULLIVAN

It is true Mr. John L. Lewis's coal strike is contrary to the country's interests, flagrantly so. It is certain to slow down production of goods, practically halt it if the strike is prolonged. And it is mathematically certain to push the inflation spiral farther upward.

But it is misleading to say Mr. Lewis is "defying the government," and flatly incorrect to say he is defying the law. The record will show, I think, that Mr. Lewis is punctilious about observing the law. Yet to say this is not to say much. For Mr. Lewis, by his political power and personal force, has had a strong hand in bringing about the laws which make him and other labor leaders powerful.

When these laws were being written, early in the Roosevelt administration, Mr. Lewis on one occasion went to the White House. He gave President Roosevelt a list of five senators, saying that if Mr. Roosevelt would ask them they would vote for a provision which Mr. Lewis desired in a pending labor bill. Mr. Roosevelt gave him a quizzical look, meditated a moment, then lifted his telephone to call the senators.

Distinction Is Marked

This brings up a distinction between government and, on the other hand, the individuals who compose government, the administration. Again and again, as if he took pleasure in it, Mr. Lewis has in recent years defied the administration, and got away with it.

In December 1941 Mr. Lewis conducted a strike to impose the closed shop on a group of mines. President Roosevelt, after several requests to Mr. Lewis that he end the strike, gave out what sounded like an ultimatum; he said the administration would never grant, and Congress would never enact, a closed shop. Mr. Lewis continued the strike. To settle it, Mr. Roosevelt appointed an arbitration board. It consisted of Mr. Lewis himself, a coal-mine operator, and an administration official from the department of Labor. The official was given formal leave so that, one assumes, his decision might not have the status of an administration action. The arbitration board gave Mr. Lewis a closed shop.

Roosevelt Request Ignored

Again, during the war, an administration agency, the War Labor Board, worked out a form of contract between Mr. Lewis and the coal operators, and directed both to sign it. Scornfully, Mr. Lewis refused. The War Labor Board asked President Roosevelt to require Mr. Lewis to comply with its direction. Mr. Roosevelt, replying to a question at a press conference, asked what could he do, should he write Mr. Lewis a nice polite note on pink paper? Mr. Lewis continued not to sign.

Again, in 1943, the then assistant to the president, now Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, in a speech dealing with wartime strikes and threats of strikes by Mr. Lewis's miners' union and others, said: "Any group which threatens to strike in war time unless the . . . government meets its demands, is using a political pistol." Adopting a phrase in a then popular song, Mr. Byrnes added, "The government must say to any such group, 'Lay that pistol down'." But the administration did not act in that spirit. What it really said to Mr. Lewis was, in effect, please don't shoot. Mr. Lewis won his demands.

Defiance Unnecessary

What has happened is that men composing government have yielded to Mr. Lewis, partly because of his personal force, partly out of deference to the political power of labor generally. Mr. Lewis has not defied government. He did not need to. For government in the broad sense, including the administration and Congress, has given away its power to resist Mr. Lewis and other labor unions and leaders.

Government did this ten years ago by enactment of the National Labor Relations act (the "Wagner act"). That surrender of power by government, and conferring of it upon labor leaders and unions, was increased by decisions made and precedents established by men in government—the men who composed the personnel of the board which administered the Wagner act, the National Labor Relations Board. This board and its staff extended the power conferred on labor leaders and unions beyond what, it is safe to assume, Congress had intended when it passed the Wagner act.

Right now Congress is midway of withdrawing some of the power it conferred. A measure limiting the powers of labor unions and leaders, the Case bill, has passed the House, by a nearly two-thirds majority. Action by the Senate is in order. Whether the Senate acts is the really important question raised by Mr. Lewis's strike, and others.

Lawrence Scores Speech by Benton On Propaganda

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, April 3.—If William Benton, assistant secretary of state, had tried to find a way to disqualify himself as the head of the information service of the department of State, he could have chosen no better means of accomplishing that objective than by making the speech he delivered in New York city last Sunday before the Newspaperwomen's Club and over a nationwide radio network.

Mr. Benton, having been thwarted in a minor part of his plan to distribute information to foreign countries, now attacks the motives of the Associated Press—America's largest news-gathering agency—and accuses the directors of that organization of being "against the government," just because they don't want to sell their news service to be used by our government propaganda stations abroad.

Mr. Benton ridicules the idea that if a press association takes money from the government, it could be corrupted. He says that the Associated Press and United Press could prove their disinterestedness and incorruptibility in other ways. But what Mr. Benton does not know is that he is dealing with a condition and not a theory. When news other than its own announcements is disseminated by a government, such news is viewed with suspicion abroad.

Nazis Imitated

Somehow or another, there are a good many Americans who, while denying vehemently that the Nazis did anything worthwhile, are inadvertently imitating the Nazis. The effort here to establish a big propaganda machine is a curious sequel to the Nazi operations in foreign lands.

There is pending before Congress an appropriation bill which would give funds to the department of State to carry on worldwide propaganda. When it is argued that propaganda ought not to be used by the government of the United States, scripts of radio broadcasts or articles to be disseminated are usually submitted to the critic, who is asked to find a single piece of improper phraseology. But the fact of the matter is that the innocuous words issued by press associations or newspapers take on an entirely different significance when issued by the government of the United States.

Propaganda Suspect

The whole world is suspicious of propaganda, and when the great government of the United States goes into the propaganda business, liberals everywhere must recognize that the clock is being turned back.

During the war, the OWI carried on propaganda and expressed editorial opinions of its own. Much of it would not be tolerated in peacetime, and yet some of the very statements issued by the OWI during the war which had a bearing on domestic politics were the subject of criticism, and the usual denial was made that no intention to influence political thought in this country was in the minds of the writers of the scripts or articles. But the effect was there just the same.

Mr. Benton has a big job and there are many parts of his program that are notable, such as the furnishing of texts of documents and other information to our own embassies and legations abroad. But he is jeopardizing the entire program by his controversy with the two press associations.

Specious Argument

The experience of the press associations of the United States in dealing with foreign countries extends over many years and they know from past controversies how important it is for them not to.

Allow their products to be mingled with government propaganda. The specious argument is made that they sell their material to other governments which send out their news. But these other governments know that the integrity of the Associated Press and the United Press is unblemished, because both of these organizations have steadfastly refused to allow the government of the United States, either directly or indirectly, to influence them in their presentation of the news.

There is no reason why the department of State should not issue texts of its own or statements on its own authority. But if it attempts, through subterfuge, to put out information with editorial expressions of its own and interlace this with news that it gets from news agencies, it would be putting out a service for which Congress ought not to appropriate one cent.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

The California rainy season just past has been a big disappointment. It's been so dry I took a ride down Hollywood Boulevard and struck three sand bars.

I think that dry spell is a huge plot on the part of Turhan Bey's agents. They want to transform Hollywood into a desert so Turhan will be in great demand for Arab pictures.

And that weather has had an unusual effect on crops out here . . . they're coming up!

Los Angeles public officials are worrying so much that just to conserve the water supply they've asked W. C. Fields to cut down on the chasers.

And the water holes around the country are so dried up that Dorothy Lamour spotted a wolf at her swimming pool one night and took a shot at him . . . but I ducked in time.

It's really amazing the way things are dried to a crisp. In fact, every time Ann Sothern starts chewing gum . . . the neighbors three blocks away complain about the noise.

Some Facts To Consider In the Coal Situation

THERE ARE SOME who believe that John L. Lewis is going too far with demands for his coal miners, particularly with that for a royalty on coal production with which to defray costs of a health and welfare fund and safer working conditions. But in all fairness to him and his contentions, it would be well for objectors to keep some things in mind.

One is that there should not be prejudgment respecting the stand for wages and hours since these have not as yet been specified by Lewis in the negotiations now under way, having been held in abeyance awaiting agreement on other items.

Another is that, as pointed out by Mark Sullivan in his dispatch appearing elsewhere on this page, Lewis is neither defying the federal government nor the laws respecting labor contracts but is proceding in accordance with the provisions and privileges of the Wagner Labor Relations act, and the policies of the government under its present administration. If blame is to be attached, it must go to the Wagner law, its constructions and its administration.

Still another is the record of wage gains achieved by Lewis for his workers. While some may believe that he is now going too far in the face of existing unstable industrial conditions from which the nation is suffering, and which have deplorably halted the vital reconversion program—and they may have a case—it must be candidly admitted that Lewis had a long way to go.

The present coal strike is the eighth that has occurred in the bituminous mining industery in the last twenty-seven years. This listing does not include sporadic wildcat strikes or walkouts in small producing areas, nor in the anthracite fields. These have been relatively few, however, in the soft coal industry. It is true that no group of workers has had greater advances in wage rates over the last dozen years than the coal miners. But when those wage raises began to be achieved, the coal miners were perhaps the most poorly paid of all industrial workers, particularly in consideration of the exceptional hazards of their occupation. And the industry was and had been for many years previously in a deplorably unstable and unsatisfactory condition, kicked around from pillar to post like an unwanted stepchild.

Not so long ago as 1933 the average weekly wage in bituminous coal mining was only $14.47—fifty cents an hour for an average week of twenty-nine and a half hours. How a coal miner could exist with such wages seems now incredible even considering relative living costs. At the time, the anthracite miners fared much better—receiving eighty-two cents an hour with an average work week of thirty-one and a half hours.

By 1936, the bituminous miners' average weekly pay had advanced from the pitiful $14.47 of 1933 to $22.71, still a niggardly return for the work done and the hazards involved. By 1939 the average had risen to $23.88; in 1942 it was $35.02 and by December of last year it had reached $58.20. In the same period, the average hourly wage advanced from fifty cents to $1.28. In 1942 the miners averaged thirty-three hours a week; last December the average was more than forty-five hours.

One of the bitter drawbacks in the earlier days was that the miners did not have opportunity for a longer working week, which thus cut their income, and the working opportunity had much to do in the question of wage advances. The main contention in all the disputes between miners and operators since the former attained organizational strength enough to press their demands has been the necessity of meeting cost-of-living increases.

It may be that now the chief questions involved in the present mine stoppage are those of the health, welfare and safety proposal and the controversial question of the organization of supervisory workers rather than wages. However that may be, the facts here set forth are entitled to weight in the formulation of public opinion; and it is likely that they can all be threshed out some way or other through the processes of collective bargaining, provided the miners and operators are permitted to maintain that and an officious government does not hinder it. At any rate, considering the key importance of the soft coal industry, it can only be so hoped.

Five-Star Rewards Are Justly Earned

WHATEVER FUNCTIONS President Truman may have in mind for his new advisory board on national defense, it is plain that one of his prime motives for nominating its members to hold their wartime rank permanently was to reward them for their services to the nation.

Mr. Truman pointed out that the effect of his action would be to confirm the ten generals and admirals on the list in their wartime grades as long as they live. Thus they will receive full pay and emoluments, he said, and it will not be necessary for them to go to work for an advertising agency or an airplane company. He added with evident satisfaction that for once a republic has been fair to the people who brought it through one of the world's greatest emergencies.

As for their duties, the president contented himself with explaining that the services of these wartime military leaders will be available in peacetime on a consultative basis. He did not indicate how often they will be called in or what specific problems will be placed before them. In the circumstances, it seems farfetched to say that the board represents an extension of the Joint Chiefs of Staff arrangement that directed American arms during the war.

But if the board should turn out to be nothing more than a device for treating its members with special consideration, no one will say that such consideration is anything but deserved. Every one of these generals and admirals more than earned the right to wear his wartime stars for life. It is not the American custom to vote its military great cash gifts and of course there are no titles to bestow.

And the Consumer Is Hit as Usual

THINGS have come to a pretty pass when food retailers feel obliged to refuse selling meats as a protest against OPA meat regulations.

That is what has happened in St. Paul, where members of the St. Paul Retailers' Association have voted to sell no meat in that city during the period of April 15-21 as a method of protest. According to Earl Altnow, association secretary, "ninety per cent of the meat now being sold in St. Paul is black market meat," and "the food dealers do not want to handle that sort of meat."

They cannot be blamed for that. But the Minneapolis Meat Dealers' Association doesn't think it is the right way of seeking relief from an intolerable situation. "I can't see that such a program will do any good," says J. H. Elliott, its president, "and it will only result in 'taking it out' on the consumers. This does not mean that we are not opposed to OPA regulations and practices also, but we can't see that spite work will do any good in a bad situation."

Elliott has somewhat of a case there, but it may be that spite work, if it may be so called, represents a last desperate resort for those who would correct inequitable regulations. Anyway, it is hoped responsible authority will be moved to do something remedial in a situation that probably is more or less typical.

W. Milnor Roberts A Splendid Citizen

CUMBERLAND has lost an exceptionally splendid citizen in the passing of William Milnor Roberts, a substantial figure in the life of this community over a long period.

Although he retired as a leading local utility executive a number of years ago and only gave attention to his extensive property interests here and in British Columbia, to the latter of which he made frequent journeys, he continued an alert interest in all community affairs, in which he always exhibited a progressive spirit.

Third in a distinguished generation of civil engineers, with an internationally famed engineer as the first of the line, which is perpetuating the same honored name into the fifth, Mr. Roberts carried on the family tradition in the profession in accord with its highest ethical ideals.

Mr. Roberts was a most companionable man and his cheery good nature, his forward outlook and the interesting reminiscences that came in his late life from his broad experiences endeared him to a multitude of people here and elsewhere. He held a place of eminence and respect in the community which his passing terminates to the profound regret of all his friends and acquaintances. It was good to have had him here so long and so interestingly.

Some 4,000 animals, mostly rats, will be on the atomic bomb ships for experimental purposes. Only a few pigs are included. Since the Henry Wallace episode, the government is somewhat careful about pigs.

"It's no fun being in Congress these days," Representative Dewey Short, of Missouri, declared in facing a deluge of mail from home. A lot of other congressmen have found that out, too.

OPA, planning to investigate the beef situation, may find—in the language of bureaucracy—that unslaughtered cattle butter no parsnips.

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

I have always felt that the truest Congress of a free people remains stationed among those who plow and plant—the producers of food, the free thinkers, with all Nature advising and instructing them. It's out there where the destiny and happiness of a nation are conceived.

The city thinker is too much personally concerned. Those who shape our laws should be most concerned about what those who plow and plant back home are thinking. The late William Allen White, living in a small Western town of the United States, became a veritable "listening post" for those who plowed and planted—and the entire nation listened and gave heed to his words of wisdom, interpretation and counsel.

Out where they plow and plant, they read the Bible, as well as the newspaper. They are quite accurate appraisers of the essential values. They are not nose-led by some selfish and unscrupulous politician. They have an inward adviser, and an outward one, in the form of Nature, and an upward one, whom they look upon as God.

Millet, the great French artist, immortalized these tillers of the soil whose feet were always planted solidly to the earth, and whose minds centered upon the simple and enduring things of life. An etching by this great artist hangs upon the walls of my office, and it inspires me daily as I look upon it. It is called "The Workers." I have another that is entitled "The Diggers." You cannot stray very far from happiness when you work and dig! At least you gain personal satisfaction by creative acts.

The years that I spent, as a boy, among those who plow and plant are among my choicest in memory. They have enriched all the years that have followed. What an inspiring fame is that of Cromwell, who left his plow to rule for a time over a great nation! There ought to be more of the smell of dirt scattered in the halls of our lawmakers and national leaders. We would be less distrustful of ther efforts and have greater confidence in their decisions.

May we never, as a people, turn our eyes away from those great servants of hope and enduring democracy, they who plow and plant!

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, April 3.—About six weeks ago Postmaster General Hannegan organized a group of young brain trusters known as "Hannegan's Task Force" to help push legislation and various other Truman projects.

But too much publicity apparently worried someone in high places, and the project was dropped. Last week, however, Hannegan quietly invited the same "Task Force" to lunch in his office, and gave them the go signal for an all-out drive to push President Truman's legislative program through Congress.

"I want you to know," Hannegan said at the start, "that President Truman has personally approved the participation of each and every one of you fellows in this undertaking. We mean business and we're going ahead. We've got to get this legislative program through."

Hannegan then referred to the fact that at least one cabinet member, Secretary of the Treasury Vinson, had frowned on the idea of any treasury aides working on Hannegan's committee.

"Don't you worry about what anyone tells you," said the postmaster general, "I'll take care of anyone who gets in trouble. I'm not worried about making anybody in Washington angry with me except the president. And I've got his full backing."

Complaint Is Lodged

Some of those present complained about the lack of effective liaison between the White House and Congress. Assistant Secretary of Labor John W. Gibson was especially vigorous on this point.

"I talk to a senator," explained Gibson, "and tell him what I believe is the administration's view on the minimum wage bill. I get my instructions from Secretary Schwellenbach, whom the president has placed in charge of labor matters. Then Sen. Ellender calls upon John Snyder and Snyder tells him something entirely different. Then Claude Pepper calls up John Steelman at the White House and Steelman says something entirely different again. The poor senators don't know where they are."

Hannegan explained that he was working on the problem of White House liaison with Congress, but agreed that there were still too many cross-currents.

He also urged the importance of concentrating on passage of the minimum wage bill.

Creekmore Fath, of John Snyder's office, then called attention to the hundreds of lobbyists who were torpedoing the Truman legislative program, and the fact that they had unlimited money to spend on congressmen.

"I know all about that money," replied Hannegan. "During the war they came to Washington on legitimate business and were able to deduct what they spent from their taxes as a legitimate expense. The lobbying they do now is entirely different."

It was then revealed that Internal Revenue Commissioner Joe Nunan would investigate the lush expense of lobbyists.

Note—Others present at the task force meeting included: Leon Henderson, Assistant Postmaster Gael Sullivan, OPA's Herbert Fields, Justice Department's Graham Morrison, Commerce Department's Joel Fischer, Charles Kramer, of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, with Joe Dubois and Randolph Feltus, of the treasury.

Prohibition Again?

It hasn't got much publicity but prohibition is reported gaining in leaps and bounds in local option elections throughout the country.

Four new counties, including two in Arkansas and one in Florida, have changed from the wet to the dry column in the last two months, while prohibition crusaders have launched big drives in Indiana and other states to make them bone dry.

"Yes, we're going to dry Indiana up again," boasted L. E. York, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon League, in a radio broadcast.

In some areas, prohibition leaders are placing signs on children near polling places to urge voters to cast a dry ballot.

Meanwhile few people realize that of the 3,070 counties in the United States, 952—or more than one-fourth—are now dry.

However, despite the strides that have been made by dry forces, Congress probably will not be pressured into adopting another prohibition amendment to the Constitution for at least two reasons:

(1) The opposition of GI war veterans, and (2) lost of federal tax revenues. In 1945, the federal government collected $2,400,000,000 and state governments $600,000,000 in taxes on alcoholic beverages.

Going In Right Direction

It was just twenty-five years ago that the United States was host to another great diplomatic gathering—the Washington arms conference, attended by the world's leading statesmen—Charles Evan Hughes, Lord Balfour, of England; Aristide Briand, of France; Premier Kato, of Japan. They were men big enough to speak for their governments without having each semicolan in their speeches cabled from home. They were also able to speak eloquently, so eloquently that they could change votes and mould public opinion.

That was a day when there was great hope for peace. The United States had conceived the idea that if we took the lead in scrapping our battleships, our idealism would be contageous and other nations would follow suit.

There followed other conferences, the Geneva naval conference of 1927, th London naval conference of 1930, plus various League of Nations disarmament conferences, too numerous to mention. With each one, a little more of the world's hope, a little more of the brave new idealism which the United States gave the Washington arms conference in 1921 ebbed away. The conferees, especially the Americans, became more cynical, more discouraged, more disillusioned.

Even Aristide Briand, veteran crusader for a warless world, no longer was stirred to empassioned bursts of eloquence. He sat at the delegates' table and dozed, a discouraged old man. He had spent a lifetime battling for disarmament and he had failed.

Litvinoff Active

One of those who consistently strove for disarmament at Geneva was the Russian foreign minister, Maxim Litvinoff. He was always present, always the center of newspaper attention, always made headlines with his demand that nations disband their armies and navies entirely. Perhaps it was because Russia didn't have a big army in those days, or perhaps because it was smart policy to needle the capitalistic countries. Anyway Litvinoff consistently pooh-poohed the American-British formulas for 5-5-3 rations on battleships, or for limiting the number of 10,000-ton cruisers, he wanted to abolish all armament.

A lot of things have changed since then—both in Moscow and New York. Russia today has the greatest army in the world. She has kept on calling new men to the colors to replace discharged veterans until her army today is just as strong as during the war. And the United States which had been looking forward to its old peacetime volunteer army, now awaits President Truman's speech at Chicago when he expects to call for a conscript army of one and a half million men—the first time in history that we have ever dreamed of such a force in days of peace.

In New York, meanwhile the colorful, daring Litvinoff has been replaced by a messenger-boy ambassador who sits at one end of a telegraph key and is afraid to get out of his limousine without cabled instructions from Moscow.

Gone is the oratory, the statesmanship, the drama of the old conferences. The only delegate at New York big enough to speak for his country is Jimmy Byrnes. The others must get play-by-play instructions from home.

It's like a chess game, with each cautious player consulting a book of rules before he moves.

But despite these pessimistic overtones, certain encouraging factors are in the background of the UNO meeting in New York. In the first place American public opinion, in fact most of world opinion, is more alert and intelligent than ever before. Perhaps susceptible to this, the Soviet government, powerful as it is, springs from flouting world opinion—too flagrantly.

It wants its own way and may take its own sweet time about answering notes. But it won't go to war over Iran or anything else short of an invasion of its own territory. And when you remember that not so many years ago the czar fought a bloody war in the Crimea over the question of Turkey, then perhaps despite all the discouragement, we are slowly stumbling along in the right direction.

Bilbo vs. Mauldin

An unusual meeting took place the other night between Mississippi's Senator Theodore Bilbo and famous GI Cartoonist Bill Mauldin. They bumped into each other at a buffet supper, which Democratic Chairman Bob Hannegan threw to harmonize further dissident Democrats.

By and large, Hannegan's affair was a big success. Not so, when it came to making Mauldin and Bilbo think alike. Here's what happened:

"Oh, you're the cartoonist, aren't you?" Bilbo asked, when introduced to Mauldin. "I have appeared in your cartoons."

"Yeah," Mauldin replied, "with an egg on your head."

Bilbo sizzled.

"Where you living now?" asked the gentleman from Mississippi.

"Right now I haven't got a home," declared the youthful artist. "I'm what your friend, John Rankin, would call a fellow traveler. I keep moving around."

"I've just changed twenty tenant families down in Mississippi," Bilbo replied. "Come on down. I'll give you one of those farms."

Mauldin said he would have to think that one over, but meanwhile he would like to come up to Bilbo's office for a visit.

"Yeah? Come on up," Bilbo said. "You know, my son acts as a bouncer up there. He's six feet tall, weighs 200 pounds, and used to be a prize fighter. We'll all be glad to have you come up."

"Well, I'll do that," replied Mauldin, who weighs less than 140 pounds. "One of us will leave educated."

By MARK SULLIVAN

It is true Mr. John L. Lewis's coal strike is contrary to the country's interests, flagrantly so. It is certain to slow down production of goods, practically halt it if the strike is prolonged. And it is mathematically certain to push the inflation spiral farther upward.

But it is misleading to say Mr. Lewis is "defying the government," and flatly incorrect to say he is defying the law. The record will show, I think, that Mr. Lewis is punctilious about observing the law. Yet to say this is not to say much. For Mr. Lewis, by his political power and personal force, has had a strong hand in bringing about the laws which make him and other labor leaders powerful.

When these laws were being written, early in the Roosevelt administration, Mr. Lewis on one occasion went to the White House. He gave President Roosevelt a list of five senators, saying that if Mr. Roosevelt would ask them they would vote for a provision which Mr. Lewis desired in a pending labor bill. Mr. Roosevelt gave him a quizzical look, meditated a moment, then lifted his telephone to call the senators.

Distinction Is Marked

This brings up a distinction between government and, on the other hand, the individuals who compose government, the administration. Again and again, as if he took pleasure in it, Mr. Lewis has in recent years defied the administration, and got away with it.

In December 1941 Mr. Lewis conducted a strike to impose the closed shop on a group of mines. President Roosevelt, after several requests to Mr. Lewis that he end the strike, gave out what sounded like an ultimatum; he said the administration would never grant, and Congress would never enact, a closed shop. Mr. Lewis continued the strike. To settle it, Mr. Roosevelt appointed an arbitration board. It consisted of Mr. Lewis himself, a coal mine operator, and an administration official from the department of Labor. The official was given formal leave so that, one assumes, his decision might not have the status of an administration action. The arbitration board gave Mr. Lewis a closed shop.

Roosevelt Request Ignored

Again, during the war, an administration agency, the War Labor Board, worked out a form of contract between Mr. Lewis and the coal operators, and directed both to sign it. Scornfully, Mr. Lewis refused. The War Labor Board asked President Roosevelt to require Mr. Lewis to comply with its direction. Mr. Roosevelt, replying to a question at a press conference, asked what could he do, should he write Mr. Lewis a nice polite note on pink paper? Mr. Lewis continued not to sign.

Again, in 1943, the then assistant to the president, now Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, in a speech dealing with wartime strikes and threats of strikes by Mr. Lewis's miners' union and others, said: "Any group which threatens to strike in war time unless the . . . government meets its demands, is using a political pistol." Adopting a phrase in a then popular song, Mr. Byrnes added, "The government must say to any such group, 'Lay that pistol down'." But the administration did not act in that spirit. What it really said to Mr. Lewis was, in effect, please don't shoot. Mr. Lewis won his demands.

Defiance Unnecessary

What has happened is that men composing government have yielded to Mr. Lewis, partly because of his personal force, partly out of deference to the political power of labor generally. Mr. Lewis has not defied government. He did not need to. For government in the broad sense, including the administration and Congress, has given away its power to resist Mr. Lewis and other labor unions and leaders.

Government did this ten years ago by enactment of the National Labor Relations act (the "Wagner act"). That surrender of power by government, and conferring of it upon labor leaders and unions, was increased by decisions made and precedents established by men in government—the men who composed the personnel of the board which administered the Wagner act, the National Labor Relations Board. This board and its staff extended the power conferred on labor leaders and unions beyond what, it is safe to assume, Congress had intended when it passed the Wagner act.

Right now Congress is midway of withdrawing some of the power it conferred. A measure limiting the powers of labor unions and leaders, the Case bill, has passed the House, by a nearly two-thirds majority. Action by the Senate is in order. Whether the Senate acts is the really important question raised by Mr. Lewis's strike, and others.

Lawrence Scores Speech by Benton On Propaganda

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, April 3.—If William Benton, assistant secretary of state, had tried to find a way to disqualify himself as the head of the information service of the department of State, he could have chosen no better means of accomplishing that objective than by making the speech he delivered in New York city last Sunday before the Newspaperwomen's Club and over a nationwide radio network.

Mr. Benton, having been thwarted in a minor part of his plan to distribute information to foreign countries, now attacks the motives of the Associated Press—America's largest news-gathering agency—and accuses the directors of that organization of being "against the government," just because they don't want to sell their news service to be used by our government propaganda stations abroad.

Mr. Benton ridicules the idea that if a press association takes money from the government, it could be corrupted. He says that the Associated Press and United Press could prove their disinterestedness and incorruptibility in other ways. But what Mr. Benton does not know is that he is dealing with a condition and not a theory. When news other than its own announcements is disseminated by a government, such news is viewed with suspicion abroad.

Nazis Imitated

Somehow or another, there are a good many Americans who, while denying vehemently that the Nazis did anything worthwhile, are inadvertently imitating the Nazis. The effort here to establish a big propaganda machine is a curious sequel to the Nazi operations in foreign lands.

There is pending before Congress an appropriation bill which would give funds to the department of State to carry on worldwide propaganda. When it is argued that propaganda ought not to be used by the government of the United States, scripts of radio broadcasts or articles to be disseminated are usually submitted to the critic, who is asked to find a single piece of improper phraseology. But the fact of the matter is that the innocuous words issued by press associations or newspapers take on an entirely different significance when issued by the government of the United States.

Propaganda Suspect

The whole world is suspicious of propaganda, and when the great government of the United States goes into the propaganda business, liberals everywhere must recognize that the clock is being turned back.

During the war, the OWI carried on propaganda and expressed editorial opinions of its own. Much of it would not be tolerated in peacetime, and yet some of the very statements issued by the OWI during the war which had a bearing on domestic politics were the subject of criticism, and the usual denial was made that no intention to influence political thought in this country was in the minds of the writers of the scripts or articles. But the effect was there just the same.

Mr. Benton has a big job and there are many parts of his program that are notable, such as the furnishing of texts of documents and other information to our own embassies and legations abroad. But he is jeopardizing the entire program by his controversy with the two press associations.

Specious Argument

The experience of the press associations of the United States in dealing with foreign countries extends over many years and they know from past controversies how important it is for them not to.

Allow their products to be mingled with government propaganda. The specious argument is made that they sell their material to other governments which send out their news. But these other governments know that the integrity of the Associated Press and the United Press is unblemished, because both of these organizations have steadfastly refused to allow the government of the United States, either directly or indirectly, to influence them in their presentation of the news.

There is no reason why the department of State should not issue texts of its own or statements on its own authority. But if it attempts, through subterfuge, to put out information with editorial expressions of its own and interlace this with news that it gets from news agencies, it would be putting out a service for which Congress ought not to appropriate one cent.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

The California rainy season just past has been a big disappointment. It's been so dry I took a ride down Hollywood Boulevard and struck three sand bars.

I think that dry spell is a huge plot on the part of Turhan Bey's agents. They want to transform Hollywood into a desert so Turhan will be in great demand for Arab pictures.

And that weather has had an unusual effect on crops out here . . . they're coming up!

Los Angeles public officials are worrying so much that just to conserve the water supply they've asked W. C. Fields to cut down on the chasers.

And the water holes around the country are so dried up that Dorothy Lamour spotted a wolf at her swimming pool one night and took a shot at him . . . but I ducked in time.

It's really amazing the way things are dried to a crisp. In fact, every time Ann Sothern starts chewing gum . . . the neighbors three blocks away complain about the noise.

DOES RELIGION PAY?

Another veteran's letter. He's only 22 but he has lived more in these last four years than many do in 50. Beastly days, overseas, days when he watched his best pal blown to bits and had to go slugging along as if nothing had happened. Other times when you lay around camp rotting from inactivity, poisoned by the hate and waste and senselessness of it all.

"The chaplains helped a lot, though," he says. "I had never been religious. My folks weren't. And I was too busy having a good time as a kid to bother with churches. But in war everything's different. You get thinking . . . wondering what it's all about. Is there any sense behind it all or are we just being gypped? You can go wacky asking yourself questions like that.

"There was a swell priest, a regular guy, with our gang and I used to drop around to mass with some Catholic fellows. Went at first just to kill time but pretty soon I got to like it. It was so quiet. You could let down. Somehow you got to feeling things would turn out all right in the end. It was something to tie to. And it was the same wherever we went. Sometimes there'd be a rabbi or a minister but I always got that same sure, peaceful feeling. I thought it would stay with me but now that I'm home again I don't know.

"Things aren't like I thought they'd be. I'm restless. Don't know if I'm able to put my life together again. And I keep remembering those times overseas. Did I like them only because they helped me get away from the war for a little while? Could they mean the same now that I'm home? As one worldly guy to another, do you suppose religion pays in our regular life, Miss Robinson?"

JIM C.

As one worldly guy to another, I believe it does, Jim. And "regular life" and battle life aren't as different as you may think. We all feel the same fear and confusion, the same hate, resentment and numbing indifference. We're all looking for a little comfort somewhere. And religion can give us that—if we'll take it. It's the only thing that can give us that sense of unseen power, or basic plan, or lasting peace.

For religion isn't merely a matter of going to church. It's a way of thinking, of feeling about life. The person without religion believes that our daily existence is all that there is. There's neither sense nor beauty nor justice in such a viewpoint. But to a religious person there are powers that we cannot see, invisible forces on which we may draw when our own strength fails, and a plan which does make sense. Moreover, religion is a natural impulse to fill a natural need. The most ignorant savage feels it. Only the warped and the sick deny God and His mysteries.

I'm no preacher, Jim, but I do know this. Religion does pay in every kind of life. It's the one thing that can give you peace and added power and a sense of purpose. It's the one thing that will help you "put your life together." And you need it now more than you needed it on the battlefield. Take it, son. It works.

DOES RELIGION PAY?

Another veteran's letter. He's only 22 but he has lived more in these last four years than many do in 50. Beastly days, overseas, days when he watched his best pal blown to bits and had to go slugging along as if nothing had happened. Other times when you lay around camp rotting from inactivity, poisoned by the hate and waste and senselessness of it all.

"The chaplains helped a lot, though," he says. "I had never been religious. My folks weren't. And I was too busy having a good time as a kid to bother with churches. But in war everything's different. You get thinking . . . wondering what it's all about. Is there any sense behind it all or are we just being gypped? You can go wacky asking yourself questions like that.

"There was a swell priest, a regular guy, with our gang and I used to drop around to mass with some Catholic fellows. Went at first just to kill time but pretty soon I got to like it. It was so quiet. You could let down. Somehow you got to feeling things would turn out all right in the end. It was something to tie to. And it was the same wherever we went. Sometimes there'd be a rabbi or a minister but I always got that same sure, peaceful feeling. I thought it would stay with me but now that I'm home again I don't know.

"Things aren't like I thought they'd be. I'm restless. Don't know if I'm able to put my life together again. And I keep remembering those times overseas. Did I like them only because they helped me get away from the war for a little while? Could they mean the same now that I'm home? As one worldly guy to another, do you suppose religion pays in our regular life, Miss Robinson?"

William A. Gunter will serve as toastmaster for the dinner and Victor D. Heisey will give the address of welcome after which Miss Lillian C. Compton will offer the invocation.

The feature of the entertainment will be a court scene when Mr. Boughton will stand trial. Besides the honor guest, others taking part in the trial will be Charles L. Kopp, Mr. Heisey, Arthur W. East Side P-TA Contributes $100 For Library Books

The East Side School Parent-Teacher Association appropriated over $100 to pay for library books for the school, at the meeting Tuesday evening, with Lee Silcox presiding. The association also voted to have a supper early in May and Mrs. Paul Hartman was named chairman of arrangements.

A Nominating committee, composed of Francis Warnick, Mrs. William Lillard and Mrs. Lester Aaron was appointed. Election of officers will be held next month.

John T. Fey, local attorney, was the guest speaker. His topic was "The American Stake in Postwar Development." Mr. Fey pointed out that today there are many small groups, each trying to promote its own selfish interests, so today more than ever, Americans must adopt the spirit of serving the general welfare. Unless everyone works for the general welfare of the country, there can be no continuation of a constitutional form of government, he said.

There are many ways of promoting the general welfare, he declared and listed them as first, putting different men into office, choosing statesmen and not politicians. He stressed that the people must bear in mind the fact that the right to vote is the most fundamental right and the people must exercise that right.

Secondly he pointed out that people should continue to meet for discussions of present day problems and give serious thought to them. He also urged that these groups express themselves to their representatives.

In order that the United States takes her place as the leader of nations, Mr. Fey maintained that some form of compulsory military training should be maintained. He also urged his audience to have a deep interest and take an active part in the economic empire outside of the United States, and stressed the fact that there must be some plan to take care of the great finance of the government, in reducing the debt.

The entertainment program consisted of a musical program presented by the Fort Hill a capella choir, with Mrs. Edward Pelling directing and Robert Heisey at the piano. He also played several piano solos. James Hauger also played a violin solo number.

Miss Agnes Carroll, principal, reported that the school has an enrollment of 462 children and has thirteen teachers. The average attendance for March was 93.1 and during the month 7,157 lunches were served in the cafeteria. Mrs. Kathryn Miller's third grade room won the $5 for having the largest percentage of parents present. A social hour concluded the evening and refreshments were served by the mothers of the third grade.

East Side P-TA Contributes $100 For Library Books

The East Side School Parent-Teacher Association appropriated over $100 to pay for library books for the school, at the meeting Tuesday evening, with Lee Silcox presiding. The association also voted to have a supper early in May and Mrs. Paul Hartman was named chairman of arrangements.

A Nominating committee, composed of Francis Warnick, Mrs. William Lillard and Mrs. Lester Aaron was appointed. Election of officers will be held next month.

John T. Fey, local attorney, was the guest speaker. His topic was "The American Stake in Postwar Development." Mr. Fey pointed out that today there are many small groups, each trying to promote its own selfish interests, so today more than ever, Americans must adopt the spirit of serving the general welfare. Unless everyone works for the general welfare of the country, there can be no continuation of a constitutional form of government, he said.

There are many ways of promoting the general welfare, he declared and listed them as first, putting different men into office, choosing statesmen and not politicians. He stressed that the people must bear in mind the fact that the right to vote is the most fundamental right and the people must exercise that right.

Secondly he pointed out that people should continue to meet for discussions of present day problems and give serious thought to them. He also urged that these groups express themselves to their representatives.

In order that the United States takes her place as the leader of nations, Mr. Fey maintained that some form of compulsory military training should be maintained. He also urged his audience to have a deep interest and take an active part in the economic empire outside of the United States, and stressed the fact that there must be some plan to take care of the great finance of the government, in reducing the debt.

The entertainment program consisted of a musical program presented by the Fort Hill a capella choir, with Mrs. Edward Pelling directing and Robert Heisey at the piano. He also played several piano solos. James Hauger also played a violin solo number.

Miss Agnes Carroll, principal, reported that the school has an enrollment of 462 children and has thirteen teachers. The average attendance for March was 93.1 and during the month 7,157 lunches were served in the cafeteria. Mrs. Kathryn Miller's third grade room won the $5 for having the largest percentage of parents present. A social hour concluded the evening and refreshments were served by the mothers of the third grade.

OMICRON CHAPTER TO HOLD RITUAL

Omicron Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority formulated plans for a dinner and ritual at the meeting Tuesday evening at the Girl Scout little house, with Miss Sara McFarland presiding.

Seven pledges to the sorority will be initiated at the Ritual of Jewels ceremony to be held April 30, at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. The recently elected officers will also be installed at the dinner, which will be served at 6:30 o'clock, preceding the ritual. Mrs. Harry Bowman is chairman of arrangements.

Pledges include Miss Margaret Lester, Miss Dorothy Billmeyer, Mrs. John Pfeiffer, Mrs. Taylor Dicken, Miss Estalene Smith, Mrs. Dorothy McCoy and Mrs. William L. Cumiskey.

A cultural program on "Etiquette," was held with Miss Lester presenting it for a date; Miss Smith, at a wedding; and Mrs. Pfeiffer, at a funeral. A social hour concluded the evening.

Girl Is Well Rid Of "Mother's Baby, Miss Fairfax Says

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I was going with a fellow from my neighborhood, but things didn't go right.

He asked me to quit smoking. Well, I quit smoking, but he claims I didn't. He says he saw me doing it after he asked me to quit. I don't lie, and I know he didn't see me smoking. Then he asked me to quit drinking. I did everything to please that boy, but didn't succeed.

He was good to me, took me everywhere I wanted to go, and bought me a swell coat. He said he liked me very much and I cared for him a lot. We were planning to be married, but his mother put her nose in it, and he always listens to his mother. In other words, he is a mother's baby. I know most of our trouble is through her.

I would go back with him, but I don't know how to win him back. Please tell me how.

D. K.

Don't you know when you're well off, D. K.? If this boy behaves so badly to you now, don't you think, he'd be even more of a fault-finder and a mother's baby if you married him? That's the way these things generally work out. I can't imagine why you want to be silly enough to go back with him. The best advice I can give you is to be thankful you found out what an unreasonable, selfish and childish person he was before it was too late.

A Letter From Me to You

Dear Everybody:

Here's a letter from me to you, for a change, instead of the other way around. There are some suggestions I'd like to make which may keep some of you from being disappointed when you didn't get answers to your letters as quickly as you'd like, or even don't get them at all. So here goes:

First, please don't ask me for an immediate reply on something you must make a decision about within a few days. It's impossible for me to get letters into print that soon. My mail is very heavy, and letters have to take their turn, so that it may be a little while before yours can be published.

Second, please don't ask me how to take orange juice out of the baby's bib, or where to apply for an insurance policy, or what time you can get a plane for Seattle, or how to get that song or book you've written into the hands of someone who's bound to publish it, or what medicine to take for heartburn. Those things aren't my business, and this is the type of letter to which I referred as the ones that don't get answers. My job is to try to help you with problems that are too difficult for you to figure out by yourselves, not to serve as an encyclopedia, a timetable or a household almanic!

And third, you've snowed me under on the "Popularity Quiz." So if you don't get yours as soon as you think you should, please just try to be patient. It'll come!

Everything clear? O K.—Let's go!

Letter Puzzles Eckhart Woman For Two Days

Message from Cousin in Norway Is Finally Translated by Soldier

An Eckhart woman, Mrs. Mary Lynch, received a letter Wednesday from her cousin in Norway, but it was not until Friday afternoon that she was able to find out what he had written.

The letter, sent by Anton Sandvik, who lives in Alesund, near Oslo, the capital of Norway, was written in Norwegian, and Mrs. Lynch, who was born in this country, does not understand that language.

She came to Cumberland in an attempt to find someone who could translate the letter for her, and in the course of her search stopped at the Allegany inn, where she was formerly employed.

Lived at Oslo

A serviceman who is staying at the inn, Tech. Sgt. Folke Fodell, was called to the rescue and translated the letter. Sgt. Fodell came to the United States from Oslo in 1937, and was employed at Worcester, Mass., before entering service. He returned from the Philippines in January and is spending a ninety-day re-enlistment furlough visiting friends here.

As Sgt. Fodell read the letter, Mrs. Irene Reuschel, secretary in the Cumberland office of the American Automobile Association, located at the inn, took shorthand notes and later transcribed them for Mrs. Lynch.

The letter, which had been mailed February 26, was the first which Mrs. Lynch had received from her cousin in six years. Sandvik wrote that the clothing shortage was the most acute problem in Norway at the present time.

He said that one of his brothers was killed in an accident while in service in 1943, and that his mother had died the same year.

Corresponded Before War

Mrs. Lynch's father, Andrew Sandvik, came to this country from Norway about sixty years ago. Mrs. Lynch has never visited Norway, but before the war she corresponded with her cousin, who took her letters to an American minister in Alesund for translation from English to Norwegian.

She has one son in service, Seaman First Class Paul Edward Lynch, now stationed in San Francisco, Calif.

—The Pearl Harbor toll of dead and missing was 3,303.

McKinley Bittinger Is Released on Bond

McKinley Reuben Bittinger, of RFD No. 3, Swanton, driver of a car which struck and killed John Milford, 6-year-old Lonaconing boy, Sunday afternoon on Douglas avenue, Lonaconing, was released from the county jail Tuesday when bond was posted.

Bittinger had been held in county jail since the mishap, but was arraigned in trial magistrates court Monday, when Magistrate Oliver H Bruce, Jr., ordered him held under bond of $1,000 for action of the April grand jury. He was unable to furnish bond immediately and was returned to county jail to spend the night. Members of Bittinger's family arranged bond for him yesterday.

Richard D. Jones Is Discharged

Awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received February 19, 1945, at Iwo Jima, Richard Deston Jones, carpenter's mate 3-c, was honorably discharged from the navy this week at the Bainbridge Separation Center. He is the son of Mrs. Anna May Jones of 106 Karnes avenue, Cumberland.

During the nineteen and a half months that he served overseas, Jones was attached to the Thirty-third Seabees on Iwo. He also wears the American and Asiatic-Pacific Theater Ribbons.

Prior to going to the separation center Jones was stationed in Washington, D. C.

Suspended Sentence Given Robertson

Franklin Robertson, Ridgeley, W Va., received a ten-day suspended sentence in trial magistrates court Tuesday after pleading guilty to charges of trespassing on property of the Western Maryland railway.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew paroled Robertson for six months and ordered him to stay off railroad premises. The charge was made by B. V. Barncord, who stated the man has been warned to refrain from trespassing previously.

Arrangements of Nurse Week To Be Discussed

Committee members of health centers throughout the county, and all interested persons, are invited to attend a meeting at the county health department offices in the Public Safety building today at 1:30 p. m., according to Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, deputy state and county health officer.

A similar meeting was held last week, when plans were discussed for the local observance of "Know Your Public Health Nurse" week, to be marked throughout the nation from April 7 to 13.

Miss Margaret Morrissey, state public health nurse for the Cresaptown district, will give a report on arrangements which have been made for the observance, while the committee members will report on plans made in their own communities.

The meeting will be in charge of Miss Marion Weber, supervisor of public health nurses in Allegany county.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Sam and Lud, War and Peace

Like everybody else, folks in our town talk about the best way of preserving peace. Some believe one thing, some another. But when it comes to Lud Denny and Sam Hackney—each has a self-invented Plan.

Talking things over at Bill Webster's, Sam and Lud got so worked up arguing against each other's Plan, they almost came to blows. Now each one thinks the other is a public enemy—for not agreeing with his Plan!

Seems to me there's the problem in a nutshell! No plan in the world can lead to peace—'til folks respect each other's views; allow for differences of taste; and learn to live with opposite opinions.

From where I sit, real peace begins with people—neighbor living tolerantly beside neighbor—regardless of who votes how, or who drinks beer or cider, or who wears city clothes or overalls. Peace starts with Tolerance!

"Genie with the Light Brown Whiskers? —PHOOEY!"

DEAR FOLKS:

I'm not really one to complain. But something's been eating at me lately. It's a book I've run across. Aladdin. Aladdin, with his old lamp and that corny genie in it.

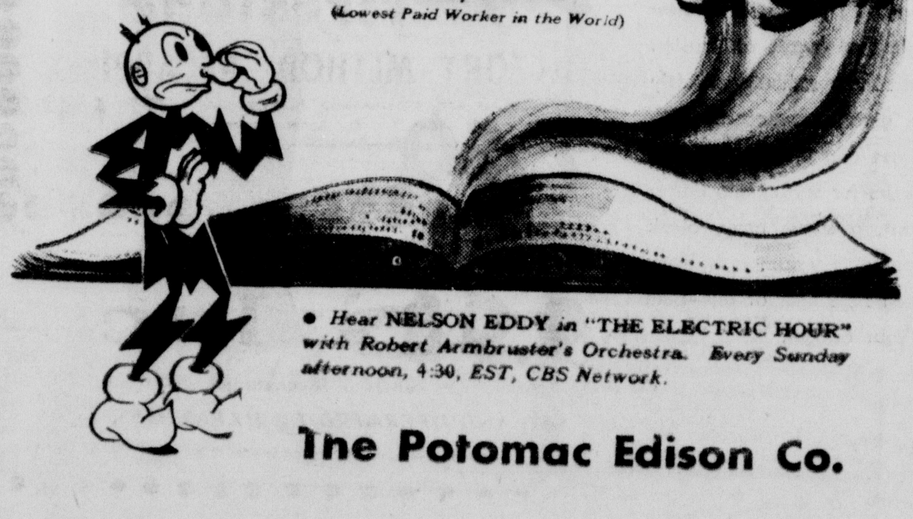

Don't think I'm jealous. No. Only I do think I deserve a better break against that genie with the whiskers. Imagine, writing books about him. And not even mentioning me!

I'm a modest fellow. But let's face facts. That goon doesn't even belong in the same league with me. Why I could give him cards and spades and still come up with more miracles per kilowatt hour than he could perform in a thousand and one nights.

My trouble is that you folks take me for granted. When I heat your electric iron, or chill your refrigerator, or pop up your toast, or clean your rugs, you expect it of me. But let that dopey genie do anything and right away somebody writes a book!

Ah me! Also, woe and alas! But don't think I'm going to sulk. I'm used to being taken for granted. I'll go right on being at your service, day and night. But I just had to get this gripe off my chest. Gosh, all that fuss over some old genie!

Curative Value Of Exercise Is Cited by Doctor

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

EXERCISE is medicine, too.

Since ancient times, exercise has been a basic part of the treatment of many disorders. After disease and injury exercise may be used to restore strength and vigor. But since here it plays a curative role, it must, like medicine, be of the right kind and taken in doses that are not too large.

In other words, it must be "just what the doctor orders."

Adjust Exercise

In every instance it is important to adjust the exercise to the patient's physical condition and, particularly, according to Dr. Ancel Keys of the University of Minnesota, to the fitness of the heart and blood vessels.

A number of tests have been devised to determine whether or not the patient's heart and blood vessels react normally to exercise. In one of these tests the patient is placed on a table which can be tilted and it is then determined how the heartbeat and pulse rate react to various changes of positions. Once these facts have been determined, with this and other tests the patient can be instructed precisely in regard to the kind and amount of exercise which he may take.

For example, in such common exercises as walking, the rate and rhythm can be specified in exact detail. Furthermore, the patient can be instructed as to whether he should walk on lever ground or on hills.

Good Plans

It is also a good plan to find out the amount of exercise the patient is taking and how must effort he expends in doing so.

As a general rule, exercises which product no fatigue whatsoever are of little value. A brief period of so-called "setting-up" exercises taken each day, according to Dr. Keys, is not of much value except in persons who may be extremely weakened as a result of disease or old age.

He also thinks that exercises should be pleasurable because otherwise the mind becomes fatigued before any effects of the exercise of the body are achieved. Many times a sick person may just not have the desire to exercise. In such cases so-called passive exercises may be helpful.

Types of Apparatus

For example, there are various types of apparatus which move the arms and legs. While such exercise is not as good as active movements, the effects on the vigor of the muscles, the circulation and breathing are about equal to those obtained from a leisurely stroll.

Persons who exercise vigorously often may be concerned about ho-called athletic heart of heart strain. Like any other muscle, the heart is capable of training, and if vigorous exercises is carried out over a long period of time, the heart becomes larger and more powerful. This is no cause for concern.

Active exercise may often be an important factor in building health. But if indulged in to the point of strain it may do more harm than good. Particularly, if it overtaxes the heart it may result in serious and lasting damage.

Plan for Two-way Radio System Is Tentatively Set

Luke's Consent Needed; Keyser To Pay Half of Operators' Salary

By LUKE McDOWELL

KEYSER, W. Va., April 3 — A joint meeting of the mayors and council members of Keyser, Piedmont and Westernport, Md., was held in the city offices Tuesday night, for considering the installation of a two-way radio system for the use of police officers of the three communities. Luke will be included, but the town was not represented in the meeting.

Mayors John C. Freeland, Keyser; Harold Fredlock, Piedmont, and J. Milton McIntyre, Westernport, were in attendance. Councilmen attending were Frank E. Mott, John H. Dean and Ralph Casteel, Keyser; Charles Davis, Piedmont; and William Ravenscraft and George Kight, Westernport. Others present were John Ward, Eugene Paxton and E. J. Cheshire, Piedmont.

After some discussion the proposition for the system, sponsored by the Lion's club of the Tri-Towns, was tentatively agreed to, provided the town of Luke will go along with the program. The plan agreed upon calls for Keyser to bear fifty per cent of the operators' salary and the other three towns to bear the remaining fifty per cent.

The installation of such a system will be a great convenience and will add to the efficiency of the officers charged with law enforcement in the area, in that patrol cars will at all times be in communication with their several police healquarters by means of the two-way service through the Keyser control center.

By LUKE McDOWELL

KEYSER, W. Va., April 3 — A joint meeting of the mayors and council members of Keyser, Piedmont and Westernport, Md., was held in the city offices Tuesday night, for considering the installation of a two-way radio system for the use of police officers of the three communities. Luke will be included, but the town was not represented in the meeting.

Mayors John C. Freeland, Keyser; Harold Fredlock, Piedmont, and J. Milton McIntyre, Westernport, were in attendance. Councilmen attending were Frank E. Mott, John H. Dean and Ralph Casteel, Keyser; Charles Davis, Piedmont; and William Ravenscraft and George Kight, Westernport. Others present were John Ward, Eugene Paxton and E. J. Cheshire, Piedmont.

After some discussion the proposition for the system, sponsored by the Lion's club of the Tri-Towns was tentatively agreed to, provided the town of Luke will go along with the program. The plan agreed upon calls for Keyser to bear fifty per cent of the operators' salary and the other three towns to bear the remaining fifty per cent.

The installation of such a system will be a great convenience and will add to the efficiency of the officers charged with law enforcement in the area, in that patrol cars will at all times be in communication with their several police healquarters by means of the two-way service through the Keyser control center.

Steels, Motors and Rails Lead Late Rally as Stocks Increase

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP)—Stocks enjoyed their broadest upturn since March 25 in today's market as steels, motors and rails spearheaded a late rally that added 1 to 5 points to a number of leading issues.

Strong demand was evidenced by total transfers for the day of 1,560,000 shares of which 580,000 changed hands in the final hour. The total, second highest since Feb. 26, compared with 1,040,000 on Tuesday.

Doubts as to earning prospects in view of industrial disruption expected from the soft coal strike were overcome, brokers said, by consideration of inflationary aspects of wage boosts, improved views of the international outlook, and the Snyder reconversion report that United States civilian production of $150 billion annually was at the highest level ever reached.

Of 1,004 issues registering, 712 advanced and 152 declined.

Steels, quiet most of the day, joined with rails to lead the rise. Bethlehem was up 3 and U. S. Steel gained 2¼. Santa Fe moved ahead 1½ and Southern Pacific 1⅜. Chrysler paced the motors with a jump of 5⅛; General Motors added 1½ and Willys-Overland gained 2 in active dealings.

Miller-Wohl climbed 1⅞ in the curb on a proposed stock split, and other gainers included Beaunit Mills (New), Sterchi Brothers Stores, Technicolor, Babcock and Wilcox, and Electric Bond and Share. Turnover here was 710,000 shares against 540,000 on Tuesday.

Long-term government issues struck selling opposition after chalking up new record highs in morning trade in the over-the-counter bond market.

Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotional

Prepared by

Dr. GAIUS GLENN ATKINS

of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ of America

Copyright 1946

THURSDAY, APRIL 4

MULTIPLIED: "But other fell into good ground and brought forth fruit—" Matthew 13:8. Read Matthew 13:18-23.

It would all seem so hopeless; some seed never germinating at all, the good choked out, bright promise unfulfilled; hopeless save for one thing, the power of truth and goodness to multiply and prevail. One planted grain of corn may ripen into near a thousand grains. Truth obediently received and understood will pass from mind to mind with a multiplying power to which there is no limit.

Dr. Atkins

There have always been teachers whose teachings influenced generations of students, poets whose music evokes unceasing echoes, saints whose loveliness of life has made the centuries bright.

Jesus there in a boat on a little lake had all the world against him. Now his words girdle the globe, the divinely-rooted seedbed and source of whatever for 2,000 years has been creatively right, make a soul God's seed-bed, plant it with the master's truth and grace then only time can compute its harvests—

"The seeds of God-like power are in us still, ... saints and heroes, if we will."

PRAYER: Lord of the unfailing promise, we pray thee for all teachers, leaders, truth-seekers and dreamers of a better world. Give them faith and patience, assure them anew that no service to thee and thy children is ever in vain. May they see the travail of their souls—and be satisfied. Through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

WARNER WILL OPEN NEW RESTAURANT ON BALTIMORE PIKE

A new restaurant will be opened Thursday at 4 p. m., by Earl L. Warner, 47, in connection with his service station and tourist cabins, two miles east of Cumberland on the Baltimore Pike, Warner said last night.

A newly constructed concrete stucco building has been added to the premises, housing a modern restaurant which will accommodate fifty-two people and features an all electric kitchen. The kitchen is said to be the only one of its kind in this section.

Warner is a native and life-time resident of Cumberland. He is married and is assisted in the operation of the business by members of his family. He started the service station buiness and tourist cabins here about five years ago, prior to which time he conducted a service station on West Second street for about seventeen years. This station was recently purchased by Mayor Thomas S. Post, and Warner gives his full attention to the Baltimore Pike venture.

Warner plans to show the place to visitors when it opens Thursday, but stated the new electric kitchen will be open to public inspection all the time.

There are ten persons employed at the place in addition to Warner and members of his family.

"COCK-EYED COCKER"

Balanced Federal Budget Favored By Gov. O'Conor in Address Here

mediate importance is the possibility that taxes could be reduced to the point where business men and business concerns would be inspired to conduct new ventures and to invest new capital so that more and more Americans could be put to work."

Other high points of the address included:

"In the midst of the problems that beset us on every side, problems within our state as well as those affecting America and the world, the only way to chart a really successful course is to orient ourselves, so to speak—to find out just where we are at this moment, and the direction in which we should travel from this point on. As the chief executive of the State of Maryland, it would seem well to preface any discussion of our state's future by a brief glance to the immediate past. Based on what has been accomplished up to now, we may better program our efforts in the days to come.

Gained During War

"It has often been demonstrated, in this war and in World War I particularly, how opposite are war's effects upon the individuals of a community. War develops one man while it may ruin another. So states are similarly affected. Fortunately, the effects of war have been most favorable in our own state. For its size, Maryland developed as great a war industry as any of the 48 states. Despite the inevitable changes and restrictions brought about by the needs of such a tremendous conflict, Maryland emerged from the war in excellent shape, financially and administratively. Even while devoting every ounce of effort to furthering the nation's herculean efforts to defend American ideals, it was possible to improve to a most marked degree many of the major phases of the state's functioning.

"Briefly, it can be said without hesitancy that the state is better off financially, its judiciary has been revived and strengthened, a program of betterment for our schools has been authorized and begun and the social aspects of Maryland life have been advanced so that today Maryland stands among the foremost of the truly progressive States of America.

"Through careful planning, begun long months before Pearl Harbor, our state was enabled to fulfill its obligations to the Nation completely. Maryland's Selective Service System, whose thousand and more members I designated for appointment by the President functioned in a most satisfactory manner and without the criticisms as to favoritism which were heard in some other states. Our Council of Defense, the first one established in America, handled all the complex matters, civilian defense and the like, as successfully as these complex matters could have been handled. Maryland's State Guard, plans for which were laid well before our splendid National Guard was inducted into federal service, has won continuing praise from high Army officials for its efficiency.

Confidence In Future

"As to the future, I believe we can have every confidence. With our state debt cut from 48 to approximately 20 million, our real estate levy only 40 percent of what it was in '39, with nine million dollars in cash on hand towards construction of needed additions to state institutions, our citizens can truly feel that much has been achieved in this field. Projecting the picture into the future, let me say that possibly the most important and the most promising feature of our state planning is concerned with effectuating the great improvements to our public school system, which it was our pleasure to sponsor and to carry through to completion during the last legislature.

"If you will recall, among the high points of this program of public school betterment was the provision of 12 years of free public schooling to children of every county, a reduction in the size of classes for greater teaching efficiency and higher salaries for teachers to retain and attract the best available. Added to this was a program of extended and expanded curricula for returning veterans and for all adults.

"Naturally, such a far reaching plan cannot be achieved overnight. Additional teachers must be secured, additional school facilities supplied. Under the guidance of the State Board of Education, of which your distinguished fellow countian, Tasker G. Lowndes, is chairman and in the hands of our capable State School Superintendent, Dr. Pullen, I however foresee that Maryland will reflect itself most favorably in an improved citizenship in the years ahead. Our children of today in the schools will be the citizens and leaders of tomorrow. Marylanders of this present era can take satisfaction in having paved the way for such improvement in educational facilities for the new generation.

"In the category of vital matters facing the state today, likewise, is that of roads and transportation facilities, including airways and airports. A sizeable portion of the planning which has been done in this regard affects Western Maryland immediately.

Plan Road Improvements

"All told, approximately nine million dollars of highway and bridge construction, and of road betterment is scheduled for the five Western Maryland counties. Included in these are the Eckhart Flats improvement and the Keyser-McCoole roadway in your own county, the Sandy Hook Bridge and approaches in Washington county the Keyser Ridge and Oakland Deep-Creek Roads in Garrett, the National Pike Relocation west of Frederick, and many other projects.

"Unquestionably the three-year period ahead will see the greatest surge of road and highway construction Maryland has ever experienced. And to supplement this, and to bring the two sections of the State closer together, the Chesapeake Bay Ferry System will shortly have a third modern Diesel-operated Ferry Boat and a schedule of night operation that will increase greatly the usefulness of this importan link in our highway system.

"In keeping with this improvement of ground transportation facilities will be the development of a system of air transportation facilities that will keep Maryland well in line with the most advanced States in this respect. The State Aviation Commission has been set up under broad-gauged legislation, to make it a real leader in the development of this form of travel for the State. How useful such a development will be was emphasized upon me only last weekend when I had the pleasurable experience of a weekend in Florida with but a few hours absence from the office.

"Leaving at noon Friday, we were in Lakeland that evening, where we spent two full days with other Governors of the Eastern Seaboard discussing among other things the possibilities and advantages of a closely knit system of airways to link together the farthest sections of our State. Tomorrow, I will participate in ceremonies attendant upon the opening of a new air route from Baltimore to Salisbury, which will do much to bring closer relations between our state's metropolis and the lower Eastern Shore, and will undoubtedly prove a boon to business interests and to vacationists enroute to and from the Shore.

"Uppermost in our minds for the past several years has been the desire and the determination to bring Maryland's Social Security legislation and policies into step with the most advanced programs in this field in all America. Maryland has from its very inception been a leader in liberalizing the benefits of unemployment compensation as well as of industrial accident insurance. Maryland was a pioneer State in the development of a program of medical care, which authorities throughout the land acclaim as the real answer to the threat of socialized medicine under Federal control.

Pioneering In Medical Care

"There has been much talk about the proposed Federal program of socialized medicine. It should be kept in mind that no matter what system might be evolved for assuring medical care to all who need it, the doctor is the one who is going to have to deliver it. Maryland's program of medical care was initiated by the medical profession, and is one which is bound to enlist the cooperation of the medical profession.

"Legislation establishing the program in Maryland was sponsored by me and effectuated through an appropriation of $200,000 per year for its support. While admittedly less than the estimated cost of a permanent program for the Counties of our State, it is generally agreed that it will suffice for a beginning.

"Let it be repeated that Maryland is pioneering in this field. As is ever the case at the outset of any new venture, unexpected problems and complications have arisen. So much so has this been the case with regard to the progress of medical care in Maryland during these ten months, and so great have been the difficulties encountered, that of themselves they would seem to prove definitely that no system of Federalized medicine could ever be devised that would adequately serve all 48 states with all the problems the varying conditions in the States would create.

"Functioning under the County health officer, and with eligibility limited to the recipients of public assistance, except in cases of emergency need, an average of 1500 persons per month are being cared for. Since the inception of the program, no less than 16,000 visits by physicians have been made. Wherever possible, dental care has been rendered. To date, approximately $50,000 has been spent in filling an increasing need to those of our people who are unable to provide medical care for themselves. By the end of the fiscal year, it is estimated that $80,000 to $100,000 will have been expended in this important work.

"The program is a new venture in public health, and one that may be accompanied by errors. Vigilance to detect these mistakes and willingness to correct them will help to insure the programs' success. Above all, the needs of those intended to benefit from the medical services must be kept in the foreground, for the entire medical care program exists for the sole purpose of serving these sections of our population.

"I am opposed to the socialization of medicine by the Federal government. Having unbounded confidence in the medical profession I believe that physicians and surgeons can be relied upon to practice the healing art without regimentation by Washington. Furthermore, the experience we have gained in the trial period of the medical care program proves that endless difficulties and confusion would result if the Federal Government undertakes to regulate medical practice under a single plan for the 48 states.

It is our hope to make a reality soon of what has long been an objective, namely, the establishment of the three chronic disease hospitals for the aged and indigent ill, in the various sections of our state. Unfortunately, first bids opened for the Eastern Shore Hospital at Salisbury were so far out of line that it was decided not to award the contract. But only this week I have given orders to the State Health authorities to readvertise this Salisbury project and to speed plans and specifications for the hospitals at Hagerstown and Baltimore so that they too may be advertised for bids promptly. So much for purely State matters.

Points To County Survey

As an indication of the desirable extension of State Services for the benefit of the local sub-division I might refer to the inauguration of the industrial survey of Allegany County, through the financial support of the State and with the technical assistance of the University of Maryland. It has been in many respects a new venture for the State Government. As I emphasized at the beginning of the survey, that in its broad concepts the state government has a responsibility in this respect, for obviously unless the various sections of the State are prosperous and progressive, the entire State suffers.

I am happy to report today that this industrial survey is about halfway towards completion. Some tabulation of statistics and some field work are yet to be done. It is expected, however, that a final printed report will be available some time in May. Already facts have been revealed by this research which will be of great benefit in future expansion projects and I am confident that it will be really helpful to the community in industrial planning and development.

On the national scene, we find problems crowding thick and fast, and unfortunately not as well under control as in the case with regard to strictly State affairs. Naturally with the urgent demands made upon our country's finances by the all-out war effort of the past five years, the nation's financial structure has been put to tremendous stress, to a point far beyond what most economists of the past believed was the maximum of safety.

Under the latest federal budget, we are giving the assurance, which is meant to be reassuring, that it closely approaches a balanced budget and that a budget in balance can be looked forward to next year.

In the meantime, however, what is the trend among Federal officials generally? Is it to reduce expenditures and to cut down numbers of employees in proportion to the way expenditures were raised and personnel increased under the demands of war? Frankly, and unfortunately, such is not the case. Instead of being reduced, the total of employees on the Federal payroll is still going up. And only very, very few members of Congress are apparently concerned about it.

Lauds Senator Byrd

Senator Byrd of Virginia is one of those who has done fine service in bringing to the attention of Congress and of the people of the country, the unpardonable situation that continues to exist. Until we have more men in Washington like Senator Byrd, men who know and understand the theory behind a balanced budget and who have the courage to stand up and demand that something be done, we will have no improvement. As you all know, only too well, it is easy to add people to a payroll but hard to separate them from it.

Can you imagine the theory of government that many of our Senators and Congressmen in Washington seem to have who demand reductions in our armed forces because the war's over and yet sanction increases in the ranks of civilian employes who were added to the government payrolls solely because of war's needs.

Can any business man among you, or could any business man in the country, justify continuing increases in his working staff when his volume of business was dropping tremendously month by month? Could any successful business man continue to spend in the operation of his business more money than his cash register showed? You wouldn't do it and neither should our country do it. But our country will continue to do it as long as the people fail to register their insistence upon their representatives in Washington and as long as these representatives, be they in the Senate or in the House, fail to realize the necessity of retrenchment before the safety point has been passed.

It is vitally important that there be men in Washington capable of checking into such important matters and alert to the importance of doing rather than talking. The only way under Heaven that the budget can be brought into balance is by stopping buying of things no longer needed and by getting rid of as many Federal employees as can be dispensed with without impairing the efficiency of the various departments. Maybe I might change that last statement and say that it is generaly agreed that a reduction of one-third of the employes now on the Federal payroll would immediately bring about greater efficiency in many of the departments.

Asks Flexible Regulations

"Along with such a policy, the other requisite for fullest development of ingenuity and enterprise that has always characterized the American people is the prompt elimination of any restrictions or regulations of business that are not absolutely necessary for protection of the public interest. The difficulty, the great difficulty, or such restrictions and regulations promulgated from a central office in Washington is that they are not flexible. They cannot take into consideration the different conditions obtaining in various sections of the county. It is granted that in certain fields where commodities are scarce and demand is high, it will be necessary, maybe for some months to come, to have ceiling prices in effect, but by every day that regulations and restrictions for which there no longer are need are kept on the books, by just so much will the recovery of industry be retarded and industry has been retarded overmuch since V-J Day.

"Vital to the progress of our people in the months and years ahead, likewise, is the restoration of confidence in government and among governments. Nothing could be more disturbing to the people of America than the thought that our government did not reflect in its actions the thinking of the people of America.

In the field of international relations, for instance, I sense the very definite belief among our citizenry that the time has come for America to lay down a policy of international approach and to have this policy definitely understood by the people of other nations.

"Too long has America been thought of by other nations as a well-meaning but inept nation from whom it was possible to secure financial and other advantages and to whom they owed no return.

The people of Maryland, to put it in other words, seem to be tired of being 'pushed around' as the expression goes. They are perfectly willing to do all in their power to help less fortunate nations get on their feet again, to feed them and to lead the way towards better mutual feeling among the nations of the world for the future.

"They are tired, however, of making concessions to other nations who are not willing to make concessions on their own part. They want our government, in its international relations, to adopt and maintain a realistic attitude and if other nations insist on being uncooperative, they want America to insist upon proper return for every favor granted.

"Furthermore, I believe that our people will expect their representatives in Washington to be informed on such matters and to take a firm position in the decisions that must be made affecting our relationships with other nations. Unless the accord sought by all nations through the medium of the UNO is achieved on such a basis, our people are convinced, I am sure, that there can be no real or lasting peace."

Steels, Motors and Rails Lead Late Rally as Stocks Increase

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP)—Stocks enjoyed their broadest upturn since March 25 in today's market as steels, motors and rails spearheaded a late rally that added 1 to 5 points to a number of leading issues.

Strong demand was evidenced by total transfers for the day of 1,560,000 shares of which 580,000 changed hands in the final hour. The total, second highest since Feb. 26, compared with 1,040,000 on Tuesday.

Doubts as to earning prospects in view of industrial disruption expected from the soft coal strike were overcome, brokers said, by consideration of inflationary aspects of wage boosts, improved views of the international outlook, and the Snyder reconversion report that United States civilian production of $150 billion annually was at the highest level ever reached.

Of 1,004 issues registering, 712 advanced and 152 declined.

Steels, quiet most of the day, joined with rails to lead the rise. Bethlehem was up 3 and U. S. Steel gained 2¼. Santa Fe moved ahead 1½ and Southern Pacific 1⅝. Chrysler paced the motors with a jump of 5½. General Motors added 1½ and Willys-Overland gained 2 in active dealings.

Miller-Wohl climbed 1⅞ in the curb on a proposed stock split, and other gainers included Beaunit Mills (New), Sterchi Brothers Stores, Technicolor, Babcock and Wilcox, and Electric Bond and Share. Turnover here was 710,000 shares against 540,000 on Tuesday.

Long-term government issues struck selling opposition after chalking up new record highs in morning trade in the over-the-counter bond market.

THURSDAY, APRIL 4

MULTIPLIED: "But other fell into good ground and brought forth fruit—" Matthew 13:8. Read Matthew 13:18-23.

It would all seem so hopeless; some seed never germinating at all, the good choked out, bright promise unfulfilled; hopeless save for one thing, the power of truth and goodness to multiply and prevail. One planted grain of corn may ripen into near a thousand grains. Truth obediently received and understood will pass from mind to mind with a multiplying power to which there is no limit.

There have always been teachers whose teachings influenced generations of students, poets whose music evokes unceasing echoes, saints whose loveliness of life has made the centuries bright.

Jesus there in a boat on a little lake had all the world against him. Now his words girdle the globe, the divinely-rooted seedbed and source of whatever for 2,000 years has been creatively right, make a soul God's seed-bed, plant it with the master's truth and grace then only time can compute its harvests—

"The seeds of God-like power are in us still, ... saints and heroes, if we will."

PRAYER: Lord of the unfailing promise, we pray thee for all teachers, leaders, truth-seekers and dreamers of a better world. Give them faith and patience, assure them anew that no service to thee and thy children is ever in vain. May they see the travail of their souls—and be satisfied. Through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

WARNER WILL OPEN NEW RESTAURANT ON BALTIMORE PIKE

A new restaurant will be opened Thursday at 4 p. m., by Earl L. Warner, 47, in connection with his service station and tourist cabins, two miles east of Cumberland on the Baltimore Pike, Warner said last night.

A newly constructed concrete stucco building has been added to the premises, housing a modern restaurant which will accommodate fifty-two people and features an all electric kitchen. The kitchen is said to be the only one of its kind in this section.

Warner is a native and life-time resident of Cumberland. He is married and is assisted in the operation of the business by members of his family. He started the service station buiness and tourist cabins here about five years ago, prior to which time he conducted a service station on West Second street for about seventeen years. This station was recently purchased by Mayor Thomas S. Post, and Warner gives his full attention to the Baltimore Pike venture.

Warner plans to show the place to visitors when it opens Thursday, but stated the new electric kitchen will be open to public inspection all the time.

White Seeks Release From Garrett Jail

William R. Offutt, Oakland attorney, for William White, 70, of Gorman, accused of slaying Ervin Samuel Steyer, 39, also of the Gorman section, presented a petition before Associate Judge Walter C. Capper in circuit court, for a writ of habeas corpus to gain White's release from the Garrett county jail.

A hearing will be held at 11 a. m. today before Judge Capper at Oakland, at which time bond may be set for White's release, pending action of the September grand jury. Testimony will be presented by State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley, and by Offutt and Walter W. Dawson, counsel for White.

Steyer was shot and killed March 23 at the White home. White is charged with murder and bond had tentatively been fixed at $2,000.

Darber's appointment was made by former Commissioner Hunter B. Helfrich before the latter left office. The appointment was recommended by the Civil Service Commission, and became effective March 22.

Darber was employed at one time by the State Tent and Canvas Company.

"COCK-EYED COCKER"

mediate importance is the possibility that taxes could be reduced to the point where business men and business concerns would be inspired to conduct new ventures and to invest new capital so that more and more Americans could be put to work."

Other high points of the address included:

"In the midst of the problems that beset us on every side, problems within our state as well as those affecting America and the world, the only way to chart a really successful course is to orient ourselves, so to speak—to find out just where we are at this moment, and the direction in which we should travel from this point on. As the chief executive of the State of Maryland, it would seem well to preface any discussion of our state's future by a brief glance to the immediate past. Based on what has been accomplished up to now, we may better program our efforts in the days to come.

Gained During War

"It has often been demonstrated, in this war and in World War I particularly, how opposite are war's effects upon the individuals of a community. War develops one man while it may ruin another. So states are similarly affected. Fortunately, the effects of war have been most favorable in our own state. For its size, Maryland developed as great a war industry as any of the 48 states. Despite the inevitable changes and restrictions brought about by the needs of such a tremendous conflict, Maryland emerged from the war in excellent shape, financially and administratively. Even while devoting every ounce of effort to furthering the nation's herculean efforts to defend American ideals, it was possible to improve to a most marked degree many of the major phases of the state's functioning.

"Briefly, it can be said without hesitancy that the state is better off financially, its judiciary has been revived and strengthened, a program of betterment for our schools has been authorized and begun and the social aspects of Maryland life have been advanced so that today Maryland stands among the foremost of the truly progressive States of America.

"Through careful planning, begun long months before Pearl Harbor, our state was enabled to fulfill its obligations to the Nation completely. Maryland's Selective Service System, whose thousand and more members I designated for appointment by the President functioned in a most satisfactory manner and without the criticisms as to favoritism which were heard in some other states. Our Council of Defense, the first one established in America, handled all the complex matters, civilian defense and the like, as successfully as these complex matters could have been handled. Maryland's State Guard, plans for which were laid well before our splendid National Guard was inducted into federal service, has won continuing praise from high Army officials for its efficiency.

Confidence In Future

"As to the future, I believe we can have every confidence. With our state debt cut from 48 to approximately 20 million, our real estate levy only 40 percent of what it was in '39, with nine million dollars in cash on hand towards construction of needed additions to state institutions, our citizens can truly feel that much has been achieved in this field. Projecting the picture into the future, let me say that possibly the most important and the most promising feature of our state planning is concerned with effectuating the great improvements to our public school system, which it was our pleasure to sponsor and to carry through to completion during the last legislature.

"If you will recall, among the high points of this program of public school betterment was the provision of 12 years of free public schooling to children of every county, a reduction in the size of classes for greater teaching efficiency and higher salaries for teachers to retain and attract the best available. Added to this was a program of extended and expanded curricula for returning veterans and for all adults.

"Naturally, such a far reaching plan cannot be achieved overnight. Additional teachers must be secured, additional school facilities supplied. Under the guidance of the State Board of Education, of which your distinguished fellow countian, Tasker G. Lowndes, is chairman and in the hands of our capable State School Superintendent, Dr. Pullen, I however foresee that Maryland will reflect itself most favorably in an improved citizenship in the years ahead. Our children of today in the schools will be the citizens and leaders of tomorrow. Marylanders of this present era can take satisfaction in having paved the way for such improvement in educational facilities for the new generation.

"In the category of vital matters facing the state today, likewise, is that of roads and transportation facilities, including airways and airports. A sizeable portion of the planning which has been done in this regard affects Western Maryland immediately.

Plan Road Improvements

"All told, approximately nine million dollars of highway and bridge construction, and of road betterment is scheduled for the five Western Maryland counties. Included in these are the Eckhart Flats improvement and the Keyser-McCoole roadway in your own county, the Sandy Hook Bridge and approaches in Washington county the Keyser Ridge and Oakland Deep-Creek Roads in Garrett, the National Pike Relocation west of Frederick, and many other projects.

"Unquestionably the three-year period ahead will see the greatest surge of road and highway construction Maryland has ever experienced. And to supplement this, and to bring the two sections of the State closer together, the Chesapeake Bay Ferry System will shortly have a third modern Diesel-operated Ferry Boat and a schedule of night operation that will increase greatly the usefulness of this importan link in our highway system.

"In keeping with this improvement of ground transportation facilities will be the development of a system of air transportation facilities that will keep Maryland well in line with the most advanced States in this respect. The State Aviation Commission has been set up under broad-gauged legislation, to make it a real leader in the development of this form of travel for the State. How useful such a development will be was emphasized upon me only last weekend when I had the pleasurable experience of a weekend in Florida with but a few hours absence from the office.

"Leaving at noon Friday, we were in Lakeland that evening, where we spent two full days with other Governors of the Eastern Seaboard discussing among other things the possibilities and advantages of a closely knit system of airways to link together the farthest sections of our State. Tomorrow, I will participate in ceremonies attendant upon the opening of a new air route from Baltimore to Salisbury, which will do much to bring closer relations between our state's metropolis and the lower Eastern Shore, and will undoubtedly prove a boon to business interests and to vacationists enroute to and from the Shore.

"Uppermost in our minds for the past several years has been the desire and the determination to bring Maryland's Social Security legislation and policies into step with the most advanced programs in this field in all America. Maryland has from its very inception been a leader in liberalizing the benefits of unemployment compensation as well as of industrial accident insurance. Maryland was a pioneer State in the development of a program of medical care, which authorities throughout the land acclaim as the real answer to the threat of socialized medicine under Federal control.

Pioneering In Medical Care

"There has been much talk about the proposed Federal program of socialized medicine. It should be kept in mind that no matter what system might be evolved for assuring medical care to all who need it, the doctor is the one who is going to have to deliver it. Maryland's program of medical care was initiated by the medical profession, and is one which is bound to enlist the cooperation of the medical profession.

"Legislation establishing the program in Maryland was sponsored by me and effectuated through an appropriation of $200,000 per year for its support. While admittedly less than the estimated cost of a permanent program for the Counties of our State, it is generally agreed that it will suffice for a beginning.

"Let it be repeated that Maryland is pioneering in this field. As is ever the case at the outset of any new venture, unexpected problems and complications have arisen. So much so has this been the case with regard to the progress of medical care in Maryland during these ten months, and so great have been the difficulties encountered, that of themselves they would seem to prove definitely that no system of Federalized medicine could ever be devised that would adequately serve all 48 states with all the problems the varying conditions in the States would create.

"Functioning under the County health officer, and with eligibility limited to the recipients of public assistance, except in cases of emergency need, an average of 1500 persons per month are being cared for. Since the inception of the program, no less than 16,000 visits by physicians have been made. Wherever possible, dental care has been rendered. To date, approximately $50,000 has been spent in filling an increasing need to those of our people who are unable to provide medical care for themselves. By the end of the fiscal year, it is estimated that $80,000 to $100,000 will have been expended in this important work.

"The program is a new venture in public health, and one that may be accompanied by errors. Vigilance to detect these mistakes and willingness to correct them will help to insure the programs' success. Above all, the needs of those intended to benefit from the medical services must be kept in the foreground, for the entire medical care program exists for the sole purpose of serving these sections of our population.

"I am opposed to the socialization of medicine by the Federal government. Having unbounded confidence in the medical profession I believe that physicians and surgeons can be relied upon to practice the healing art without regimentation by Washington. Furthermore, the experience we have gained in the trial period of the medical care program proves that endless difficulties and confusion would result if the Federal Government undertakes to regulate medical practice under a single plan for the 48 states.

It is our hope to make a reality soon of what has long been an objective, namely, the establishment of the three chronic disease hospitals for the aged and indigent ill, in the various sections of our state. Unfortunately, first bids opened for the Eastern Shore Hospital at Salisbury were so far out of line that it was decided not to award the contract. But only this week I have given orders to the State Health authorities to readvertise this Salisbury project and to speed plans and specifications for the hospitals at Hagerstown and Baltimore so that they too may be advertised for bids promptly. So much for purely State matters.

Points To County Survey

As an indication of the desirable extension of State Services for the benefit of the local sub-division I might refer to the inauguration of the industrial survey of Allegany County, through the financial support of the State and with the technical assistance of the University of Maryland. It has been in many respects a new venture for the State Government. As I emphasized at the beginning of the survey, that in its broad concepts the state government has a responsibility in this respect, for obviously unless the various sections of the State are prosperous and progressive, the entire State suffers.

I am happy to report today that this industrial survey is about halfway towards completion. Some tabulation of statistics and some field work are yet to be done. It is expected, however, that a final printed report will be available some time in May. Already facts have been revealed by this research which will be of great benefit in future expansion projects and I am confident that it will be really helpful to the community in industrial planning and development.

On the national scene, we find problems crowding thick and fast, and unfortunately not as well under control as in the case with regard to strictly State affairs. Naturally with the urgent demands made upon our country's finances by the all-out war effort of the past five years, the nation's financial structure has been put to tremendous stress, to a point far beyond what most economists of the past believed was the maximum of safety.

Under the latest federal budget, we are giving the assurance, which is meant to be reassuring, that it closely approaches a balanced budget and that a budget in balance can be looked forward to next year.

In the meantime, however, what is the trend among Federal officials generally? Is it to reduce expenditures and to cut down numbers of employees in proportion to the way expenditures were raised and personnel increased under the demands of war? Frankly, and unfortunately, such is not the case. Instead of being reduced, the total of employees on the Federal payroll is still going up. And only very, very few members of Congress are apparently concerned about it.

Lauds Senator Byrd

Senator Byrd of Virginia is one of those who has done fine service in bringing to the attention of Congress and of the people of the country, the unpardonable situation that continues to exist. Until we have more men in Washington like Senator Byrd, men who know and understand the theory behind a balanced budget and who have the courage to stand up and demand that something be done, we will have no improvement. As you all know, only too well, it is easy to add people to a payroll but hard to separate them from it.

Can you imagine the theory of government that many of our Senators and Congressmen in Washington seem to have who demand reductions in our armed forces because the war's over and yet sanction increases in the ranks of civilian employes who were added to the government payrolls solely because of war's needs.

Can any business man among you, or could any business man in the country, justify continuing increases in his working staff when his volume of business was dropping tremendously month by month? Could any successful business man continue to spend in the operation of his business more money than his cash register showed? You wouldn't do it and neither should our country do it. But our country will continue to do it as long as the people fail to register their insistence upon their representatives in Washington and as long as these representatives, be they in the Senate or in the House, fail to realize the necessity of retrenchment before the safety point has been passed.

It is vitally important that there be men in Washington capable of checking into such important matters and alert to the importance of doing rather than talking. The only way under Heaven that the budget can be brought into balance is by stopping buying of things no longer needed and by getting rid of as many Federal employees as can be dispensed with without impairing the efficiency of the various departments. Maybe I might change that last statement and say that it is generaly agreed that a reduction of one-third of the employes now on the Federal payroll would immediately bring about greater efficiency in many of the departments.

Asks Flexible Regulations

"Along with such a policy, the other requisite for fullest development of ingenuity and enterprise that has always characterized the American people is the prompt elimination of any restrictions or regulations of business that are not absolutely necessary for protection of the public interest. The difficulty, the great difficulty, or such restrictions and regulations promulgated from a central office in Washington is that they are not flexible. They cannot take into consideration the different conditions obtaining in various sections of the county. It is granted that in certain fields where commodities are scarce and demand is high, it will be necessary, maybe for some months to come, to have ceiling prices in effect, but by every day that regulations and restrictions for which there no longer are need are kept on the books, by just so much will the recovery of industry be retarded and industry has been retarded overmuch since V-J Day.

"Vital to the progress of our people in the months and years ahead, likewise, is the restoration of confidence in government and among governments. Nothing could be more disturbing to the people of America than the thought that our government did not reflect in its actions the thinking of the people of America.

In the field of international relations, for instance, I sense the very definite belief among our citizenry that the time has come for America to lay down a policy of international approach and to have this policy definitely understood by the people of other nations.

"Too long has America been thought of by other nations as a well-meaning but inept nation from whom it was possible to secure financial and other advantages and to whom they owed no return.

The people of Maryland, to put it in other words, seem to be tired of being 'pushed around' as the expression goes. They are perfectly willing to do all in their power to help less fortunate nations get on their feet again, to feed them and to lead the way towards better mutual feeling among the nations of the world for the future.

"They are tired, however, of making concessions to other nations who are not willing to make concessions on their own part. They want our government, in its international relations, to adopt and maintain a realistic attitude and if other nations insist on being uncooperative, they want America to insist upon proper return for every favor granted.

"Furthermore, I believe that our people will expect their representatives in Washington to be informed on such matters and to take a firm position in the decisions that must be made affecting our relationships with other nations. Unless the accord sought by all nations through the medium of the UNO is achieved on such a basis, our people are convinced, I am sure, that there can be no real or lasting peace."

Craze Is Appointed Chairman of TWUA Veterans Committee

Roy Craze, a recently returned veteran employed in the spinning department of the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America, has been appointed chairman of the veterans committee of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, William Boyd Coleman, president, announced yesterday.

Craze replaces Arthur Schusterman, recently elected recording secretary of the local, who requested to be relieved of his work with the veterans group because of the pressure of other union activities.

Schusterman, in retiring issued a statement in which he criticised the Celanese Corporation's handling of the cases of many veterans, pointing to refusal to grant promotions and other grievances.

Bronze Star Awarded Sgt. Virgil Burns

Sgt. Virgil P. Burns, of 119 Hanover street, who survived the ill-fated Bataan Death March and the horors of the "Hell Ship" evacuation to a Japanese mainland prison camp, has been awarded a Bronze Star medal.

Burns, a member of the Veterinary corps, received the decoration from Major General Manton S. Eddy, commanding general of the Third Service Command at a special ceremony in Baltimore.

Sergeant Burns was cited for efficiency and outstanding service as mess sergeant of his hospital unit at Cabanataun Prison Camp in the Philippines. The citation noted that Sergeant Burns, under the most trying circumstances, was able to minimize the effects of malnutrition among his fellow-prisoners caused by inadequate rations given them by the Japanese.

Sergeant Burns entered the service in January, 1936, after attending both LaSalle Institute and Massanutten Military Academy at Woodstock, Virginia.

Craze Is Appointed Chairman of TWUA Veterans Committee

Roy Craze, a recently returned veteran employed in the spinning department of the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America, has been appointed chairman of the veterans committee of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, William Boyd Coleman, president, announced yesterday.

Craze replaces Arthur Schusterman, recently elected recording secretary of the local, who requested to be relieved of his work with the veterans group because of the pressure of other union activities.

Schusterman, in retiring issued a statement in which he criticised the Celanese Corporation's handling of the cases of many veterans, pointing to refusal to grant promotions and other grievances.

Bronze Star Awarded Sgt. Virgil Burns

Sgt. Virgil P. Burns, of 119 Hanover street, who survived the ill-fated Bataan Death March and the horors of the "Hell Ship" evacuation to a Japanese mainland prison camp, has been awarded a Bronze Star medal.

Burns, a member of the Veterinary corps, received the decoration from Major General Manton S. Eddy, commanding general of the Third Service Command at a special ceremony in Baltimore.

Sergeant Burns was cited for efficiency and outstanding service as mess sergeant of his hospital unit at Cabanataun Prison Camp in the Philippines. The citation noted that Sergeant Burns, under the most trying circumstances, was able to minimize the effects of malnutrition among his fellow-prisoners caused by inadequate rations given them by the Japanese.

Sergeant Burns entered the service in January, 1936, after attending both LaSalle Institute and Massanutten Military Academy at Woodstock, Virginia.

George Geatz Gets LaSalle Baseball Post

Brother Matthew Is Named Moderator of Team; Thirty-two Candidates Seek Berths

George Geatz, three-letter man at LaSalle high school, has been named coach of the Blue and Gold baseball team this year and Brother Matthew has been appointed moderator of the team, Brother Gregory, athletic director, announced last night after receiving their appointments from Brother Clement, principal of LaSalle.

At the same time, Brother Gregory announced a ten-game schedule that opens on Tuesday, April 23, with Paw Paw playing at LaSalle, and ends Friday, May 24, with LaSalle playing at Allegany.

Thirty-two LaSalle students are now trying for berths on the team, but the number probably will be cut today following an intra-squad game at Community park.

Geatz, who returned from thirty-two months of army service in January, joined the LaSalle basketball team in time to play in the recently ended Eastern State Catholic Interscholastic Tournament, Newport, R. I., where in 1943 he was named most valuable player in the tournament and was selected on the tourney all-star team.

Has Scholarship Offers

For his basketball prowess, Geatz, who is still going to high school, has received scholarship offers from the University of Kentucky, Boston college, Holy Cross, LaSalle and St. Francis colleges.

Geatz played three years of baseball at LaSalle before he went into the armed forces and played for Allegany high school when he was an eighth grade student there. He has played third base and shortstop and his last year at LaSalle was a pitcher. He played a few games with Centerville in the Pen-Mar League.

Geatz also played halfback for two years on the LaSalle football team, and starred in softball when he played on the West Side club in the City League. In 1940 he played with the North End team in the state softball tournament at Baltimore.

Brother Matthew, now in his first year at LaSalle, came here from LaSalle College high school, Philadelphia, and this year has been moderator of the LaSalle bowling team.

Now working on his doctor of philosophy degree at the University of Pittsburgh, Brother Matthew was manager of faculty teams at Central Catholic high school, Pittsburgh, in summer months and was a starting pitcher. Besides baseball, he plays basketball, tennis and handball.

Geatz began his duties as coach of the baseball team yesterday afternoon, but the squad has been practicing for three days, last Thursday and Friday and yesterday.

While stress is being laid on base-running and batting, aspirants for the team have been getting in plenty of calisthenics, pepper ball and fly chasing. The first intra-squad game was played on Friday.

Squad of Seventeen

LaSalle will have a squad of about seventeen players when the season opens.

Of the thirty-two aspirants for berths at the present time, nine have played on the team in the past with Jack Steiner, who has played for three years, the veteran of the lot. The other holdovers are one-year men.

There are seven candidates for pitcher, five for centerfield, five for right field, four for second base, three for shortstop, three for first base, two for catcher, two for left field and one for third base.

Candidates for the team, number of years on the squad, present class in school and the position they are trying for follow:

Patrick Creegan, 1, 10, p; Frank Niland, 1, 12, p; Robert Deffenbaugh, 1, 10, c; James Dulaney, 0, 11, p; Jack Steiner, 3, 12, ss; Ed Stakem, 0, 12, c; James Collins, 0, 10, cf.

The schedule as announced last night follows:

Tuesday, April 30—Hyndman at LaSalle.

Brewers Will Practice

The Queen City Brewers of the Bi-State Baseball League will practice this evening at 5 o'clock and Sunday afternoon at 1:30, Assistant Manager Charles "Whip" Kreitzburg announced last night. Both sessions will be held at Stitcher Field.

DIRECT LASALLE BASEBALL TEAM

GEORGE GEATZ, LaSalle high school athletic star, has been appointed coach of the Blue and Gold baseball team this year, and Brother Matthew (left) has been named moderator of the team by Brother Clement, LaSalle principal. The appointments were announced last night by Brother Gregory, athletic director at LaSalle, who also released the ten-game schedule. (See story).

LaSalle Jupers Win YMCA Senior Men's Basketball Crown

The LaSalle Jupers came from behind in the last period of play to defeat Lacy's Delicatets, 34-31, and win the championship of the Central YMCA Senior Men's Basketball League on the Y court last night.

In the championship game of the High School Boys' League, the Grapenuts downed the Fort Hill Hi-Y by a 26-19 score.

In the senior league game, the Delicatets moved into the lead in the opening period and at halftime held a 19-12 lead. LaSalle cut the margin to five points at the end of the third period and went on to win in the final quarter.

The play of Geatz featured for LaSalle while Montgomery's play stood out for Lacy's.

Fort Hill and the Grapenuts battled on even footing in the first period of their fray which ended 6-6, but the Grapenuts moved into a commanding 17-8 lead by halftime and were never headed.

Fred Corbin starred for the Grapenuts.

Walker Cooper Gets Discharge from Navy

ST. LOUIS, April 3—(AP)—Walker Cooper, former St. Louis Cardinal catcher who was sold for $175,000 to the New York Giants in January, was discharged from the navy today at Lambert field separation center.

Mrs. Cooper and their daughter, Sarah Ann, 6, met him at the gate entrance to the field. Cooper said he would get in touch with the Giants' manager, Mel Ott, tonight by telephone to learn where he would join the team.

Navy Shades Fordham In Contest of Errors

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 3—(AP)—The Navy baseball team turned back Fordham university, 4-3, today, in a game marked by Andy Frahler's circuit clout for the Tars, and eight bobbles by the two outfits.

Navy pushed over one run in each of the first two innings and was never overtaken. The visitors counted in the seventh but the Middies settled the outcome in their half of the inning when Bobby Hill doubled and Frahler smashed his home run.

Fordham rallied in the ninth but fell one run short of tying the score.

Conn Will Carry Fight to Bomber, Manager Asserts

Johnny Ray Says Challenger Has More Punching Power and Weight

GREENWOOD LAKE, N. J., April 3—(AP)—Johnny Ray's pet way of telling off anyone bothering him is to "back up like a horse," but Johnny is practically forgetting how it goes for the next ten weeks.

Johnny is the little blond worrier who operates as Billy Conn's board of strategy. And the reason he has wiped anything resembling "back up" out of the dictionary now is that there are only forward gears in operation up here where the Pittsburgh pretty boy is getting ready for his June 19 assault on Joe Louis's heavyweight championship.

Johnny doesn't want to tip his hand on what's cooking for Joe, but he lifted the lid today on enough of the "top secret" stuff he and Billy are getting ready to let you know that "Junior" is going to carry the fight to Louis all the way—just like he did the last time, in 1941, for twelve rounds, before he got his "Irish" up and was knocked out in the thirteenth.

"Only this time it's gonna be tougher for Joe," Johnny went on. "Billy has more punching power and more weight now. His mental condition is better—remember he was worrying about his marriage the night before the last fight. And he has just as much speed as ever."

Johnny wasn't kidding about this last. Billy went through his first full day's work today, boxing three rounds and doing five more of floor-work. And he appeared to have just as much of the rubber bounce in them as he always had, which is enough to spring around in an especially sprightly manner.

Two of Billy's rounds today were against Sam Shipani, a speedy Pittsburgh 140-pounder who makes "Junior" operate in a hurry in the ring. Billy's third beak-busting heat was against his kid brother, Jackie, and it can be stated here that the ideal way to watch a fighter training for a heavyweight title bout is to sit in while the clouting Conn's beat each other's ears off in distinctly unbrotherly fashion.

East Side Fourth Graders Down Gephart

The Fourth grade softball team of East Side school evened the series with the Gephart school fourth graders in a game played yesterday at the Gephart grounds by a score of 46 to 44. In the previous meeting Gephart defeated East Side 33 to 12.

Outstanding players for East Side were Dyer who scored twenty runs and Pete Brant who crossed the plate ten times. Warnick and Wilkins were outstanding for Gephart.

City League Names Officers for Season

Spangler Is President; Five Teams Represented at Meeting

C. William Spangler, World War II veteran and Cumberland athlete, was elected president of the City Softball League at the organization meeting last night at the home of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion.

John R. Kelley, Jr., was named vice president and J. Suter Kegg was elected secretary.

The league will be limited to eight teams and five were represented last night. They are Lacy's Delicatets, defending champions; Williams Street Merchants, East Side, Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, and Shamrocks.

Officials of the league hope to obtain three more teams by next Wednesday, when another meeting will be held at the Legion home at 7:15 p. m. The franchise fee of $20 will be due at that time and by-laws will be submitted for approval. Teams also will submit names of umpires they intend to use for approval of the league.

The league will play a split season with the winners of the first and second halves to meet for the championship in a three out of five games series. Should one team win both halves, a play off will not be necessary.

Cincinnati Reds Send Tipton to St. Paul

TAMPA, Fla., April 3 (AP)—Eric Tipton, outfielder for the Cincinnati Reds since 1942 and former football star at Duke university, was released outright to St. Paul, of the American Association, club officials reported.

Tipton, who was purchased by the Reds from Kansas City for a reported $25,000, had his best Redleg season in 1944 when he hit .301. Last year he slumped to .242.

Warren C. Giles, Reds' general manager, said Tipton, when informed of the action, complained he had not been given a fair trial this spring and indicated he might quit baseball.

American Legion Junior Baseball League Organized

William Thomas, Farrady Post, Named President of Six-club Circuit

William Thomas, Farrady Post, was elected president, Frank Williams, Fort Cumberland Post, No. 13, was named vice president, and W. H. Treiber, Fort Cumberland Post, was elected secretary.

Play in the circuit will begin about May 13 with the last games to be played by July 12, according to Treiber, who is a member of the Maryland Department athletic committee of the Legion.

Meet Baltimore Champs

The team winning the championship of the league will meet the winner of the Baltimore district league for the championship of the state, in a step toward participation in the national championships. A team representing Fort Cumberland Post played in the final game of the national tournament in 1934.

Teams representing Midland Post, No. 169, and the new Corriganville post were admitted to the league last night and Treiber said no more clubs will be admitted. Four teams were admitted a week ago. They are Memorial Post, 159, Mt. Savage; James P. Love Post, No. 92, Lonaconing; and Farrady and Fort Cumberland Posts.

The six club league will play a two-games a week schedule. Games on Monday will be played at 5 p. m. and contests on Saturday are called for 2:30 p. m. Treiber said a thirty minutes grace period will be allowed before a game is forfeited. In event of a forfeit, the forfeiting team will be fined $10.

Seven Inning Games

All games will be of seven innings duration, and in case of rain, team managers will decide on when the game will be played.

Treiber said no player will be permitted to jump from one team to another, and said that managers of the six clubs must present rosters to the league officers before the first game is played.

He announced managers as Ed J. Murray, Memorial Post; Robert McMillan and Joe Monahan, Midland Post; Melvin S. Sloan, James P. Love Post; Fred Entler, Farrady Post; James H. Thompson, Corriganville Post, and Norman Gerderman, Fort Cumberland Post.

Each team will furnish its own umpires, subject to approval of officers of the league, according to Treiber.

Another meeting of the league will be called, after the playing schedule is drawn up by the officers.

Eastern Shore and Baltimore city American Legion junior baseball leagues will be organized at meetings in the War Memorial, Baltimore, at 8 o'clock tonight.

Dip Net Is Allowed In Some Streams

Garner W. Denmead, chairman of the Game and Inland Fish Commission of Maryland, yesterday informed Robert Jackson, clerk of court, that it will be lawful to use one dip net in the waters of Allegany county except streams which have been stocked with trout.

State Game Warden Ernest A. Vaughn cited that any person who has obtained a resident angler's license can use one dip net in such streams of Allegany, Frederick and Washington counties. The regulation, effective March 20, will be in effect until revoked or repealed. Persons using nets in streams stocked with trout may be fined from $10 to $50, or sentenced to thirty days in jail.

Legion To Practice

Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, the American Legion's baseball team of the Interstate League will practice Friday evening at 4:30 o'clock at Community Park and Sunday afternoon at 2 p. m. at the same park.

State Sues To Acquire Land for Fish Hatchery

HAGERSTOWN, Md., April 3 (AP)—The Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission instituted condemnation proceedings today in circuit court to acquire a four and one-fourth tract near Beaver creek, Washington county, for use as a fish hatchery.

The suit was filed against C. E. Dennis and Urma J. Dennis. In addition to the Dennis tract, an adjoining area will be acquired and the two tracts joined to form a six-acre pool, commission officials said.

Louis Once Considered Bout in Mexico City

LOS ANGELES, April 3 (AP)—Answering a $10,000 damage suit, attorneys for Pugilist Joe Louis admitted that the heavyweight champion once considered a trip to Mexico City but gave up the idea because previous commitments interfered.

The suit was filed by Ramon Reachi, Mexican promoter, who charged that he lost $10,000 estimated profits when Louis failed to keep a date last February 5.

Louis's answer said New York Promoter Mike Jacobs, who holds his contract, informed him that the Mexican trip would have to be abandoned.

Spangler Appointed Umpire-In-Chief

John J. Long, president of the Interstate Baseball League, has appointed C. William Spangler, former Allegany high and Albright college athlete, umpire-in-chief of the league.

Spangler, a veteran of World War II, has been officiating in scholastic football and basketball for the past two years. Last summer he was manager of the West Side Merchants in the City Softball League and the past season he tutored the Allegany High Alumni basketball team in the Central Y. M. C. A. Senior League.

Spangler said yesterday that he will call a meeting of all those interested in umpiring in the Interstate in the near future. A discussion of the rules will feature the session, he said.

As umpire-in-chief, Spangler will make officiating assignments for each game. He is also eligible to serve as an arbiter in the circuit. The Interstate will open its season on Sunday, April 28.

$10,000 Masters Golf Tournament Will Open Today

Byron Nelson, 1942 Winner, and Ben Hogan Are Co-Favorites

By GAYLE TALBOT

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 3 (AP)—Except for Byron Nelson's ailing right wrist, everything appeared to be in readiness tonight for the opening of the first postwar Masters golf tournament.

Nelson, winner of the last Masters played in 1942 and co-favorite with Ben Hogan to win the $2,500 first prize in the current event, did not practice today. He spent an hour with an osteopath getting the aches rubbed out of his wrist upon which he slept inadvertently two nights ago. He said he thought it would be okay by the time he tees off in the feature twosome with Bobby Jones at 2:18 p. m. tomorrow.

Nelson, Hogan Are 3-1

The bookmakers, frankly making no effort to choose between the two former Texas caddies, Nelson and Hogan, in the seventy-two-hole test, bracketed them at 3-1 against Sammy Snead, who arrived only today in time for a brief practice session. He was held at 4-1. Jimmy Demaret, a former winner, was offered at 6-1.

Those were the big four. As for the remainder of the select starting field of fifty-one, they could be backed at prices ranging up to 100-1. Few of them boasted any backers.

There was strong opinion that one of the top quartet was due to shatter Ralph Guldahl's tournament record of 279 strokes, set in 1939.

Sarazen Withdraws

Only one of the seven former winners was missing. Gene Sarazen, whose famous double-eagle helped him triumph in 1935, notified the committee today he would be detained in Detroit on business. His withdrawal altered the pairings, dropping Byrd, the old baseball player, into the final threesome with McSpaden and Wood. Otherwise, they will play in pairs.

Only one concession has been made to the rigid listing of starting time. Cliff Roberts, the tournament chairman, announced that Walter Hagen and Francis Ouimet, two of the nation's golfing immortals, would be privileged to start any time they chose.

"When they show up on the tee, we'll simply stop everything and let them go off," he said. "They can play one hole or eighteen and quit whenever they feel like it."

George Geatz Gets LaSalle Baseball Post

Brother Matthew Is Named Moderator of Team; Thirty-two Candidates Seek Berths

George Geatz, three-letter man at LaSalle high school, has been named coach of the Blue and Gold baseball team this year and Brother Matthew has been appointed moderator of the team, Brother Gregory, athletic director, announced last night after receiving their appointments from Brother Clement, principal of LaSalle.

At the same time, Brother Gregory announced a ten-game schedule that opens on Tuesday, April 23 with Paw Paw playing at LaSalle, and ends Friday, May 24, with LaSalle playing at Allegany.

Thirty-two LaSalle students are now trying for berths on the team, but the number probably will be cut today following an intra-squad game at Community park.

Geatz, who returned from thirty-two months of army service in January, joined the LaSalle basketball team in time to play in the recently ended Eastern State Catholic Interscholastic Tournament, Newport, R. I., where in 1943 he was named most valuable player in the tournament and was selected on the tourney all-star team.

Has Scholarship Offers

For his basketball prowess, Geatz, who is still going to high school, has received scholarship offers from the University of Kentucky, Boston college, Holy Cross, LaSalle and St. Francis colleges.

Geatz played three years of baseball at LaSalle before he went into the armed forces and played for Allegany high school when he was an eighth grade student there. He has played third base and shortstop and his last year at LaSalle was a pitcher. He played a few games with Centerville in the Pen-Mar League.

Geatz also played halfback for two years on the LaSalle football team, and starred in softball when he played on the West Side club in the City League. In 1940 he played with the North End team in the state softball tournament at Baltimore.

Brother Matthew, now in his first year at LaSalle, came here from LaSalle College high school, Philadelphia, and this year has been moderator of the LaSalle bowling team.

Now working on his doctor of philosophy degree at the University of Pittsburgh, Brother Matthew was manager of faculty teams at Central Catholic high school, Pittsburgh, in summer months and was a starting pitcher. Besides baseball, he plays basketball, tennis and handball.

Geatz began his duties as coach of the baseball team yesterday afternoon, but the squad has been practicing for three days, last Thursday and Friday and yesterday.

While stress is being laid on baserunning and batting, aspirants for the team have been getting in plenty of calisthenics, pepper ball and fly chasing. The first intra-squad game was played on Friday.

Squad of Seventeen

LaSalle will have a squad of about seventeen players when the season opens.

Of the thirty-two aspirants for berths at the present time, nine have played on the team in the past with Jack Steiner, who has played for three years, the veteran of the lot. The other holdovers are one-year men.

There are seven candidates for pitcher, five for centerfield, five for right field, four for second base, three for shortstop, three for first base, two for catcher, two for left field and one for third base.

Candidates for the team, number of years on the squad, present class in school and the position they are trying for follow:

Bob Woods, 0, 9, p; Norman Sell, 0, 9, p; Louis Arnone, 0, 10, p; Hugh Miller, 0, 9, p; John Carter, 0, 10, 1b; Ray Ruppenkamp, 0, 11, 1b; Charles Genevie, 0, 9, 1b; John Nesbitt, 1, 10, 2b.

Tom Moran 0, 11, 2b; James Close, 0, 9, 2b; Bob Mattingly, 1, 12, 2b; John Esposito, 1, 11, ss; Bill Brannon, 0, 12, ss; John Campbell, 0, 12, 3b; Bob Murray, 0, 10, rf.

Raymond Wempe is manager of the team.

Schedule Is Announced

The schedule as announced last night follows:

Tuesday, April 23—Paw Paw at LaSalle.

Friday, April 26—LaSalle at Beall.

Friday, May 3—Fort Hill at LaSalle.

Brewers Will Practice

The Queen City Brewers of the Bi-State Baseball League will practice this evening at 5 o'clock and Sunday afternoon at 1:30. Assistant Manager Charles "Whip" Kreitzburg announced last night. Both sessions will be held at Stitcher Field.

DIRECT LASALLE BASEBALL TEAM

GEORGE GEATZ, LaSalle high school athletic star, has been appointed coach of the Blue and Gold baseball team this year, and Brother Matthew (left) has been named moderator of the team by Brother Clement, LaSalle principal. The appointments were announced last night by Brother Gregory, athletic director at LaSalle, who also released the ten-game schedule. (See story).

LaSalle Jupers Win YMCA Senior Men's Basketball Crown

The LaSalle Jupers came from behind in the last period of play to defeat Lacy's Delicatets, 34-31, and win the championship of the Central YMCA Senior Men's Basketball League on the Y court last night.

In the championship game of the High School Boys' League, the Grapenuts downed the Fort Hill Hi-Y by a 26-19 score.

In the senior league game, the Delicatets moved into the lead in the opening period and at halftime held a 19-12 lead. LaSalle cut the margin to five points at the end of the third period and went on to win in the final quarter.

The play of Geatz featured for LaSalle while Montgomery's play stood out for Lacy's.

Fort Hill and the Grapenuts battled on even footing in the first period of their fray which ended 6-6, but the Grapenuts moved into a commanding 17-8 lead by halftime and were never headed.

Fred Corbin starred for the Grapenuts.

Walker Cooper Gets Discharge from Navy

ST. LOUIS, April 3—(AP)—Walker Cooper, former St. Louis Cardinal catcher who was sold for $175,000 to the New York Giants in January, was discharged from the navy today at Lambert field separation center.

Mrs. Cooper and their daughter, Sarah Ann, 6, met him at the gate entrance to the field. Cooper said he would get in touch with the Giants' manager, Mel Ott, tonight by telephone to learn where he would join the team.

Navy Shades Fordham In Contest of Errors

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 3—(AP)—The Navy baseball team turned back Fordham university, 4-3, today, in a game marked by Andy Frahler's circuit clout for the Tars, and eight bobbles by the two outfits.

Navy pushed over one run in each of the first two innings and was never overtaken. The visitors counted in the seventh but the Middies settled the outcome in their half of the inning when Bobby Hill doubled and Frahler smashed his home run.

Fordham rallied in the ninth but fell one run short of tying the score.

Conn Will Carry Fight to Bomber, Manager Asserts

Johnny Ray Says Challenger Has More Punching Power and Weight

GREENWOOD LAKE, N. J., April 3—(AP)—Johnny Ray's pet way of telling off anyone bothering him is to "back up like a horse," but Johnny is practically forgetting how it goes for the next ten weeks.

Johnny is the little blond worrier who operates as Billy Conn's board of strategy. And the reason he has wiped anything resembling "back up" out of the dictionary now is that there are only forward gears in operation up here where the Pittsburgh pretty boy is getting ready for his June 19 assault on Joe Louis's heavyweight championship.

Johnny doesn't want to tip his hand on what's cooking for Joe, but he lifted the lid today on enough of the "top secret" stuff he and Billy are getting ready to let you know that "Junior" is going to carry the fight to Louis all the way—just like he did the last time, in 1941, for twelve rounds, before he got his "Irish" up and was knocked out in the thirteenth.

"Only this time it's gonna be tougher for Joe," Johnny went on. "Billy has more punching power and more weight now. His mental condition is better—remember he was worrying about his marriage the night before the last fight. And he has just as much speed as ever."

Johnny wasn't kidding about this last. Billy went through his first full day's work today, boxing three rounds and doing five more of floor-work. And he appeared to have just as much of the rubber bounce in them as he always had, which is enough to spring around in an especially sprightly manner.

Two of Billy's rounds today were against Sam Shipani, a speedy Pittsburgh 140-pounder who makes "Junior" operate in a hurry in the ring. Billy's third beak-busting heat was against his kid brother, Jackie, and it can be stated here that the ideal way to watch a fighter training for a heavyweight title bout is to sit in while the clouting Conn's beat each other's ears off in distinctly unbrotherly fashion.

East Side Fourth Graders Down Gephart

The Fourth grade softball team of East Side school evened the series with the Gephart school fourth graders in a game played yesterday at the Gephart grounds by a score of 46 to 44. In the previous meeting Gephart defeated East Side 33 to 12.

Outstanding players for East Side were Dyer who scored twenty runs and Pete Brant who crossed the plate ten times. Warnick and Wilkins were outstanding for Gephart.

City League Names Officers for Season

Spangler Is President; Five Teams Represented at Meeting

C. William Spangler, World War II veteran and Cumberland athlete, was elected president of the City Softball League at the organization meeting last night at the home of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion.

John R. Kelley, Jr., was named vice president and J. Suter Kegg was elected secretary.

The league will be limited to eight teams and five were represented last night. They are Lacy's Delicatets, defending champions; Williams Street Merchants, East Side, Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, and Shamrocks.

Officials of the league hope to obtain three more teams by next Wednesday, when another meeting will be held at the Legion home at 7:15 p. m. The franchise fee of $20 will be due at that time and by-laws will be submitted for approval. Teams also will submit names of umpires they intend to use for approval of the league.

The league will play a split season with the winners of the first and second halves to meet for the championship in a three out of five games series. Should one team win both halves, a play off will not be necessary.

Cincinnati Reds Send Tipton to St. Paul

TAMPA, Fla., April 3 (AP)—Eric Tipton, outfielder for the Cincinnati Reds since 1942 and former football star at Duke university, was released outright to St. Paul, of the American Association, club officials reported.

Tipton, who was purchased by the Reds from Kansas City for a reported $25,000, had his best Redleg season in 1944 when he hit .301. Last year he slumped to .242.

Warren C. Giles, Reds' general manager, said Tipton, when informed of the action, complained he had not been given a fair trial this spring and indicated he might quit baseball.

American Legion Junior Baseball League Organized

William Thomas, Farrady Post, Named President of Six-club Circuit

William Thomas, Farrady Post, was elected president, Frank Williams, Fort Cumberland Post, No. 13, was named vice president, and W. H. Treiber, Fort Cumberland Post, was elected secretary.

Play in the circuit will begin about May 13 with the last games to be played by July 12, according to Treiber, who is a member of the Maryland Department athletic committee of the Legion.

Meet Baltimore Champs

The team winning the championship of the league will meet the winner of the Baltimore district league for the championship of the state, in a step toward participation in the national championships. A team representing Fort Cumberland Post played in the final game of the national tournament in 1934.

Teams representing Midland Post, No. 169, and the new Corriganville post were admitted to the league last night and Treiber said no more clubs will be admitted. Four teams were admitted a week ago. They are Memorial Post, 159, Mt. Savage; James P. Love Post, No. 92, Lonaconing; and Farrady and Fort Cumberland Posts.

The six club league will play a two-games a week schedule. Games on Monday will be played at 5 p. m. and contests on Saturday are called for 2:30 p. m. Treiber said a thirty minutes grace period will be allowed before a game is forfeited. In event of a forfeit, the forfeiting team will be fined $10.

Seven Inning Games

All games will be of seven innings duration, and in case of rain, team managers will decide on when the game will be played.

Treiber said no player will be permitted to jump from one team to another, and said that managers of the six clubs must present rosters to the league officers before the first game is played.

He announced managers as Ed J. Murray, Memorial Post; Robert McMillian and Joe Monahan, Midland Post; Melvin S. Sloan, James P. Love Post; Fred Entler, Farrady Post; James H. Thompson, Corriganville Post, and Norman Gerderman, Fort Cumberland Post.

Each team will furnish its own umpires, subject to approval of officers of the league, according to Treiber.

Another meeting of the league will be called, after the playing schedule is drawn up by the officers.

Eastern Shore and Baltimore city American Legion junior baseball leagues will be organized at meetings in the War Memorial, Baltimore, at 8 o'clock tonight.

Dip Net Is Allowed In Some Streams

Garner W. Denmead, chairman of the Game and Inland Fish Commission of Maryland, yesterday informed Robert Jackson, clerk of court, that it will be lawful to use one dip net in the waters of Allegany county except streams which have been stocked with trout.

State Game Warden Ernest A. Vaughn cited that any person who has obtained a resident angler's license can use one dip net in such streams of Allegany, Frederick and Washington counties. The regulation, effective March 20, will be in effect until revoked or repealed. Persons using nets in streams stocked with trout may be fined from $10 to $50, or sentenced to thirty days in jail.

Spangler Appointed Umpire-In-Chief

John J. Long, president of the Interstate Baseball League, has appointed C. William Spangler, former Allegany high and Albright college athlete, umpire-in-chief of the league.

Spangler, a veteran of World War II, has been officiating in scholastic football and basketball for the past two years. Last summer he was manager of the West Side Merchants in the City Softball League and the past season he tutored the Allegany High Alumni basketball team in the Central Y. M. C. A. Senior League.

Spangler said yesterday that he will call a meeting of all those interested in umpiring in the Interstate in the near future. A discussion of the rules will feature the session, he said.

As umpire-in-chief, Spangler will make officiating assignments for each game. He is also eligible to serve as an arbiter in the circuit. The Interstate will open its season on Sunday, April 28.

State Sues To Acquire Land for Fish Hatchery

HAGERSTOWN, Md., April 3 (AP)—The Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission instituted condemnation proceedings today in circuit court to acquire a four and one-fourth tract near Beaver creek, Washington county, for use as a fish hatchery.

The suit was filed against C. E. Dennis and Urma J. Dennis. In addition to the Dennis tract, an adjoining area will be acquired and the two tracts joined to form a six-acre pool, commission officials said.

Louis Once Considered Bout in Mexico City

LOS ANGELES, April 3 (AP)—Answering a $10,000 damage suit, attorneys for Pugilist Joe Louis admitted that the heavyweight champion once considered a trip to Mexico City but gave up the idea because previous commitments interfered.

The suit was filed by Ramon Reachi, Mexican promoter, who charged that he lost $10,000 estimated profits when Louis failed to keep a date last February 5.

Louis's answer said New York Promoter Mike Jacobs, who holds his contract, informed him that the Mexican trip would have to be abandoned.

$10,000 Masters Golf Tournament Will Open Today

Byron Nelson, 1942 Winner, and Ben Hogan Are Co-Favorites

By GAYLE TALBOT

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 3 (AP)—Except for Byron Nelson's ailing right wrist, everything appeared to be in readiness tonight for the opening of the first postwar Masters golf tournament.

Nelson, winner of the last Masters played in 1942 and co-favorite with Ben Hogan to win the $2,500 first prize in the current event, did not practice today. He spent an hour with an osteopath getting the aches rubbed out of his wrist upon which he slept inadvertently two nights ago. He said he thought it would be okay by the time he tees off in the feature twosome with Bobby Jones at 2:18 p. m. tomorrow.

Nelson, Hogan Are 3-1

The bookmakers, frankly making no effort to choose between the two former Texas caddies, Nelson and Hogan, in the seventy-two-hole test, bracketed them at 3-1 against Sammy Snead, who arrived only today in time for a brief practice session. He was held at 4-1. Jimmy Demaret, a former winner, was offered at 6-1.

Those were the big four. As for the remainder of the select starting field of fifty-one, they could be backed at prices ranging up to 100-1. Few of them boasted any backers.

There was strong opinion that one of the top quartet was due to shatter Ralph Guldahl's tournament record of 279 strokes, set in 1939.

Sarazen Withdraws

Only one of the seven former winners was missing. Gene Sarazen, whose famous double-eagle helped him triumph in 1935, notified the committee today he would be detained in Detroit on business. His withdrawal altered the pairings, dropping Byrd, the old baseball player, into the final threesome with McSpaden and Wood. Otherwise, they will play in pairs.

Only one concession has been made to the rigid listing of starting time. Cliff Roberts, the tournament chairman, announced that Walter Hagen and Francis Ouimet, two of the nation's golfing immortals, would be privileged to start any time they chose.

"When they show up on the tee, we'll simply stop everything and let them go off," he said. "They can play one hole or eighteen and quit whenever they feel like it."

Swiv Wins Rowe Memorial Race At Bowie Park

Six-Year-Old Campaigner Runs Away from 11 Other Contenders

BOWIE, Md., April 3 (AP) — Swiv, six-year-old campaigner from the stable of H. C. Genter, ran away from a field of eleven other highly regarded sprinters today to capture the fifteenth running of the Rowe Memorial Handicap at Bowie by four and a half lengths.

Given a smart ride by Jockey Arnold Kirkland, the son of Ariel-Swivel shot into the lead on the backstretch, shook off a challenge by A. F. Plock's Ellis, and hit the wire eased up in 1:12 for the six furlongs — fastest time of the meeting to date.

Ellis was second, a length and a half before Mrs. Roy Carruthers' Jimmie, while Bobanet Stable's Ideal Gift was another length away in fourth.

The crowd of approximately 15,000, looking on under warm skies, established Joe Tucci's Nowadays as the favorite, but after a brief spurt near the far turn Nowadays faded and finished ninth.

Swiv, which looked good in training here after racing around Miami, looked better when the prices showed on the "tote" board — $17.80, $8.90 and $6 for each $2 in the mutuels. His victory was worth $6,375 to owner Genter.

Martin Discusses Players Jumping To Mexican Loop

Doesn't Think There Is Much Else Commissioner Chandler Can Do

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP)—Now that the Mexican situation has developed from an inconsequential annoyance into a hangover headache for the big leagues there are broad hints that Commissioner A. B. "Happy" Chandler should do something to stop the exodus of Major League baseball players.

Just what is not quite clear, but the idea seems to be he should do something. Some think he has not been emphatic enough in stating that the athletes joining up with the Mexican organization are subject to an automatic suspension of five years.

Well, maybe they want him to stamp his foot and shake his finger when he says it, but to our way of thinking his plain statement should carry sufficient weight without any accompanying pyrotechnics. When a man says you're suspended you're suspended, that's all, whether he says it in a whisper or spells it out for you, with gestures.

Might Negotiate Agreement

Frankly, we can't see what else the commissioner can do, unless it would be to call a meeting of club owners and find out if they want to negotiate some sort of an agreement with the Mexican League whereby contracts would be mutually respected. We don't think it would be within his scope of authority to take such action alone.

A five-year suspension really is equivalent to a life suspension, inasmuch as there is small chance of a ball player applying for reinstatement at the end of that period.

We wonder a little if a player were to play five years in Mexico, then feel the yen to come back and play in this country, whether or not he would be immediately reinstated. The five-year suspension, we would imagine, would date from the time he first played over the border. In such a case the suspension would be a painless operation, as he would not lose any playing time, could cu in on those fat salaries the Mexicans reportedly are paying, then come back with everything forgiver.

The sin in joining the Mexican League seems to be confined to any breach of contract with an American team. A boy who never had played pro ball in this country and was under no obligation most certainly could sign with a Mexican team with impunity, and return to play here at will.

We wonder a little if a Mexican player, under contract to a Mexican team, decided to come to this country and was good enough to play on one of our Major League teams whether or not he would be barred because he was under contract to a Mexican team. We have an idea it would be pretty easy to ignore that Mexican contract the same as the Mexican clubs ignore the American contracts.

Other Players May Go

We also wonder what action anyone else would take concerning the contract jumpers were he in Chandler's position. Chandler has cited the suspension rule. What more can he do? Call the truant officer, maybe.

While we are still full of wonder, being a wonderful guy, we wonder how long the Mexican League's wealthy sponsors will be able, or willing, to pay the supposedly fabulous salaries to men who, except in three or four instances, are ordinary ball players. The payrolls must be enormous, and it's difficult to believe attendance will be such as to make the clubs show a profit at the end of the year.

For all we know there may be more name players such as Vernon Stephens and Mickey Owen who will make the Mexico hop, but there will be enough good players left here to carry on.

Maryland Nine Trims Fort Meade Tossers

COLLEGE PARK, Md., April 3—(AP)—Jack Flynn's first-inning homer led the University of Maryland baseball team to a 10-3 victory over Fort Meade in a practice game today.

Flynn, Terp second-baseman, connected with the bases loaded to score four runs. He was followed in the sixth by Bob Wilson, a pinch-hitter, who made the circuit with two on to clinch the Maryland victory.

Tom Gwosden paced the Fort Meade attack, collecting two hits and scoring once.

Feed Your Dog as Many Famous Breeders Do

"... best of condition on Gro-Pup"

Francis Bushman, owner of the Bushman Kennels, Braintree, Mass., says: "I recommend Kellogg's GRO-PUP Meal and Pellets. We have a pack of hard-hunting American foxhounds that keep in the best of condition fed on a basic diet of GRO-PUP."

MOST breeders and veterinarians use and recommend a foundation diet of good dry dog food fed with scrap meat, including fat. So many feed Kellogg's GRO-PUP because it provides all the vitamins and minerals dogs are known to need for growth and vigor.

Kellogg's GRO-PUP is thrifty. And dogs love its hearty, meaty flavor.

Swiv Wins Rowe Memorial Race At Bowie Park

Six-Year-Old Campaigner Runs Away from 11 Other Contenders

BOWIE, Md., April 3 (AP) — Swiv, six-year-old campaigner from the stable of H. C. Genter, ran away from a field of eleven other highly regarded sprinters today to capture the fifteenth running of the Rowe Memorial Handicap at Bowie by four and a half lengths.

Given a smart ride by Jockey Arnold Kirkland, the son of Ariel-Swivel shot into the lead on the backstretch, shook off a challenge by A. F. Plock's Ellis, and hit the wire eased up in 1:12 for the six furlongs — fastest time of the meeting to date.

Ellis was second, a length and a half before Mrs. Roy Carruthers' Jimmie, while Bobanet Stable's Ideal Gift was another length away in fourth.

The crowd of approximately 15,000, looking on under warm skies, established Joe Tucci's Nowadays as the favorite, but after a brief spurt near the far turn Nowadays faded and finished ninth.

Swiv, which looked good in training here after racing around Miami, looked better when the prices showed on the "tote" board — $17.80, $8.90 and $6 for each $2 in the mutuels. His victory was worth $6,375 to owner Genter.

Tabor Leads Phillies In Batting with .333

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., April 3. (AP) Lanky Third Baseman Jim Tabor has improved so much at the plate that he's leading the Philadelphia Phils' squad in batting with an unofficial .333 average in twenty-one spring training camp games, Coach Benny Bengough said today.

Tabor, purchased during the winter from the Boston Red Sox for $20,000, was a slow starter, getting few hits during the first three weeks. In the twenty-one games he had seventeen hits in fifty-one trips to the plate.

Martin Discusses Players Jumping To Mexican Loop

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP)—Now that the Mexican situation has developed from an inconsequential annoyance into a hangover headache for the big leagues there are broad hints that Commissioner A. B. "Happy" Chandler should do something to stop the exodus of Major League baseball players.

Just what is not quite clear, but the idea seems to be he should do something. Some think he has not been emphatic enough in stating that the athletes joining up with the Mexican organization are subject to an automatic suspension of five years.

Well, maybe they want him to stamp his foot and shake his finger when he says it, but to our way of thinking his plain statement should carry sufficient weight without any accompanying pyrotechnics. When a man says you're suspended you're suspended, that's all, whether he says it in a whisper or spells it out for you, with gestures.

Might Negotiate Agreement

Frankly, we can't see what else the commissioner can do, unless it would be to call a meeting of club owners and find out if they want to negotiate some sort of an agreement with the Mexican League whereby contracts would be mutually respected. We don't think it would be within his scope of authority to take such action alone.

A five-year suspension really is equivalent to a life suspension, inasmuch as there is small chance of a ball player applying for reinstatement at the end of that period.

We wonder a little if a player were to play five years in Mexico, then feel the yen to come back and play in this country, whether or not he would be immediately reinstated. The five-year suspension, we would imagine, would date from the time he first played over the border. In such a case the suspension would be a painless operation, as he would not lose any playing time, could cu in on those fat salaries the Mexicans reportedly are paying, then come back with everything forgiver.

The sin in joining the Mexican League seems to be confined to any breach of contract with an American team. A boy who never had played pro ball in this country and was under no obligation most certainly could sign with a Mexican team with impunity, and return to play here at will.

We wonder a little if a Mexican player, under contract to a Mexican team, decided to come to this country and was good enough to play on one of our Major League teams whether or not he would be barred because he was under contract to a Mexican team. We have an idea it would be pretty easy to ignore that Mexican contract the same as the Mexican clubs ignore the American contracts.

Other Players May Go

We also wonder what action anyone else would take concerning the contract jumpers were he in Chandler's position. Chandler has cited the suspension rule. What more can he do? Call the truant officer, maybe.

While we are still full of wonder, being a wonderful guy, we wonder how long the Mexican League's wealthy sponsors will be able, or willing, to pay the supposedly fabulous salaries to men who, except in three or four instances, are ordinary ball players. The payrolls must be enormous, and it's difficult to believe attendance will be such as to make the clubs show a profit at the end of the year.

For all we know there may be more name players such as Vernon Stephens and Mickey Owen who will make the Mexico hop, but there will be enough good players left here to carry on.

Maryland Nine Trims Fort Meade Tossers

COLLEGE PARK, Md., April 3—(AP)—Jack Flynn's first-inning homer led the University of Maryland baseball team to a 10-3 victory over Fort Meade in a practice game today.

Flynn, Terp second-baseman, connected with the bases loaded to score four runs. He was followed in the sixth by Bob Wilson, a pinch-hitter, who made the circuit with two on to clinch the Maryland victory.

Tom Gwosden paced the Fort Meade attack, collecting two hits and scoring once.

Feed Your Dog as Many Famous Breeders Do

"... best of condition on Gro-Pup"

Francis Bushman, owner of the Bushman Kennels, Braintree, Mass., says: "I recommend Kellogg's GRO-PUP Meal and Pelletts. We have a pack of hard-hunting American foxhounds that keep in the best of condition fed on a basic diet of GRO-PUP."

MOST breeders and veterinarians use and recommend a foundation diet of good dry dog food fed with scrap meat, including fat. So many feed Kellogg's GRO-PUP because it provides all the vitamins and minerals dogs are known to need for growth and vigor.

Kellogg's GRO-PUP is thrifty. And dogs love its hearty, meaty flavor.

Industrial Survey To Give Valuable Data on County

Governor Says Allegany Has Unusually Stable Working Population

Announcement was made here yesterday by Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, that the industrial survey of Allegany county, undertaken some months ago by the University of Maryland with state financial support, is well on the way to completion.

"While it is expected," Governor O'Conor said, "that the printed report of the survey will not be released until some time in May, enough data already is available to make certain that the survey report will be of great assistance to Cumberland in its industrial planning and development."

"This survey originated with citizen groups," the governor explained. "The support of the state in this undertaking comes from full recognition that the economic well being of the state and nation, is in the final analysis, dependent upon how well each community orders its economic life. This is in turn as I see it," he continued, "much a matter of how well a community knows itself, its resources and the tools it has to work with.

Gives True Picture

"This survey, as it was outlined to me by community representatives of Cumberland is a real effort in that direction. The purpose is to measure the economic potentials of Allegany county, its points of strength as well as limitations so that effective direction of effort can be made toward the maximum development of the economy here in Allegany county."

Several facts stand out clearly in the report, the governor declared. With regard to the all important factor of labor, the report will show that among favorable factors of Allegany county economy, the county has an unusually stable working population. The quality of the county labor force is shown as exceptionally high, he said. There are very few drifters and a relatively large home ownership by worker groups. This condition, he asserted, has been responsible for the establishment of at least one new industry recently, in the county.

Among the less favorable aspects of the county labor situation disclosed by the survey, the governor revealed, is that only four percent of the employment is in timber and agriculture. Coal deposits are nearing completion, so that the total number of coal miners in Allegany county is only a little more than 1,000 compared to 5,000 in 1910. There is also an unusually high concentration of industry, he stated.

Three companies in Allegany county, the report will indicate, employ ninety percent of the total manufacturing production, he said, and more than fifty percent of the total employment of all activities in that area.

Small Industries Advocated

The county runs a great risk in having such a large part of its industrial eggs in one basket, O'Conor stated. This places a heavy burden of responsibility upon the community and upon those industries to maintain industrial peace.

Allegany county, likewise, has a very limited supply of trained labor, a fact which might militate against major industry expansion, the governor further pointed out. He noted, however, a supply of unskilled or semi-skilled laborers, perhaps 3,000 to 5,000 persons, who should be provided with jobs by small industry, perhaps by needlecraft.

Total unemployment benefit checks for February, number 1,697 to the amount of $30,635, the largest for any single month since the summer of 1942, the Governor made known. Total claims for jobless benefits of 4,423 also are the largest number since 1942, O'Conor said, adding that more than 5,000 persons are seeking employment, as indicated by the active files of the local United States Employment office.

Selective Service Awards Presented By Gov. O'Conor

Governor Expresses Gratitude to 44 Allegany and Garrett Citizens

At a presentation ceremony yesterday afternoon in city hall council chamber, Governor Herbert R. O'Conor, speaking in behalf of the people of Maryland, expressed words of gratitude to forty-four citizens of Allegany and Garrett counties, who served in the Selective Service System during the war years.

Governor O'Conor said that Selective Service in Maryland had been operated fairly and those responsible for deciding which men must remain at home and which men must enter service, had what very often appeared to be a thankless and heartless job.

"But when private citizens," he exclaimed, "are willing to come forward and do a thankless job, that of calling the nation's youth to arms, we demonstrate the innermost strength of our democracy."

Not a Thankless Task

"Often it may seem," the governor continued, "that public service of this kind seems like an endless, thankless task. But this is not the case. This task, the long hours spent night and day, when the country was fighting for its survival, cannot be forgotten." The awards presented, he explained, represent the highest distinction a citizen can receive, and are emblematic of unselfish public service in connection with the concerted effort toward winning the war.

Governor O'Conor was presented by Col. Henry C. Stanwood, director of Selective Service in Maryland.

Col. Stanwood said, "We are honored this afternoon to have our state's chief executive present, to decorate those here who are eligible to receive the Selective Service medals and certificates.

"I was privileged, last Wednesday, to be present, when the national director of Selective Service, Major General Lewis B. Hershey, presented these same awards to Governor O'Conor. I was interested to learn that of all the governors in the United States, Governor O'Conor is the only one still actively serving as governor, who organized the Selective Service System in his state, and who still remains the active head of the state's system.

Reads List of Names

"It follows therefore that it would be impossible to find anyone to present the awards today, who has a keener appreciation of the burden of labor which you each carried for your country during the long years of her great need."

Col. Stanwood then read the names of physicians, dentists, medical advisory board members and re-employment committeemen who gave two years or more service prior to November 30, 1945, to Selective Service. He explained that those who have now served a total of two years and whose names were not on the roster which closed in November, will receive awards at a later date.

Several of those eligible for awards were absent due to illness or other reasons, and a couple of men are still in uniform, having entered after serving with Selective Service.

Those called by Stanwood for awards from Governor O'Conor included Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, Dr. C. S. Beamer, Frederick W. Boettner, Dr. R. C. Bowen, (now deceased), Dr. E. E. Broadrup, James M. Conway, Dr. L. E. Daugherty, Dr. H. C Diehl, John P. Dolphin, Dr. Clay Durrett, Dr. H. W. Eliason, Dr. S. E Enfield, Dr. Lyle Everhart, Roy W. Eves, Dr. Winter R. Frantz, Dr. W. E. Gattens, Dr. H. F. Three Men Held For Grand Jury

A young negro woman and three men were arraigned in trial magistrates court here yesterday on theft charges. The three men were held for action of the April grand jury, while the young woman was given a suspended sentence.

Bessie Lee Bates, 18, 228 South Lee street, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of taking a dress from a Baltimore street ladies' store, where she was employed as an elevator girl. She said she took the dress on or about March 7. Magistrate Frank A. Perdew sentenced her to thirty days in the county jail, but suspended sentence on condition that she pay for the dress.

James Cody Phelan, 21, Fresno, Calif., was taken to the county jail in default of $200 bond, for action of the grand jury, on a charge of stealing a bicycle here valued at about $35. The man was arrested in Keyser, W. Va., Monday at the request of local police. He admitted taking the bicycle which was owned by James Cox, this city.

Howard S. Rodeheaver, Thomas street, and Leonard L. Welsh, Gay street, were committed to county jail by order of Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., in default of $250 bond each, for action of the grand jury.

The two men are charged with stealing mine car wheels valued at $64, from the Clarysville mines. Marshall Stanton was complaining witness. Lt. Detective B. Frank Gaffney and Detective Edwin R. Lilya investigated.

The men were arrested Tuesday afternoon by Officer John W. Snyder after the local policeman and Stanton, during a search of local junk yards, located the dealer who had purchased wheels weighing 7,800 pounds from the pair on Monday.

Police said Stanton discovered the loss of the wheels Tuesday when he went to feed his ponies at the Gunston coal mine seven miles west of here.

Post Office Resumes First Class Mail Service to Germany

Communication with Germany by letter, shut down since November 1, 1939, has been reopened, James C. Shriver, postmaster, announced yesterday.

Effective immediately, letters weighing nor more than one ounce and non-illustrated post cards will be accepted for delivery to Germany at all United States post offices.

Rates are the same as those in force before the war, five cents for letters and three cents for post cards.

Present communications are restricted to those of a personal or family nature. Letters relating to business or commerce will not be accepted. Checks, money orders or currency cannot be sent through the mails to Germany.

Air mail, registration, special delivery, money order and parcel post service are not yet available, postal authorities said.

Cancer Campaign Goal for County Is Set at $6,000

Allegany county has been assigned a goal of $6,000 in the American Cancer Society's annual fund-raising campaign, according to Dr. George G. Finney, Baltimore, state chairman.

Dr. Finney also announced that Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum has been appointed commander for the Sixth district, which comprises Allegany and Garrett counties.

Mrs. Rosenbaum stated that she anticipates most of the solicitation in this area will be by letter. Campaign plans have not yet been completed. The goal for the state of Maryland is $200,000.

Last year $2,500 was raised here and $1,250 went to the cancer clinic operated at Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Rosenbaum explained that one of the most important factors in the campaign against cancer is education so that people recognize the signs and take early action.

Of the funds raised 40 per cent will go to the national society for its work in cancer research and education and the remaining 60 per cent will be kept in Maryland to carry on the society's three-fold program of research into the cause and control of cancer, education and actual care of indigent cancer patients.

By act of Congress and Presidential proclamation the month of April has been designated "Cancer-Control Month" and the campaign to raise enough money to wage an all-out war on this No. 1 enemy of mankind will continue throughout the month.

War Vet Says Wife Took His War Bonds And Went to Florida

Louis M. Allen, a war veteran who charges that his wife went to Florida with $600 worth of his War Bonds while he was in the service, yesterday filed an equity action in circuit court against Mrs. Edna Mae Shanholtz Allen and the Liberty Trust Company.

Allen, represented by Edward J. Ryan, seeks to restrain his wife from withdrawing $1,000 in their joint account in the bank and asks that the court direct that the money be paid to him.

Chief Judge William A. Huster has ordered the defendants to show cause before April 15 why the petition should not be granted. Allen said they were married June 19, 1939, and lived together until February 5, 1944. He said he entered the army in April, 1944, and was discharged last February 4. Allen charged that she left the city on February 10, 1944, taking the war bonds and also signed his name to a railroad pay check for $107, taking the money.

She never came back to Cumberland, he added.

Testimony Shows Couple, Living in Same Home, Rarely Spoke

The action was docketed by Mrs. Margaret Anna Poole against Thornton Ellsworth Poole, a retired railroad man. Mrs. Poole brought her first action against her husband in 1939 after which a reconciliation was effected.

However, testimony given at a hearing last month revealed that while the couple have been living together in the same home, they rarely spoke for years with the petitioner admitting that she hadn't done any cooking or washing for her husband since 1939. It was also stated that the husband cooked his own meals on the same stove used by the wife in cooking her own meals.

Denies Slapping Wife

In filing the petition, Mrs. Poole charged cruelty and abandonment, but the court ruled that no evidence was submitted to prove either charge. The couple have lived together in the same house all this time, the court stated, and Mrs. Poole charged that her husband slapped her face once. The defendant denied having slapped his wife.

Edward J. Ryan represented Mrs. Poole in the matter with the defendant represented by F. Brooke Whiting.

In a decree signed yesterday, Chief Judge William A. Huster awarded an absolute divorce to Mrs. Evelyn B. Fisher, 33, 212 Charles street, from Harry L. Fisher, a local bus driver. She was also granted the custody of their three daughters, aged 12, 10 and 3, with Fisher ordered to pay $100 a month for support of the children. The wife, represented by Noel Speir Cook, said they were married November 5, 1932, in Cumberland, and lived together until 1943. She said he was associating with another woman and that she caught them leaving an apartment on Bedford street. Fisher,

Balanced Federal Budget Favored By Gov. O'Conor in Address Here

Asserts Ideals of Maryland Should Apply to Other Places in World As Well As Here; Calls for "Realistic" Foreign Policy

Addressing more than 200 persons at a joint meeting of Cumberland's four service clubs, Lions, Kiwanis, Rotary and Exchange in Central YMCA, yesterday at noon, Governor Herbert O'Conor advocated a balanced federal budget, reduction in taxes and a realistic foreign policy.

The governor was the guest of the Lions club, and the other three clubs joined the Lions in welcoming the governor to Cumberland. Larry Cessna, president of the Lions club presided, and the governor was introduced by Joseph G. Jackson, of the Lions club, who arranged the program. Group singing was led by Joseph Trenton and the Lions Glee Club sang two numbers. The governor came to Cumberland by plane returning to Baltimore early in the afternoon.

During his address Gov. O'Conor paid high tribute to former Judge D. Lindley Sloan for his many years of service, not only in the circuit court but on the Maryland Court of Appeals, and said Judge Sloan's great service to the state is greatly appreciated and that he's sadly missed in Annapolis.

"Our people believe," the Governor said, "that the principles of Maryland philosophy, the ideals of freedom and religious tolerance, which have been the foundation stone of Maryland progress, should apply everywhere else in the world as well as here, and that no nation, because of its strength, has the right to enforce its will or its policies upon a neighbor simply because the neighbor is not strong enough to resist."

Cut Spending and Personnel

On the national scene: "If steps were taken to cut purchases to the bone and to cut personnel down to a working force, then it would follow that two things would be possible in America, in the years immediately ahead.

"First, the budget could be brought into balance so that the huge debt now oppressing business would not be increased but actually could be lessened somewhat.

"Secondly, and of absolute im-

Demurrer Is Sustained; Plaintiffs Given Right To Amend Bill

The first of two much publicized "cowboy suit" cases which have received more than usual attention from parents in the Cumberland area yesterday received the legal attention of the circuit court bench for the first time when the judges sustained the demurrer in a $50,000 damage action with the plaintiffs given the right to amend their bill of complaint.

The case before the court yesterday which was argued only on the demurrer was brought by Israel Edmond Detrick, Ridgeley, father of James Edmond Detrick, aged ten, who was seriously burned when his cowboy suit purchased at Lou's Auto Stores was ignited by a spark from a fire at the scene of a sleigh party in December, 1944. The boy received severe burns and is still confined in Memorial hospital where he is receiving tutoring through the efforts of the Kiwanis Club.

In sustaining the defendant firm's demurrer, the judges did not rule on any phase of the facts in the case but merely indicated that the form of the bill of complaint was unsatisfactory. In the original bill, the father asked for damages for the pain, suffering and injuries sustained by the son. With the avenue for an amended bill still open, it was indicated that the complaint should be filed by the son through his father as his "next best friend" to be proper and acceptable. The father may then file for damages due to loss of service and for medical expenses incurred.

Warranty is Issue

However, Clarence Lippel, attorney for the defendant firm, contended yesterday that the injured son has no warranty in this particular action as warranty extends only to the purchaser of the suit, which in this particular case was the father. Lippel quoted a case from the court of appeals where the court ruled that the warranty in the case of a father who sued a gas and electric company for faulty performance by a stove he purchased did not include his child who was killed when the stove blew up.

Lippel also contends that the plaintiffs in this particular action do not have recourse against the Cumberland firm and that it would be more proper for the plaintiffs to take action against the firm that actually manufactured the cowboy suit in question. Lippel based this assertion on the precedent that in cases where merchants buy an article and sell same in the same condition as purchased, no liability is involved. The case of a needle found in a cake of soap was quoted at this point.

William L. Wilson, Jr., in presenting his argument for the plaintiff, told the court that the "public should be protected" in cases of this type. Wilson also quoted a number of cases which he indicated might be used as precedents in this particular action. Some of the cases were in favor of the plaintiff and one ruling quoted was for the defendant firm in that particular incidence.

Another suit has been filed in court, based on the claim that a Frostburg youth was also burned while wearing one of the suits. Two other boys in the Cumberland area, also burned while wearing the suits, were in local hospitals for many months, and similar suits are pending in Washington court against a department store.

William H. Geppert Files For House of Delegates

William H. Geppert, Braddock road, Cumberland attorney, yesterday filed for election to the Maryland House of Delegates with the board of election supervisors, subject to the Republican primary in June. Geppert, who recently returned home after service with the navy in the Pacific, was formerly a trial magistrate in trial magistrates court.

Labor Unity Conference Will Meet Tonight

The Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock at Teamsters hall, North Mechanic street, William Boyd Coleman, temporary vice president, announced yesterday.

Additional labor groups of this county are expected to affiliate with the organization at this evening's meeting.

School Boy Safety Patrols Have Good Accident Prevention Record

Western Maryland Motor Club Has Sponsored Group for Years

A pedestrian in the west end of town smiled to himself the other day as a recalcitrant, red-faced little boy, fairly breathing defiance, squared off to a tall, serious-looking safety patrolman and blurted, "You can't push me around!"

"I'm not trying to push you around," the patrolman explained patiently. "When you get out of school you have to cross the street here and go home, the way you always do."

"I ain't goin' home," the little boy hollered. "I'm goin' to my grandma's and she lives that way, not this way which any fool oughta know!"

The patrolman gravely shook his head. "You have to go home first," he said, "and you have to go the way you always go. Now, go."

By this time a large group of school children had assembled on the curb watching the altercation with grave interest.

Finally Gives In

"You'd better do as he says," one of the spectators shouted at the defiant, red-faced boy. Others took up the refrain.

The red-faced little boy looked at the tall unmoved patrolman, looked at the group of spectators and then, head high, marched across the street the way he was supposed to as the patrolman kept watch. Once across, he never looked back and kept going, keeping his miffed thoughts to himself. But even his back shouted defiance as he marched homeward.

This is only one incident, but it illustrates the spirit of responsibility that motivates the members of the Western Maryland Safety Patrols and perhaps explains better than hundreds of words why only two serious accidents have been reported in the zone of patrol operations in the last twenty years.

Quoting Miss Margaret K. Blake, in charge of the group, "This splendid record has been achieved under the sponsorship of the Western Maryland Motor Club, the local automobile association. During a twenty-year period the club has furnished hundreds of the traditional white Sam Browne belts and badges which identify the school patrol members.

Safety Materials Available

Continuing, Miss Blake stated, "By their co-operation, the club makes available to the schools all safety materials published by the national organization. For the past two years it has sponsored the Cumberland Junior Safety Council, made up of represenatives of seventeen local schools. The club purchases an annual membership in the National Safety Council for the junior council. Through this membership the group receives much help in the form of posters, lesson units, magazines, movies, bulletins and news letters."

For a number of years before the war the Western Maryland Motor Club arranged for local patrol members to attend the annual national rally in Washington, D. C. During the war years they have held a rally each year, consisting of a parade and a free movie. Over 1500 certificates of merit and a number of merit pins have been awarded by the club for meritorious work. Plans are now under way for the annual rally when awards for the year will be made.

The officers of the organization at present are: J. Walter Byer, president.. George Erling, vice president; Kinsey Wolfe, treasurer. The patrol committee is made up of Daniel D'Amicol, chairman; Mrs. Thomas W. Koon and Mrs. Walter E. Reuhl.

The Salvation Army Cadet Crusaders from the Salvation Army Training college, Atlanta, Ga., will begin two days of services here today. Among the services scheduled are one at the Citadel, North Mechanic street, at 8 o'clock tonight, and one at the South Cumberland outpost at 8 p. m. Friday.

Mrs. Cora Jane Fier, 135 Reynolds street, secured an occupancy permit in the city engineer's office yesterday to use part of the first floor of a two-story frame building at 635 Baltimore avenue as a confectionery and newsstand. The premises were formerly used as a grocery store.

The Princess of Bagdad will hold its regular meeting this evening at Malta Temple, 67 Prospect square. An important question will be discussed and decided at this meeting.

TO TEACH HERE—Miss Harriett Hardy, Lexington, Ky., will give an instruction course on vacation Bible schools during the standard leadership training school to be held at Centre Street Methodist church from April 29 to May 3. The school will be sponsored by the Cumberland Ministerial Association. Miss Hardy, director of children's work for the Christian Churches of Kentucky, served in the public schools of Scottsburg, Ind., for nine years as a teacher of primary grades. While in Indiana she served as a member of the Indiana Children's Committee of Christian Churches. She is now doing graduate study at the College of the Bible, Lexington, Ky., where she will receive a degree of Master of Religious Education this June.

Richard G. Jenkins Enters GOP Race For Sheriff

Richard Glotfelty Jenkins, 40, 26 McCullough street, Frostburg, a veteran of World War II, yesterday announced his candidacy on the Republican ticket for sheriff of Allegany county.

Jenkins is a native and life-long resident of Frostburg, except for over two years spent in the Navy Seabees during the recent war. He held a shipfitter, first class rating, and served in the Southwest Pacific, seeing active duty in Okinawa, the Carolina Islands, Iwo Shima, Hawaiian Islands and Panama.

Well known in Frostburg and the Georges Creek region, Jenkins is a driver for the C. and W. Transit line, operating a bus from Cumberland to Westernport. He is, however, a steamfitter by trade.

Jenkins is a son of the late Edward Jenkins, a coal miner, who was killed while working in a mine at Midlothian, November 16, 1934, in one of the worst mine disasters in the county. Three men were killed at the time, he recalled yesterday.

Prior to entering the service Jenkins was a member of the Arion band, Frostburg, and says he played a slide trombone. He is a member of Frostburg Aerie No. 1273, Fraternal Order of Eagles; Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose; Mountain Lodge No. 99, A. F. and A. Masons; Goodfellowship Social Club, inc., of this city; Young Men's Republican Club, inc., Frostburg; Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion; John R. Fairgrieve Post No. 2462, Veterans of Foreign Wars; and St. Paul's Lutheran church, Frostburg.

Jenkins is also a member of the Frostburg Volunteer Fire Department and truck driver for Company No. 1. He is married and has one daughter, Virginia Lee, age 15, now a first year student in Beall high school.

Jenkins said last night this is his first venture in politics as a candidate, but he has always been interested in the affairs of the Republican party and community. He says he knows the county well, and has made a study of the duties of the sheriff's office.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Norman E. Amtower, Iron River, Mich., last Tuesday. Amtower who served with the air forces in the Pacific area, is a former resident of this city. Mrs. Amtower is the former Miss Lillian Maki, Iron River.

Storm Causes Damage

An electrical storm, of but a few minutes duration visited the city and vicinity Tuesday night, causing slight damage in various sections.

A cherry tree in the yard of Mrs. Otto Hafer, 363 Bedford street was struck by lightning and a "live" wire was knocked from a Potomac Edison pole on Linden street. East Side firemen responded but there was no blaze, and power company workmen repaired the damaged wire a short time after the mishap.

O'Neal To Fight Against Control Plan for Stand

Blind Man Says System Would Deprive Him of Independence

James W. O'Neal, 451 Goethe street, blind operator of the vending stand in the lobby of the post office here, declared yesterday he will oppose vigorously the threatened attempt of the Maryland Workshop of the Blind to take over the control of the stand on Monday.

O'Neal said a letter dated March 22 from W. S. Ratchford, superintendent of the Maryland Workshop of the Blind, informed him that the board of trustees had directed him to advise O'Neal that the stand here is to be placed under the agency control plan as of April 8.

"In line with the plan," Ratchford's letter continued, "we will arrange to take an inventory of the stand as of April 6. You will be reimbursed for the stock at the wholesale price. The stand will be supplied with the necessary stock and operating capital to be operated under the agency control plan."

Oppose Supervision

O'Neal, who has made thousands of friends here through his courage and cheerfulness, declared there are only seven blind persons operating independent shops in public buildings in Maryland and added that all of those who are free of agency control have advised him to resist the agency's action.

"When I started the stand here ten years ago," O'Neal told a News reporter, "I asked the Maryland Workshop of the Blind to help me but they refused financial assistance. It was the people of Cumberland who built and donated my original equipment and Cumberland business firms who gave me credit to get started in business.'

The local blind man praised the aid of James C. Shriver, postmaster, who, he said, "gave me my start in life" and has been a constant help through the years spent in the local post office.

Enjoys Independence

O'Neal said the stand has enabled him to make a living for himself and his wife, the former Annarose Hadra, whom he married January 30, 1943, and has enabled him to enjoy a degree of independence seldom available to the handicapped. He pointed out that he is now paying for his home and has other obligations which must be met.

O'Neal and his brother, Ralph, who now operates a stand at the Public Safety Building here, plan to open a grocery and confectionary at 400 Goethe street within a few weeks, but James declared he feels he must keep his stand at the post office at least until the success of the new business venture is assured. The agency control plan, he asserted, will mean a decrease in the revenue from the stand.

Enjoys Work Here

The local man explained that a stand such as he operates gives a blind person a "wonderful opportunity" in life and said that although the work is tiring, the opportunity for contacts with people compensates for the troubles which may develop.

O'Neal has retained Forrest Brown, local attorney, to assist him in his battle for independence.

The embattled blind man admitted he may be forced to submit to agency control under the terms of the Randolph-Sheppard act, set up in Congress to assist blind persons in various types of business, but declared he will not quit without a fight.

O'Neal report he never forgets a voice and commented that several persons have been quite surprised when he recognized them after absences of more than three years.

Industrial Survey To Give Valuable Data on County

Governor Says Allegany Has Unusually Stable Working Population

Announcement was made here yesterday by Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, that the industrial survey of Allegany county, undertaken some months ago by the University of Maryland with state financial support, is well on the way to completion.

"While it is expected," Governor O'Conor said, "that the printed report of the survey will not be released until some time in May, enough data already is available to make certain that the survey report will be of great assistance to Cumberland in its industrial planning and development."

"This survey originated with citizen groups," the governor explained. "The support of the state in this undertaking comes from full recognition that the economic well being of the state and nation, is in the final analysis, dependent upon how well each community orders its economic life. This is in turn as I see it," he continued, "much a matter of how well a community knows itself, its resources and the tools it has to work with.

Gives True Picture

"This survey, as it was outlined to me by community representatives of Cumberland is a real effort in that direction. The purpose is to measure the economic potentials of Allegany county, its points of strength as well as limitations so that effective direction of effort can be made toward the maximum development of the economy here in Allegany county."

Several facts stand out clearly in the report, the governor declared. With regard to the all important factor of labor, the report will show that among favorable factors of Allegany county economy, the county has an unusually stable working population. The quality of the county labor force is shown as exceptionally high, he said. There are very few drifters and a relatively large home ownership by worker groups. This condition, he asserted, has been responsible for the establishment of at least one new industry recently, in the county.

Among the less favorable aspects of the county labor situation disclosed by the survey, the governor revealed, is that only four percent of the employment is in timber and agriculture. Coal deposits are nearing completion, so that the total number of coal miners in Allegany county is only a little more than 1,000 compared to 5,000 in 1910. There is also an unusually high concentration of industry, he stated.

Three companies in Allegany county, the report will indicate, employ ninety percent of the total manufacturing production, he said, and more than fifty percent of the total employment of all activities in that area.

Small Industries Advocated

The county runs a great risk in having such a large part of its industrial eggs in one basket, O'Conor stated. This places a heavy burden of responsibility upon the community and upon those industries to maintain industrial peace.

Allegany county, likewise, has a very limited supply of trained labor, a fact which might militate against major industry expansion, the governor further pointed out. He noted, however, a supply of unskilled or semi-skilled laborers, perhaps 3,000 to 5,000 persons, who should be provided with jobs by small industry, perhaps by needlecraft.

Total unemployment benefit checks for February, number 1,697 to the amount of $30,635, the largest for any single month since the summer of 1942, the Governor made known. Total claims for jobless benefits of 4,423 also are the largest number since 1942, O'Conor said, adding that more than 5,000 persons are seeking employment, as indicated by the active files of the local United States Employment office.

Selective Service Awards Presented By Gov. O'Conor

Governor Expresses Gratitude to 44 Allegany and Garrett Citizens

At a presentation ceremony yesterday afternoon in city hall council chamber, Governor Herbert R. O'Conor, speaking in behalf of the people of Maryland, expressed words of gratitude to forty-four citizens of Allegany and Garrett counties, who served in the Selective Service System during the war years.

Governor O'Conor said that Selective Service in Maryland had been operated fairly and those responsible for deciding which men must remain at home and which men must enter service, had what very often appeared to be a thankless and heartless job.

"But when private citizens," he exclaimed, "are willing to come forward and do a thankless job, that of calling the nation's youth to arms, we demonstrate the innermost strength of our democracy."

Not a Thankless Task

"Often it may seem," the governor continued, "that public service of this kind seems like an endless, thankless task. But this is not the case. This task, the long hours spent night and day, when the country was fighting for its survival, cannot be forgotten." The awards presented, he explained, represent the highest distinction a citizen can receive, and are emblematic of unselfish public service in connection with the concerted effort toward winning the war.

Governor O'Conor was presented by Col. Henry C. Stanwood, director of Selective Service in Maryland.

Col. Stanwood said, "We are honored this afternoon to have our state's chief executive present, to decorate those here who are eligible to receive the Selective Service medals and certificates.

"I was privileged, last Wednesday, to be present, when the national director of Selective Service, Major General Lewis B. Hershey, presented these same awards to Governor O'Conor. I was interested to learn that of all the governors in the United States, Governor O'Conor is the only one still actively serving as governor, who organized the Selective Service System in his state, and who still remains the active head of the state's system.

Reads List of Names

"It follows therefore that it would be impossible to find anyone to present the awards today, who has a keener appreciation of the burden of labor which you each carried for your country during the long years of her great need."

Col. Stanwood then read the names of physicians, dentists, medical advisory board members and re-employment committeemen who gave two years or more service prior to November 30, 1945, to Selective Service. He explained that those who have now served a total of two years and whose names were not on the roster which closed in November, will receive awards at a later date.

Several of those eligible for awards were absent due to illness or other reasons, and a couple of men are still in uniform, having entered after serving with Selective Service.

Those called by Stanwood for awards from Governor O'Conor included Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, Dr. C. S. Beamer, Frederick W. Boettner, Dr. R. C. Bowen, (now deceased), Dr. E. E. Broadrup, James M. Conway, Dr. L. E. Daugherty, Dr. H. C Diehl, John P. Dolphin, Dr. Clay Durrett, Dr. H. W. Eliason, Dr. S. E Enfield, Dr. Lyle Everhart.

Allegany county has been assigned a goal of $6,000 in the American Cancer Society's annual fund-raising campaign, according to Dr. George G. Finney, Baltimore, state chairman.

Dr. Finney also announced that Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum has been appointed commander for the Sixth district, which comprises Allegany and Garrett counties.

Mrs. Rosenbaum stated that she anticipates most of the solicitation in this area will be by letter. Campaign plans have not yet been completed. The goal for the state of Maryland is $200,000.

Last year $2,500 was raised here and $1,250 went to the cancer clinic operated at Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Rosenbaum explained that one of the most important factors in the campaign against cancer is education so that people recognize the signs and take early action.

Of the funds raised 40 per cent will go to the national society for its work in cancer research and education and the remaining 60 per cent will be kept in Maryland to carry on the society's three-fold program of research into the cause and control of cancer, education and actual care of indigent cancer patients.

By act of Congress and Presidential proclamation the month of April has been designated "Cancer-Control Month" and the campaign to raise enough money to wage an all-out war on this No. 1 enemy of mankind will continue throughout the month.

War Vet Says Wife Took His War Bonds And Went to Florida

Louis M. Allen, a war veteran who charges that his wife went to Florida with $600 worth of his War Bonds while he was in the service, yesterday filed an equity action in circuit court against Mrs. Edna Mae Shanholtz Allen and the Liberty Trust Company.

Allen, represented by Edward J. Ryan, seeks to restrain his wife from withdrawing $1,000 in their joint account in the bank and asks that the court direct that the money be paid to him.

Chief Judge William A. Huster has ordered the defendants to show cause before April 15 why the petition should not be granted. Allen said they were married June 19, 1939, and lived together until February 5, 1944. He said he entered the army in April, 1944, and was discharged last February 4. Allen charged that she left the city on February 10, 1944, taking the war bonds and also signed his name to a railroad pay check for $107, taking the money.

She never came back to Cumberland, he added.

Three Men Held For Grand Jury

A young negro woman and three men were arraigned in trial magistrates court here yesterday on theft charges. The three men were held for action of the April grand jury, while the young woman was given a suspended sentence.

Bessie Lee Bates, 18, 228 South Lee street, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of taking a dress from a Baltimore street ladies' store, where she was employed as an elevator girl. She said she took the dress on or about March 7. Magistrate Frank A. Perdew sentenced her to thirty days in the county jail, but suspended sentence on condition that she pay for the dress.

James Cody Phelan, 21, Fresno, Calif., was taken to the county jail in default of $200 bond, for action of the grand jury, on a charge of stealing a bicycle here valued at about $35. The man was arrested in Keyser, W. Va., Monday at the request of local police. He admitted taking the bicycle which was owned by James Cox, this city.

Howard S. Rodeheaver, Thomas street, and Leonard L. Welsh, Gay street, were committed to county jail by order of Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., in default of $250 bond each, for action of the grand jury.

The two men are charged with stealing mine car wheels valued at $64, from the Clarysville mines. Marshall Stanton was complaining witness. Lt. Detective B. Frank Gaffney and Detective Edwin R. Lilya investigated.

The men were arrested Tuesday afternoon by Officer John W. Snyder after the local policeman and Stanton, during a search of local junk yards, located the dealer who had purchased wheels weighing 7,800 pounds from the pair on Monday.

Police said Stanton discovered the loss of the wheels Tuesday when he went to feed his ponies at the Gunston coal mine seven miles west of here.

Testimony Shows Couple, Living in Same Home, Rarely Spoke

The divorce petition of a 66-year-old Pennsylvania avenue woman against her 68-year-old husband was dismissed yesterday in an opinion handed down by Associate Judge Walter C. Capper.

The action was docketed by Mrs. Margaret Anna Poole against Thornton Ellsworth Poole, a retired railroad man. Mrs. Poole brought her first action against her husband in 1939 after which a reconciliation was effected.

However, testimony given at a hearing last month revealed that while the couple have been living together in the same home, they rarely spoke for years with the petitioner admitting that she hadn't done any cooking or washing for her husband since 1939. It was also stated that the husband cooked his own meals on the same stove used by the wife in cooking her own meals.

Denies Slapping Wife

In filing the petition, Mrs. Poole charged cruelty and abandonment, but the court ruled that no evidence was submitted to prove either charge. The couple have lived together in the same house all this time, the court stated, and Mrs. Poole charged that her husband slapped her face once. The defendant denied having slapped his wife.

Edward J. Ryan represented Mrs. Poole in the matter with the defendant represented by F. Brooke Whiting.

In a decree signed yesterday, Chief Judge William A. Huster awarded an absolute divorce to Mrs. Evelyn B. Fisher, 33, 212 Charles street, from Harry L. Fisher, a local bus driver. She was also granted the custody of their three daughters, aged 12, 10 and 3, with Fisher ordered to pay $100 a month for support of the children. The wife, represented by Noel Speir Cook, said they were married November 5, 1932, in Cumberland, and lived together until 1943. She said he was associating with another woman and that she caught them leaving an apartment on Bedford street. Fisher,

Balanced Federal Budget Favored By Gov. O'Conor in Address Here

Asserts Ideals of Maryland Should Apply to Other Places in World As Well As Here; Calls for "Realistic" Foreign Policy

Addressing more than 200 persons at a joint meeting of Cumberland's four service clubs, Lions, Kiwanis, Rotary and Exchange in Central YMCA, yesterday at noon, Governor Herbert O'Conor advocated a balanced federal budget, reduction in taxes and a realistic foreign policy.

The governor was the guest of the Lions club, and the other three clubs joined the Lions in welcoming the governor to Cumberland. Larry Cessna, president of the Lions club presided, and the governor was introduced by Joseph G. Jackson, of the Lions club, who arranged the program. Group singing was led by Joseph Trenton and the Lions Glee Club sang two numbers. The governor came to Cumberland by plane returning to Baltimore early in the afternoon.

During his address Gov. O'Conor paid high tribute to former Judge D. Lindley Sloan for his many years of service, not only in the circuit court but on the Maryland Court of Appeals, and said Judge Sloan's great service to the state is greatly appreciated and that he's sadly missed in Annapolis.

"Our people believe," the Governor said, "that the principles of Maryland philosophy, the ideals of freedom and religious tolerance, which have been the foundation stone of Maryland progress, should apply everywhere else in the world as well as here, and that no nation, because of its strength, has the right to enforce its will or its policies upon a neighbor simply because the neighbor is not strong enough to resist."

Cut Spending and Personnel

On the national scene: "If steps were taken to cut purchases to the bone and to cut personnel down to a working force, then it would follow that two things would be possible in America, in the years immediately ahead.

"First, the budget could be brought into balance so that the huge debt now oppressing business would not be increased but actually could be lessened somewhat.

"Secondly, and of absolute im-

Demurrer Is Sustained; Plaintiffs Given Right To Amend Bill

The first of two much publicized "cowboy suit" cases which have received more than usual attention from parents in the Cumberland area yesterday received the legal attention of the circuit court bench for the first time when the judges sustained the demurrer in a $50,000 damage action with the plaintiffs given the right to amend their bill of complaint.

The case before the court yesterday which was argued only on the demurrer was brought by Israel Edmond Detrick, Ridgeley, father of James Edmond Detrick, aged ten, who was seriously burned when his cowboy suit purchased at Lou's Auto Stores was ignited by a spark from a fire at the scene of a sleigh party in December, 1944. The boy received severe burns and is still confined in Memorial hospital where he is receiving tutoring through the efforts of the Kiwanis Club.

In sustaining the defendant firm's demurrer, the judges did not rule on any phase of the facts in the case but merely indicated that the form of the bill of complaint was unsatisfactory. In the original bill, the father asked for damages for the pain, suffering and injuries sustained by the son. With the avenue for an amended bill still open, it was indicated that the complaint should be filed by the son through his father as his "next best friend" to be proper and acceptable. The father may then file for damages due to loss of service and for medical expenses incurred.

However, Clarence Lippel, attorney for the defendant firm, contended yesterday that the injured son has no warranty in this particular action as warranty extends only to the purchaser of the suit, which in this particular case was the father. Lippel quoted a case from the court of appeals where the court ruled that the warranty in the case of a father who sued a gas and electric company for faulty performance by a stove he purchased did not include his child who was killed when the stove blew up.

Lippel also contends that the plaintiffs in this particular action do not have recourse against the Cumberland firm and that it would be more proper for the plaintiffs to take action against the firm that actually manufactured the cowboy suit in question. Lippel based this assertion on the precedent that in cases where merchants buy an article and sell same in the same condition as purchased, no liability is involved. The case of a needle found in a cake of soap was quoted at this point.

William L. Wilson, Jr., in presenting his argument for the plaintiff, told the court that the "public should be protected" in cases of this type. Wilson also quoted a number of cases which he indicated might be used as precedents in this particular action. Some of the cases were in favor of the plaintiff and one ruling quoted was for the defendant firm in that particular incidence.

Another suit has been filed in court, based on the claim that a Frostburg youth was also burned while wearing one of the suits. Two other boys in the Cumberland area, also burned while wearing the suits, were in local hospitals for many months, and similar suits are pending in Washington court against a department store.

William H. Geppert Files For House of Delegates

William H. Geppert, Braddock road, Cumberland attorney, yesterday filed for election to the Maryland House of Delegates with the board of election supervisors, subject to the Republican primary in June. Geppert, who recently returned home after service with the navy in the Pacific, was formerly a trial magistrate in trial magistrates court.

School Boy Safety Patrols Have Good Accident Prevention Record

Western Maryland Motor Club Has Sponsored Group for Years

A pedestrian in the west end of town smiled to himself the other day as a recalcitrant, red-faced little boy, fairly breathing defiance, squared off to a tall, serious-looking safety patrolman and blurted, "You can't push me around!"

"I'm not trying to push you around," the patrolman explained patiently. "When you get out of school you have to cross the street here and go home, the way you always do."

"I ain't goin' home," the little boy hollered. "I'm goin' to my grandma's and she lives that way, not this way which any fool oughta know!"

The patrolman gravely shook his head. "You have to go home first," he said, "and you have to go the way you always go. Now, go."

By this time a large group of school children had assembled on the curb watching the altercation with grave interest.

Finally Gives In

"You'd better do as he says," one of the spectators shouted at the defiant, red-faced boy. Others took up the refrain.

The red-faced little boy looked at the tall unmoved patrolman, looked at the group of spectators and then, head high, marched across the street the way he was supposed to as the patrolman kept watch. Once across, he never looked back and kept going, keeping his miffed thoughts to himself. But even his back shouted defiance as he marched homeward.

This is only one incident, but it illustrates the spirit of responsibility that motivates the members of the Western Maryland Safety Patrols and perhaps explains better than hundreds of words why only two serious accidents have been reported in the zone of patrol operations in the last twenty years.

Quoting Miss Margaret K. Blake, in charge of the group, "This splendid record has been achieved under the sponsorship of the Western Maryland Motor Club, the local automobile association. During a twenty-year period the club has furnished hundreds of the traditional white Sam Browne belts and badges which identify the school patrol members.

Safety Materials Available

Continuing, Miss Blake stated, "By their co-operation, the club makes available to the schools all safety materials published by the national organization. For the past two years it has sponsored the Cumberland Junior Safety Council, made up of represenatives of seventeen local schools. The club purchases an annual membership in the National Safety Council for the junior council. Through this membership the group receives much help in the form of posters, lesson units, magazines, movies, bulletins and news letters."

For a number of years before the war the Western Maryland Motor Club arranged for local patrol members to attend the annual national rally in Washington, D. C. During the war years they have held a rally each year, consisting of a parade and a free movie. Over 1500 certificates of merit and a number of merit pins have been awarded by the club for meritorious work. Plans are now under way for the annual rally when awards for the year will be made.

The officers of the organization at present are: J. Walter Byer, president.. George Erling, vice president; Kinsey Wolfe, treasurer. The patrol committee is made up of Daniel D'Amicol, chairman; Mrs. Thomas W. Koon and Mrs. Walter E. Reuhl.

Richard G. Jenkins Enters GOP Race For Sheriff

Richard Glotfelty Jenkins, 40, 26 McCullough street, Frostburg, a veteran of World War II, yesterday announced his candidacy on the Republican ticket for sheriff of Allegany county.

Jenkins is a native and life-long resident of Frostburg, except for over two years spent in the Navy Seabees during the recent war. He held a shipfitter, first class rating, and served in the Southwest Pacific, seeing active duty in Okinawa, the Carolina Islands, Iwo Shima, Hawaiian Islands and Panama.

Well known in Frostburg and the Georges Creek region, Jenkins is a driver for the C. and W. Transit line, operating a bus from Cumberland to Westernport. He is, however, a steamfitter by trade.

Jenkins is a son of the late Edward Jenkins, a coal miner, who was killed while working in a mine at Midlothian, November 16, 1934, in one of the worst mine disasters in the county. Three men were killed at the time, he recalled yesterday.

Prior to entering the service Jenkins was a member of the Arion band, Frostburg, and says he played a slide trombone. He is a member of Frostburg Aerie No. 1273, Fraternal Order of Eagles; Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose; Mountain Lodge No. 99, A. F. and A. Masons; Goodfellowship Social Club, inc., of this city; Young Men's Republican Club, inc., Frostburg; Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion; John R. Fairgrieve Post No. 2462, Veterans of Foreign Wars; and St. Paul's Lutheran church, Frostburg.

Jenkins is also a member of the Frostburg Volunteer Fire Department and truck driver for Company No. 1. He is married and has one daughter, Virginia Lee, age 15, now a first year student in Beall high school.

Jenkins said last night this is his first venture in politics as a candidate, but he has always been interested in the affairs of the Republican party and community. He says he knows the county well, and has made a study of the duties of the sheriff's office.

James W. O'Neal, 451 Goethe street, blind operator of the vending stand in the lobby of the post office here, declared yesterday he will oppose vigorously the threatened attempt of the Maryland Workshop of the Blind to take over the control of the stand on Monday.

O'Neal said a letter dated March 22 from W. S. Ratchford, superintendent of the Maryland Workshop of the Blind, informed him that the board of trustees had directed him to advise O'Neal that the stand here is to be placed under the agency control plan as of April 8.

"In line with the plan," Ratchford's letter continued, "we will arrange to take an inventory of the stand as of April 6. You will be reimbursed for the stock at the wholesale price. The stand will be supplied with the necessary stock and operating capital to be operated under the agency control plan."

Oppose Supervision

O'Neal, who has made thousands of friends here through his courage and cheerfulness, declared there are only seven blind persons operating independent shops in public buildings in Maryland and added that all of those who are free of agency control have advised him to resist the agency's action.

"When I started the stand here ten years ago," O'Neal told a News reporter, "I asked the Maryland Workshop of the Blind to help me but they refused financial assistance. It was the people of Cumberland who built and donated my original equipment and Cumberland business firms who gave me credit to get started in business.'

The local blind man praised the aid of James C. Shriver, postmaster, who, he said, "gave me my start in life" and has been a constant help through the years spent in the local post office.

Enjoys Independence

O'Neal said the stand has enabled him to make a living for himself and his wife, the former Annarose Hadra, whom he married January 30, 1943, and has enabled him to enjoy a degree of independence seldom available to the handicapped. He pointed out that he is now paying for his home and has other obligations which must be met.

O'Neal and his brother, Ralph, who now operates a stand at the Public Safety Building here, plan to open a grocery and confectionary at 400 Goethe street within a few weeks, but James declared he feels he must keep his stand at the post office at least until the success of the new business venture is assured. The agency control plan, he asserted, will mean a decrease in the revenue from the stand.

Enjoys Work Here

The local man explained that a stand such as he operates gives a blind person a "wonderful opportunity" in life and said that although the work is tiring, the opportunity for contacts with people compensates for the troubles which may develop.

O'Neal has retained Forrest Brown, local attorney, to assist him in his battle for independence.

The embattled blind man admitted he may be forced to submit to agency control under the terms of the Randolph-Sheppard act, set up in Congress to assist blind persons in various types of business, but declared he will not quit without a fight.

O'Neal report he never forgets a voice and commented that several persons have been quite surprised when he recognized them after absences of more than three years.
